Points Out Difficulties That Have Arisen From French Encircling Movement.

SOLDIERS ARE RESENTFUL

POINCARE ANSWERS BERLIN

Ridicules the Assertions Concerning Penalties for Failure to Deliver Wood and Coal.

LONDON, March 8 (Associated Press.)—It has been reported that the British Government has formally protested on legal grounds against the French occupation of territories between the Rhine bridgeheads.

It is learned authoritatively, however, that no formal protest has been made, but only verbal representations through diplomatic channels, pointing out the difficulties created for the British authorities in the Rhineland.

The Cologne Chamber of Commerce has sent a long letter of protest to Colonel Josiah Wedgwood, member of the House of Commons, who is opposed to the interference with British trade interests caused by the French action. The letter suggests to the British Government "certain concessions" which might be obtained from the French and Belgian Governments for the purpose of facilitating British trade and preventing grave losses to British manufacturers and merchants.

COLOGNE, March 8.—Every outlet from the Rhineland has now been stopped by French customs officers and troops, and this British bridgehead of Cologne can no longer serve as a corridor for contraband. That is the effect of the operations which the French completed yesterday, when they occupied Remscheid and other villages east of the British zone.

Here their action is producing an effect which among the civilian population is almost one of consternation. General Godley, the British Commander-in-Chief, has gone to London to discuss the situation, and the army authorities, of course, are holding themselves aloof from discussion. But among British army people nothing else is being talked of than the absurdity of the situation which has arisen.

All that the British force is of use for now is to garrison this city and save French troops doing it. For that reason it is believed the French are not entirely desirous of immediate British withdrawal. They would prefer that the present garrison remain in occupation, as otherwise they would need almost another class at the colors to make up the requisite numbers.

Encircling Move a Surprise.

Their gradual surrounding seems to have come as something of a surprise to the British. The local military authorities say they had no notification, and the same statement is made at the Rhineland High Commission. Some places where French have established their control are within the British zone, or at least partly so, and such towns as Remscheid are held on one side by the British and on the eastern side by the French.

Between the troops of the two countries there is still perfectly good understanding, but some very significant incidents have happened along the frontier. At one point where some German car loads of goods had been assembled for the purpose of running the blockade a French picket which had arrived on bicycles tried to interfere. The British guard was at once turned out under a corporal, and when the French withdraw the Germans passed out amid the cheers of the Tommies. Such incidents, which fortunately have been rare, indicate that local sympathy is not entirely with the French, and feeling has been enormously more aroused by an announcement that in the functioning of the French control there has been interference with bringing in supplies to British civilian stores established in the town.

There has also been, it appears, some rather excessively strict control on the roads and railroads leading into the British zone, the inference being that this zone is foreign, if not what might be called enemy, territory. On the road from Duesseldorf to Cologne a control post has been established for some time past and all traffic has been held up for examination. This the British rather strongly resent, and representation has been made to General Degoutte for removal of such control.

The fact that no notice was given of intention to surround the area is also regarded as a very unfriendly act. The local authorities are not, of course, aware of what passed between Paris and London with regard to any arrangement, but both they and the Rhineland Commission representatives were completely unaware until after it had taken place that any such move was intended. It is recognized that it is now impossible to make any new adjustment and the situation must be accepted as it stands. The only matter for the British is to decide whether they will remain or whether they will withdraw in the same way as the Americans withdrew from Coblenz.

It is felt that so long as the troops remain here they are tactfully, if not ac-

'Centre Party' Is Abandoned Formally by Lloyd George

LONDON, March 8.—Another step in the movement toward Liberal reunion is disclosed today by publication of correspondence which passed between Mr. Lloyd George and Major Entwistle, Liberal M. P. for Hull.

Replying to questions put to him by Major Entwistle, the ex-Premier declares that the idea of a Centre Party has been definitely abandoned and agrees that in the event of Liberal reunion the present Asquithian Liberals should be wholly free to dissociate themselves from the policy of the late Government.

LEGISLATURE DOOMS HOUSING PROGRAM

Untermyer Bills Are Scheduled for Defeat—New Committee Scheme to Be Smothered.

REPUBLICANS WON'T BUDGE

Will Introduce Measure Giving to Attorney General Powers Contained in Pending Bills.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 8.—With the possible exception of a few of the many bills introduced to extend the operation of the emergency rent laws for another year, every measure included in the elaborate legislative program of the defunct Lockwood Housing Committee is as good as dead.

The proposal to have the Legislature create a new committee to take the place of the Lockwood committee and give to it an appropriation of $10,000 to enable it to continue work until April 1 of next year is also doomed. Assemblyman Leininger of Queens, Vice Chairman of the old Housing Committee, introduced a concurrent resolution with that object in view on Feb. 5. This was sent to the Ways and Means Committee and has remained there ever since.

Today Mr. Leininger made an effort to get his bill out of the committee. Only Republican members were in attendance. They balked at the proposal. If it had come to a vote the Leininger resolution would have been killed then and there. The suggestion was made that Mr Leininger defer action until next week and the suggestion prevailed.

If the Leininger resolution is brought up again next week the Ways and Means Committee will kill it. It was learned after the committee had met that the Republican leaders in the Assembly are determined that there shall not be a successor to the Lockwood committee.

Fate in Senate Doubtful.

The Senate has adopted another resolution which now is being held in the Ways and Means Committee in the Assembly. This was introduced by Senator Dunnigan of the Bronx, who succeeded Senator Lockwood as Chairman of the Housing Committee following the change in party control at the Capitol. The Dunnigan resolution would create the Housing Committee anew and keep it alive until May 1. Speaker Machold of the Assembly has informed Senator Dunnigan that he is willing the resolution should be reported for debate and final disposition on the floor of the Assembly. So far the Speaker has received no request from the Senator that his resolution be brought before the Assembly for action.

Even in the Democratic Senate the fate of such Housing Committee measures as the bill drafted by Samuel Untermyer to create a State Trade Commission to prevent price fixing and monopolistic practices in the distribution of commodities, the bill for State regulation of labor unions and the "Blue Sky" bill, which provides for supervision by the State Banking Department of transactions in securities, by exchanges and licensed dealers, is in doubt. But should they slip through in the upper house, they will meet defeat in the Assembly, according to reports emanating from an exceedingly well informed source.

Republican leaders in the Assembly are not prepared merely to have the Housing Committee legislation killed and let it go at that. They believe the same purposes can be served and better results attained in other ways. They have, in fact, a bill already prepared which may be introduced next week to take the place of the measures proposed by Mr. Untermyer and believe that the Democratic Senate will fall into line for that measure once it is thoroughly understood.

Under the terms of this substitute bill the work that Mr. Untermyer proposes should be done by a State Trade Commission and the State Superintendent of Banks, would be performed by the Attorney General through a special Bureau which would be created and by vesting him with powers to supersede public

BOY LOCKED 4 HOURS IN HUGE BANK VAULT SAVED, ALL BUT DEAD

OXYGEN SPRAY SAVES LIFE

WROTE NOTE BEGGING HELP

Firemen, policemen and civilians, working in relays until they were exhausted, burned and battered their way through an almost impregnable steel vault in a bank in Paterson, N. J., last night and, at the end of four hours' desperate strife, brought out alive a 19-year-old clerk who had been locked in accidentally at 6 o'clock in the evening with a man-defying time lock set for 8:15 this morning.

The youth, his face blackened, his tongue lolling from the long confinement in the air-tight space, was rushed unconscious to a hospital in an ambulance which had been backed up to the bank for hours, its doors yawning, its engine running, the driver's hand on the throttle and policemen stationed at corners to give it the right of way for a trip of desperate hurry.

It was the belief of surgeons early this morning that the boy would recover. But the congested face, the stare of horror in the unseeing eyes, the bruised and bleeding knuckles, the torn fingernails and the battered shoes all told how the imprisoned lad had tried to beat and claw and kick his way through the three inches of armor plate and eighteen inches of reinforced concrete, and it was feared that his mental condition might be affected.

Life Saved by Oxygen Tube.

Only the heroic, ceaseless battle of the rescuers got them to the end of their job in the nick of time. Even then the boy would have died had an oxygen tube not been thrust through the first tiny breach in the stout walls and the fetid chamber flooded with the life fluid from compressed tanks hoisted to the roof of the vault.

As it was, the boy collapsed and very nearly died after once staggering to his feet as the first chink in the roof widened, to pass up through the aperture a faintly scrawled note, begging those above for God's sake to hurry lest he die. That note was answered by one from the bank's President, thrust down through the hole, telling the captive to hang on to life and courage for just a few minutes longer.

It is doubtful if the boy ever read that answer, for half an hour later, when a surgeon was lowered by ropes about his armpits through a jagged hole in the roof, he found the lad an unconscious heap on the floor, the paper lying near him, his body littered with the débris that had been rained down upon him as the men above assaulted the heavy roof with every weapon they could bring into play.

Thousands standing in the street, breathless and tense with anxiety, except when now and then those pressed nearest to the plate glass windows relayed a murmured bulletin of progress, cheered when at last the limp body was lugged out, the ambulance went clanging away and the sweating, exhausted rescuers reeled from their gloriously finished task.

An automobile sped away in advance of the ambulance to bear news of the rescue to the parents who with difficulty had been kept at home, where every few minutes bulletins of the fight to save their son were rushed to them. The news got to them just in time to save them from collapse.

Clerk's Joke Nearly Fatal.

One there was who did not hear the cheers as the youth was borne to the hospital, a fellow-clerk, who, in a moment of thoughtless skylarking, had shoved to the ponderous vault door, only in a joke, but who had shoved it just too hard, so that the click of the tumblers burst upon his horror-stricken ears. That clerk, having given the alarm, having clung, hopeless, miserable, conscience-stricken on the edge of the crowd that toiled at rescue, slumped unconscious when the first drill bit through the steel and had to be carried away under the care of a doctor.

The scene of the rescue was the Peoples Park Bank at Twenty-first and Madison Avenues. The boy was Charles B. Di Giacomo of 176 Oak Street, Paterson. The clerk, who accidentally shut him in was William Templeton, 30 years old, also a resident of Paterson.

It had been the habit of the two young men, along about "clean-up time" toward 6 o'clock in the evening, as they

Planes Prove Theory of Refueling in Air; Make Contact 8 Times at 65-Mile Speed

MINEOLA, L. I., March 8.—Testing the possibility of refueling and of delivering messages from one airplane to another while in flight, Lawrence B. Sperry, using a Sperry Messenger which weighed less than 800 pounds, made contact with another plane eight times at different altitudes while flying sixty-five miles an hour here today.

The test, according to Sperry and Lieutenant Clyde V. Finiar, who piloted a big De Haviland, was successful and did not involve a great degree of danger. The experiment was to achieve close proximity between a given point on one plane and a given point on another. Officials of the War Department and army aviation experts pointed to the wartime value of the tests. They said that planes thus could take on supplies from a lighter than air craft, for example a dirigible, transfers being made by means of ladders.

Sperry, whose machine was equipped with a wooden upright fastened to the upper wing, flew close enough to the De Haviland to touch with the upright the end of a twelve-foot metal ladder suspended from the larger plane. Both aviators were equipped with parachutes, but they were not needed in spite of the unfavorable air currents. Motion picture operators in a third plane made movies of the tests.

'Damn the Railroads' Won't Go In Court, Says Arkansas Judge

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 8.—"The principle of 'damn the railroads' doesn't apply in court any more than the principle so largely practised by the railroads of 'damn the public' did," said Judge Jacob Trieber in United States District Court here today in announcing a decision reducing the assessment of the St. Louis & Southwestern Railroad in an Arkansas improvement district from $76,000 to $10,000.

"There is a different view taken of railroads in courts than is taken by the people and the Legislature," Judge Trieber declared. "The general public thinks that the principal purpose of having railroads is to enact acts to raise wages, put up beautiful structures in every town for stations, to reduce hours of labor, to pay all taxes on road improvements and to make them liable for damages."

DRY AGENTS TO HUNT RUM NIGHT AND DAY

New Platoon System Will Insure Activity at All Hours—Special Squad for Cabarets.

WILL WORK LATE AT NIGHT

Prohibition officials yesterday announced the inauguration of a new policy in the enforcement of the prohibition law which they believe will materially decrease the number of violations. Agents will be assigned certain periods of the day and night instead of having all on duty at the same time. Theoretically the agents are on duty all the time, but practically they usually put in about eight hours and these are generally in the daytime.

The most important shift under the new arrangement, as viewed by prohibition officials, is the one that begins operations at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and ends sometime after 1 o'clock in the morning, because it is during these hours that the greatest number of violations occur, they consider. Especially is this true of the district where the cabarets and restaurants do virtually all their business between these hours. The new policy contemplates special attention to the Broadway district, it was understood.

Three of the most experienced sleuths of the local unit were assigned last night to visit the cabarets, but no arrests had been reported up to a late hour.

Other capable and trusty men were assigned to the other districts, including the waterfront. One squad was sent out especially to run down those persons who illegally transport liquor.

The new policy provides for an ample force at work on Sundays. The Sunday work was inaugurated by Ralph A. Day, during his term as Director, but ceased when he went out of office on Dec. 1.

Fifty-seven barrels of wine, valued at $10,000 to $15,000, were seized yesterday afternoon in a garage at 424 East 118th Street by Federal Prohibition Agents Charles Guttman, Harry Drescher and Peter Reager. Luigi Isrvolino, alleged to be the owner of the wine, was arrested. The agents said that Isrvolino had a complete winery in operation on the premises, including wine presses and several barrels of mash.

Investigation by detectives of a complaint that a sour liquid trickled through the ceiling and did $5,000 damage to the clothing store of Harry Gassman, 422 Stone Avenue, led to the discovery yesterday of three small stills in operation on a floor above. The drainage pipes had become clogged up by waste material from distilling operations. The detectives arrested Philip Colas, Mrs. Mary Kolesnick and Mrs. Pauline Tetrow, occupying apartments 6, 7 and 8 in the building. The stills, 15 barrels of mash and some alcohol were confiscated.

Reports yesterday from Atlantic Highlands indicated that the rum fleet anchored off the Jersey coast had been scattered by the rough seas.

Banks in the towns and cities along the Jersey coast have sent out warnings to their depositors to be on the lookout for counterfeit greenbacks that are supposed to be put in circulation by bootleggers. It was reported that one of the skippers of a steamer in the Bahama rum-running trade was recently stung to the tune of $100,000. The counterfeit money was all in $1,000 bills. The other day at Anglesea, a merchant was approached and offered $200 worth of the counterfeit money for $35. He made a report of the offer to the Federal authorities.

The Federal Council of Churches, with headquarters in Washington, issued a statement here yesterday announcing that the Protestant churches of America, as represented by the council, stood flatfootedly against any change in the prohibition laws to admit the use of light wines and beer.

"The people of the United States adopted national constitutional prohibition after generations of agitation and education and with a larger majority than any other amendment to the Constitution," the statement said. "After three years it is demonstrated that prohibition has produced wide benefits, despite difficulties in enforcement and constant misrepresentation.

"We call upon the Christian citizens of the nation to sustain the expressed purpose of the Federal Government to enforce the law; to report violations of it to the proper officials as is their duty, so declared by the United States Supreme Court, and to support all local, State and Federal officers who obey and effectively enforce this law in accordance with their oath of office.

JOHNSON WARNS U. S. TO STAY OUT OF WORLD COURT

Would Be the First False Step Toward Entering League, Senator Asserts.

HE POINTS TO THE RUHR

Declares That the Appeals Made in the Name of Humanity Are Hollow.

ASSAILS THE PROPAGANDISTS

They Have Been Keeping It Up Since 1920, He Tells Bronx Board of Trade.

Senator Hiram L. Johnson of California warned against America's entrance in the international court of the League of Nations at the twenty-ninth annual dinner of the Bronx Board of Trade at the Hotel Astor last night. He said the agitation to have America enter the court was merely as part of foreign propaganda, and that America would do well to keep clear of it. The court, he said, was supposed to be a part of the League, and yet it was no part at all. He said the appeal to have America join was being put forward in the form of an appeal to humanity.

"When you look about and understand what is happening in the Moselle and know what is transpiring in the Ruhr—when you see those things, can't you understand how hollow is the appeal that is made to us to succor humanity and to save civilization by throwing in our fortunes in the European maelstrom?" said Senator Johnson. "Realizing these appeals to be without the foundation that they are, steel your hearts against them. Ah, not against humanity! That isn't our design at all. Not against aiding wherever we may aid, but against taking this great nation as a nation of yours and putting that nation at the mercy of any one or any number of European nations in any organization of any kind or character whatsoever.

"It is this we seek to save this country from. All the appeals that are made now are to join an international court of the League of Nations, and to say when we join it that we are not part of the League—do you realize what that means? The court is a part of the League of Nations; we are going to join the court, a part of the League of Nations, and they say then that we are no part of the League of Nations at all. We are going to be a part of a part of the League of Nations, but no part of the League of Nations at all. That is what is asked of us and then the same snares are used.

Rule of Law Promised.

"The rule of law shall take the place of the rule of force. Logically, it is asserted, peace shall take the place of force, of war, and by entering an international court all international questions will be solved; no longer will there be controversies, difficulties, broils or war in all the world.

"Not a bit of it, my friends—not a bit of it. This is no court that they are asking us to join. You understand what a court is; where one suitor may hale another and require that other to have adjudicated before the tribunal the differences between them. That is the court in the ordinary acceptation of the term. This court has no jurisdiction except what the parties choose to give that court. Are you aware of that?

"Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan have already said that they will not submit to any court that has an obligatory or a compulsory jurisdiction at all.

"They have already said that, and we are asked to say the same thing, that we will join this futile organization that has no jurisdiction except that that the parties care to give it. Don't you understand what that sort of court ultimately may be?

"I will concede anything that you wish to say about its benevolent purposes. It has no power, no jurisdiction; it can adjudicate no dispute between nations except what the nations desire to have adjudicated; and it is this body that is described as the instrumentality which will decide all international dis-

Washington Will Not Take Up Controversy; Wilson Officials Think Harvey Stated Facts

WASHINGTON, March 8.—State Department officials declined to comment tonight on the speech of Lord Balfour in the House of Lords in which the controversy between himself and Ambassador Harvey was revived.

It was said that this Government regretted the incident, but since Ambassador Harvey was not acting on instructions, the State Department did not believe that the dispute was a matter of concern to this Government. It was explained that Ambassador Harvey in his speech had made an assertion and that the truth of his declaration rested between himself and Lord Balfour.

Officials connected with the Wilson Administration who were in position to know as to the conversation had when the loans were arranged with foreign Governments, expressed the belief that this Government never expected Great Britain to assume responsibility for the payment of money loaned to other countries. In other words, there is a strong presumption on the part of Democratic officials that Ambassador Harvey spoke the truth when in effect he said that the United States, when the negotiations for the loans were in progress, never insisted that Great Britain should guarantee the loans made to her allies by this country.

REAL DIFFERENCE 'DEEPER'

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 8.—Lord Balfour replied this afternoon in the House of Lords to Ambassador Harvey's attack at the Pilgrim's dinner last week on the accuracy of the way in which the famous Balfour note discussed the British indebtedness to the United States. The Ambassador said he did not doubt that the British Government would with equal formality and with no less explicitness remove the misapprehension caused by the Balfour note.

The British Government has taken no notice of Ambassador Harvey's remarks, but Lord Balfour, who now occupies an official position, took up the cudgels in behalf of his own note. He said:

"It may be in your recollection that when I was in an official position I wrote on behalf of the late Government a paper dealing with the most difficult, most dangerous and most anxious question of international indebtedness, created some controversy in which I took no part, and certainly thought little about, as with the settlement of this question, changes of supreme importance have taken place since the end of last year, the matter might well have been allowed to rest. But I think your Lordships will agree with me that when so important a personage, a statesman as highly placed in an official position of such special importance in this connection as that of the Ambassador to the United States, has declared that a statement made by me in this despatch is misleading and when he publicly advises the British Government formally and explicitly to remove the misapprehension which that statement to me has occasioned, silence on my part would probably lead to misunderstanding.

Passage of the Note in Dispute.

"Now, the sentence complained of occurs in the following passage of the original note. There is a paragraph in the note to this effect: 'It should not be forgotten, though it sometimes is, that our liabilities were incurred for others, not for ourselves.' That refers, of course, to our debt to America. For that alone. Food, raw materials and munitions required by the immense naval and military efforts of Great Britain and half of the £2,000,000,000 advanced to the Allies were provided, not by means of foreign loans, but by internal borrowing and by taxation. An appeal was therefore made to the Government of the United States of America, and under the arrangement then arrived at the United States of America insisted in substance if not in form, that those of our Allies were to spend the money it was only on our security that they were prepared to lend it. This consideration was of infinite value to the common cause, but it cannot be said that the role assigned in it to the United States was one of special privilege or advantage.

"That is the whole of the passage which the extreme complainant of you. The actual sentence which the Ambassador complained of runs as follows: 'Under the arrangement arrived at the United States insisted, in substance if not in form, that though our Allies were to spend the money it was only on our security that they were to lend it.' I am unable myself to find in these words anything misleading or obscure.

"It is perfectly true that this is very compressed and that without burdening all the circumstances of the case their full import may not be very easy to determine. But I do not think it deserve the strictures passed upon it by his Excellency.

How the Debts Were Created.

"The essential facts of the case are as follows: Up to America's entry into the war the burden of financing the Allies which could not themselves finance themselves fell mainly, though not wholly, upon this country, and the most anxious and difficult part of our financial policy in those early years of the war was that of finding dollars in America wherewith to pay American producers for the war material furnished by ourselves and our friends. Of course, this state of things was changed by America's entry into the war, but belligerency, which changed so much, naturally could not diminish the debt already made for Americans was indebted to Europe. But through the operation of the loans it most undoubtedly did lessen most materially the difficulty of finding for this war material.

"Now, the way the arrangement was made in essence: The American Government borrowed in America, of these internal loans the proceeds

BRITISH SAVE £8,000,000

Paris Chamber Is Informed Government Plans to Move Soon for Ratification of Agreement.

PARIS, March 8 (Associated Press).—The Government's naval program was introduced in the Chamber of Deputies today by Minister of Marine Raiberti with the remark that the program "was conceived within the framework of the Washington accords, so that the Government cannot give stronger proof of its intention to obtain their ratification."

"The program," continued the Minister, "does not fix the number of units, as that may vary with the needs of the national defense, but it fixes the tonnage for each category.

"For battleships it provides for 175,000 tons, but the preamble explains that the Government has no intention of constructing to that extent at present, for these reasons:

"First, the type of capital ship has not been settled upon.

"Secondly, the fleet must be in accord with our financial means, and France has not the means to construct a fleet of capital ships and a fleet of light units. We must choose, and we have chosen the latter.

"Thirdly, the fleet must be in keeping with the country's policy. France's policy is pacific, and therefore she needs a fleet assuring the defense of the coast and the protection of maritime communications. We need light cruisers, torpedo boat destroyers and submarines. Only unforeseen circumstances will cause us to consider building battleships."

The treaties signed at Washington and naval questions in general, were the main topics discussed by the Chamber during debate on the proposed closing of certain arsenals. A Deputy having questioned the advisability of closing a naval establishment at a time when, he said, the existence of the Entente might be endangered, M. Raiberti replied:

"The Entente cannot be endangered, as it corresponds with the permanent interests of the two countries.

"We are not obliged to share your optimism," replied Deputy Locquin.

"Furthermore, the Washington accords have not yet been ratified, and nevertheless we are engaged in the direction of limitation of armaments."

The Minister of Marine reiterated that the Government intended that the

NEWCASTLE CHARGES CONCOCTED, M.P. SAYS

DOCUMENTS ARE GIVEN OUT

Curzon Stands on Sovereign Right—Hughes Says Publicity Involved Need of Proof.

LONDON, March 8 (Associated Press).—David Adams, Labor member of Parliament for the Western Division of Newcastle and also a prominent shipowner, said today that he had personal knowledge that the charges against the former American consular officials at Newcastle were "trumped up" on behalf of a certain British steamship line and that he was finally convinced that the British Government was unable to substantiate a single allegation which formed the basis of its action in withdrawing the exequaturs of the officials.

"I have personal knowledge," Mr. Adams said, "that a certain British steamship company sent men to the Newcastle consulate who attempted again and again, as bona fide travelers, to inveigle both the Consul and the Vice Consul into refusing to grant visas unless they traveled by American lines.

"In every case, according to the evidence I have been able to get, they were unable so to persuade either the Consul or the Vice Consul."

Mr. Adams ridiculed the Government for submitting unsigned affidavits as evidence to prove its allegations, saying:

"Such documents would not be considered evidence in any country of the civilized world. If there were really thirty or forty individual cases of unfair discrimination, as the Government claims, surely there could be found a few persons of that number willing to have their names used if they were disinterested travelers."

Documents Show Wide Rift.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Both the British and American Governments helped to clear up the dispute over the Newcastle consulate by making public tonight a number of documents in the case.

The British Embassy, by direction of the London Foreign Office, acted first. It gave out an explanatory statement and the text of Lord Curson's note to the United States Government on the case, dated Dec. 27 last. The State Department followed this by making public all of the American communications on the subject.

As some of the British communications are still withheld, the documentary evidence shows considerable gaps, but enough is made known to disclose clearly the positions of the two Governments.

Lord Curson summarizes his stand by holding in his note that Great Britain acted within its sovereign rights and that in furnishing to the United States Government the reasons for withdrawing the exequaturs of the American Consular officials at Newcastle, his Government "was not inviting a discussion of the grounds on which this decision was taken." He says that in giving these reasons Great Britain was complying with Article 4 of the commercial convention of 1815 between Britain and the United States. This article provides that the "offended" Government shall assign to the other Government its reasons in withdrawing the recognition of a consular officer.

The reasons, the note insists, are not to be subjected to a legal test, but are merely to be taken as supplying the Government, whose officials have offended, with the causes which lead to the action.

It was in response to this final note of Lord Curzon that Secretary Hughes notified Great Britain that this Government had issued orders to close the consulate at Newcastle. This action, it was announced on March 1, was taken after full investigation by the American Government of the charges made against Fred C. Slater and Russell M. Brooks, Consul and Vice Consul at Newcastle, that they had interfered with visas and

Lady Astor Dines King and Labor Members; Makes Sport of Latter in Knee Breeches

LONDON, March 8 (Associated Press).—The King and Queen for the first time in their lives broke bread with the Labor members of Parliament tonight in the home of one of their subjects. The occasion was a dinner given by Viscount and Lady Astor, at which their Majesties met, among others, James Henry Thomas, General Secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, John Robert Clynes, President of the National Union of General Workers and former Labor leader in the House, and Philip Snowden, and their wives.

Labor came in silken knee breeches, which was loosely described as a concession, and there were also present those who wear the cherished garters—Balfour, Salisbury and Grey of Falloden.

The affair, which was unique in British social history, was arranged as much to permit the King and Queen to meet in social intercourse with the Laborites as to allow the Laborites to come into social contact with their rulers. It was said that the King had made known his desire to meet the leaders of the Labor Party in such a manner.

Lady Astor, whose campaign for political honors was characterized by much banter, greeted the Laborites when they appeared in knee breeches with joking remarks. She whispered: "Pull up your stockings" in the ear of Mr. Thomas and inquired of the Canadian High Commissioner, Mr. Larkin, if his stockings were on straight.

The American Ambassador escaped remarks on his black knickerbockers, because he has frequently appeared in them and has become a familiar figure in the customary Court dress.

Before the arrival of the King and Queen, Lady Astor was heard jokingly telling the Laborites how to receive his Majesty, advising them to say "Yes, sir" and "No, sir," not "Yes, your Majesty" and "No, your Majesty."

Viscount Astor escorted the Queen to the banquet hall, while Lady Astor entered on the arm of the King. Once she looked back and urged her guests to hurry, for the Labor members were apparently expecting that the usual precedence by rank would be in order, while the others of the nobility seemed anxious to hold back.

The guests sat at two large round tables amid the fragrance of pink tulips and other blossoms. The diners included, in addition to those mentioned, Premier Bonar Law, the Marquis and Marchioness of Salisbury, the Speaker and Mrs. Whitley, Lady Frances Balfour, Lord and Lady Eustace Percy, Viscount and Lady Grey of Falloden, Lord Robert Cecil, Lord and Lady Islington, Dame Lyttleton, Mrs. Lloyd George, Sir John and Lady Simon, the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress of Plymouth, Colonel and Mrs. Spender-Clay and Mrs. Margaret Wintringham, M. P.

J. Ramsay Macdonald, Labor leader in the House of Commons; John Robert Clynes, Philip Snowden and James Henry Thomas have accepted invitations to dine with the King and Queen at Buckingham Palace on March 16, according to The Daily Herald, the labor organ, and a number of Labor leaders of Parliament will attend the afternoon party at Buckingham Palace on March 16.

...ambassador and myself on this subject than any mere criticism or rejoinder in regard to one particular phrase in the original document would lead one to expect. Differences, perhaps, go deeper. The American Ambassador as I understand it, regards the financial arrangements between partners in the great war as so many isolated undertakings to be separately considered and carried through on each occasion as it offers. Not only is this policy in his view necessary if the sanctity of contract is to be maintained, but he thinks it will confer an actual benefit on the debtor himself by improving his general credit.

"I am myself inclined to a somewhat less commercial view. The extraordinary circumstances, and the magnificent scale of the co-operative effort made by the allied and associated peoples, each contributing to the utmost to an enterprise in which all stakes were entered, might seem to remove their financial arrangements into the sphere where ordinary categories of debtor and creditor which still are valid can hardly be deemed to be sufficient. Both views may be held by honorable men. I do not propose to compare them, still less to criticise those who differ from me, but one final observation I will make on this matter. If, as I suppose, it is the first of these competing views which commends itself to public opinion in the United States, the unconditional and incontestable legal rights of that country could not have been enforced in a manner less likely to injure the happy relations which I am glad to say prevail between the two peoples."

Regrets Balfour Replied.

The only newspaper to comment editorially on Lord Balfour's statement this morning is The Morning Post, which says:

"Stripped of the hesitating language which the rules of international courtesy dictate, Lord Balfour tells the United States in so many words that the debt whose funding they have arranged with the generous common sense of shrewd business men is not a debt in the ordinary sense of the word, as it was contracted for purposes necessary to winning the war to which all the Allies, including the United States, were resolutely pledged. In putting forward this view Lord Balfour is undoubtedly expressing the general opinion of this country. The British people were determined to win the war, and they realized from the beginning that nations like France, which poured forth the treasure of their best blood so fearlessly and generously, could not be expected to furnish, in addition, the money and material which were so urgently necessary. The British people gave men and money in almost equal measure for the cause which involved the very existence and the future of that civilization which is held so dear on both sides of the Atlantic.

"Accordingly, at the conclusion of the war, there was a strong feeling that all those interallied debts ought to be wiped out. The United States, however, took a different standpoint, and as the British people were informed that that standpoint was the considered and final opinion of the whole American continent, there was only one thing to do and that was to pay.

"The British people are paying, and being not only conscientious but business-like debtors, they prefer to pay without discussing the ethical and idealistic conceptions with conscientious and business-like creditors.

"We therefore regret that Lord Balfour should have raised this issue in the House of Lords yesterday. When Mr. Baldwin made his final bargain on his return to this country the whole matter of the American debt was settled. The Americans wish to be paid, and they are being paid, and that is the end of the whole business.

"Nothing could be more wearisome to the present temper of the people of this country than entering into a dialectical argument with the American people concerning the ethics of a debt collecting transaction. Lord Balfour then, in our opinion, is serving no useful purpose by again raising this issue from the grave in which that sage gravedigger of unnecessary controversies, Mr. Baldwin, recently interred it."

The Daily Chronicle's parliamentary correspondent states that Lord Balfour had his reply to Ambassador Harvey written and adds:

"He read it with deliberation and with occasional infliction and asperity. In fact, it was plain that the noble Earl was very indignant with his critic."

Speech Received Without Comment.

LONDON, March 8 (Associated Press).—The Earl of Balfour today delivered his reply to the strictures Ambassador Harvey passed on his famous note to the Allies on the subject of interallied debts in the calm and almost unmoved demeanor customary in the House of Lords, which was not even crowded to hear his explanation, and when his statement ended none of the peers offered any comment, and the House straightway adjourned.

Lord Balfour, abandoning his custom of speaking extempore, took his usual care in the explanation, fortifying himself with copious notes and thus signalizing his recognition of the delicacy of the case confronting him, and, as is also usual with him, he dealt gracefully and decently with the subject, to order to leave no rankling behind.

The political writers of the newspapers in their Parliamentary summaries throw sidelights on the impression produced on Lord Balfour's hearers in the House of Lords.

The (London) Times correspondent describes the speech as "a polite castigation" of Ambassador Harvey.

The Daily Chronicle declares it was plain that Lord Balfour's protest was as much against the belated character of the Ambassador's criticism as its purport.

The Westminster Gazette asserts that Lord Balfour's tone was censorious, that he was distinctly annoyed, and that his reply to Ambassador Harvey was "a lecture on international morality."

REPORT HAMM STATION OCCUPIED BY FRENCH

Berlin Also Hears They Are Marching on a Suburb of Mannheim.

BERLIN, March 8 (Associated Press).—The newspaper Germania reports that the French have occupied the railway station of Hamm, an important junction on the main railroad line between Essen and Berlin.

A dispatch from Mannheim reports that the French have occupied Rheinau Harbor, on the Rhine in Lower Alsace, and are marching on Rheinau, which is a suburb of Mannheim. It is also reported that the French have occupied the railway station of Dernap, near Elberfeld.

A telegram from Dortmund states that the French re-entered that city this morning, surrounding a schoolhouse and disarming the police who were quartered there. The force was removed to an unknown destination. The French allowed the patrolmen to take their belongings with them, while the officers were permitted to retain their swords. The town hall was later occupied. Units from Dorstfeld and Herten were used in the operation.

According to the Berlin newspapers, all the German trade unions in the Ruhr have refused the demand of the occupation authorities to hand over to them a list of the trades union memberships.

Essen and Duisburg have been isolated from rail communication with the rest of the Ruhr, the Berliner Tageblatt says. The railway station at Langendreer, one of the largest switching points in the Ruhr, a few miles east of Bochum, has been occupied, as well as that of Wattenscheid to the west of Bochum, and the railroad line from Dortmund to Bochum to Essen is completely blocked.

German press reports from Langendreer say the French recently forced 200 children en route from Bochum to Bremen, to leave their train at Langendreer and walk back to Bochum in a driving rain, despite the protests of the chaperons that the party were comprised of sick and undernourished children who were on their way to the country to recuperate.

ESSEN, March 8 (Associated Press). The disarming and expulsion of the Security Police at Dortmund today completes the disarmament and dissolution of the police bodies throughout the Ruhr. Only certain towns now have civic police, who are virtually mere watchmen.

LONDON, March 8 (Associated Press).—Gloomy pictures of the situation in the Ruhr, with warnings of an impending crisis, are painted today by some of the London newspaper correspondents.

A Duesseldorf dispatch to The Telegraph says that unemployment is increasing and that the political situation is dangerous. Economic conditions he describes as disastrous, asserting that 25,000 persons are without work in Duesseldorf alone and that the unemployment wages are insufficient. The workmen are noticeably depressed, the correspondent adds, and rumors are current that they are beginning to doubt the issue of the struggle.

The French, this dispatch asserts, are preparing to deal with the food problem which will undoubtedly arise with the increase of unemployment. Their soup kitchens, boycotted at first, are now popular.

The Cologne correspondent of The Daily Express reports that conditions in Essen and Bochum are pitiful and that the death rate among the children has risen 20 per cent. in the last month and milk is almost unobtainable. The phrase, "hunger blockade," is on the lips of the whole German population.

The French military authorities have given definite orders to admit all foodstuffs to the cities, but some of the trucks never arrive and part of the shipments is stolen.

Edition, the correspondent adds, is at a standstill, for the French have occupied the schools. The passing of each day finds public feeling more embittered.

The impression that "the cauldron in the Ruhr may boil over at any time with fearful results in bloodshed," is expressed by the Cologne representative of The Westminster Gazette. He continues:

"It is the opinion of those best able to judge that unless an agreement is soon reached it can only be a matter of time before another war breaks out.

"I am told that France would not hesitate to declare war and bomb the German cities, including Berlin, if her forces are attacked."

The correspondent adds that it is only fair to point out that many reports of this character may be traced to German sources. He asserts that the difficulty of obtaining reliable information because of the severance of communication is being constantly emphasized.

In this connection, the Cologne correspondent of The Express says it is impossible to verify some of the stories in circulation and that rumors much more serious than the facts warrant are rife.

FORTY BELGIAN REDS SEIZED AS PLOTTERS

Agitators Against Ruhr Occupation Are Accused of Treason to the State.

BRUSSELS, March 8 (Associated Press). — Warrants were issued today for forty Belgian Communists who, according to the public prosecutor, have been engaged in a plot to foment strikes and promote agitation against the occupation of the Ruhr. A number of arrests were made.

According to the prosecutor documents seized at the homes of the suspects proved that the movement was directed from Berlin and that the Belgian Communist Party had been in constant communication with the German organization, to which it furnished detailed information regarding the Belgian military movements.

The Communists arrested under today's warrants will be prosecuted on charges of plotting against the safety of the State. The authorities declare their investigation revealed an organization with ramifications in several of the allied countries to provoke political agitation.

Among the persons arrested were several who were identified with the recent strike of Belgian miners.

FAILED TO GET RUHR MINERS

Plan to Export American Negroes Dropped, Detective Dougherty Says.

The plan to export American negro coal miners to the Ruhr has been abandoned by the Dougherty Detective Agency, said Harry V. Dougherty yesterday. The plan was scrapped, he said, because few negro coal miners could be found in this country who were willing to undertake the trip to the Ruhr in order to assist France to exploit the German mines. Union agitators also interfered, he said.

The Royal Mail Steam Packet Company officially denied yesterday the report that arrangements had been made to transport on the Orduna a contingent of American negro miners to work in the Ruhr coal mines. It stated that the steamship company had not been approached in the matter.

FRENCH JURISTS ANSWER FINNS

Begin With a Reproach for the Finnish Protest Against the Ruhr Occupation.

THEN DISCUSS LEGAL PHASE

Insist That France Is Acting Well Within Her Rights and Challenge Contradiction.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 8.—A group of jurists in Finland having issued a protest against the occupation of the Ruhr, a committee of French jurists composed of M. Pellet, professor of international law of the Faculty of Paris; Barthelemy, dean of law at the Faculty of Paris, and Maestre, Rolland and Gidel, professors of the Faculty of Paris, have replied as follows:

"Finland jurists have thought it their duty to protest against the occupation of the Ruhr. They criticise the convictions pronounced by our military courts against Germans refusing to obey the French authorities. They compare the situation of Germany with regard to France with the position Finland held with regard to Russia.

"The sympathy shown by the Finns for Germany—aggressive yesterday and today seeking bankruptcy—surprises us and pains us.

"It pains us in showing that the signatories of the protest have forgotten the unanimous support formerly given to their country by French jurists when France was a friend of the Czar and an ally of Russia. It surprises us because no analogy exists between Finland complaining of abuse of authority by her sovereign and Germany dodging the legitimate demands of her creditor, France.

"Since it is the ground of international law they have chosen let us consider the situation.

"Germany attacked France and systematically destroyed her richest provinces. Beaten, she asked for peace and obtained it in return for a promise of reparation for the devastations she committed. She refuses today to fulfil her engagement.

"It is not doubtful that in presence of this fact France had a right to occupy as a guarantee and to force Germany to keep her word any part whatever of German territory—the Ruhr basin for example.

"This right of ours reposes upon the clearest principles of law and upon constant tradition. It is certain that when a creditor has no other means to compel payment he can seize property of the debtor and that his action remains entirely legitimate as long as it tends to no other purpose than payment of a debt. Practice confirms this principle and in numerous cases powers have had recourse either to occupation or the seizure of customs to coerce a debtor of bad faith.

"In the particular case which interests us the right of France is derived from Article 248 of the treaty, which, conferring upon her a first lien on the property and resources of the German Empire, bestows on her the sole means of enforcing her claim, namely, seizure of the property upon which she has a mortgage.

"As for the convictions which are the direct object of the protest on the part of the jurists of Finland, we observe that an army which occupies territory has a right to defend itself and condemn by court-martial those who try to imperil its safety, even by indirect action.

"This principle has the same value in time of peace as in time of war. The only difference consists in that when occupation takes place in time of peace it is the usage of the occupying powers to leave the local authorities in office, provided, of course, they do not hamper the occupying power. If these magistrates or officials disobey orders of the civil or military authorities, or if they permit themselves to hamper in any fashion or means the action of the occupying power, there can be no doubt these persons may be legitimately tried and punished.

"Is it not that international law? If not, what is international law?"

POINCARE ANSWERS ASSERTIONS OF GERMANS

Calls Absurd Their Contention Regarding Penalties for Failure to Deliver Coal.

PARIS, March 8 (Associated Press).—Premier Poincaré, replying tonight to a memorandum distributed to the diplomatic corps by Germany on Feb. 15, issued a long statement in which he says it is absurd for the Germans to pretend that the Allies could only demand additional cash as penalty for the non-delivery of lumber and coal, since Germany at the same time was declaring to the Reparation Commission that she could pay no cash at all.

As to the German contention that, in any case, the Allies were not warranted in occupying more German territory, M. Poincaré recalls that the protocol of Spa, in which is recorded the agreement with the Germans regarding coal deliveries, contained a statement to the effect that if the quantities provided for were not delivered within the dates mentioned the Allies could proceed to the occupation of a new part of German territory, either in the Ruhr or elsewhere. M. Poincaré observes that the Germans did not protest against this provision.

To the German contention that the word "respective" in Article XVIII. of the Treaty of Versailles does not mean that any one of the Allies has the right to act independently in the application of penalties, M. Poincaré says the Germans already have profited from an interpretation of that clause which was contrary to their own interpretation. He refers to the case of Great Britain's separate action in renouncing rights under Article XVIII. in so far as they concerned property of German nationals seized.

The Premier defends the expulsion of German functionaries in occupied territory on the ground of resistance to the application of measures provided for in the Treaty of Versailles, and in answer to the contention that occupation of the towns of Offenburg and Appenweier, in the Grand Duchy of Baden, was unjustified, recalls that the Versailles treaty obliged Germany to facilitate the maintenance of international passenger trains passing those points, and that Germany suppressed them, thereby necessitating the occupation of the towns.

DENIES CUNO'S CHARGES.

Gen. Degoutte Says No One in Ruhr Has Been Ill-Treated.

DUESSELDORF, March 8 (Associated Press).—France will not release her present hold on the Ruhr. This is the reply of General Degoutte, the French commander, made in a statement tonight to the newspaper men in answer to Chancellor Cuno's address before the Reichstag on Monday. German resistance, General Degoutte declared, had only fortified France in her struggle in the Ruhr, and he predicted that shortly the French and Belgian economic blockade would begin to bear fruit.

"The object and resolve of France's policy in the Ruhr was not changed," said General Degoutte. "We entered the Ruhr to compel Germany to honor her obligations, as the Cuno Government had come into open revolt. The struggle on this account had assumed a character we have not desired, and we cannot be held responsible for the outcome. We could not mildly overlook acts of rebellion and open defiance, for our security was at stake. However, we have not molested nor ill-treated anybody here.

"We now have been in the Ruhr for eight weeks, and it cannot be denied, I think, by the German leaders that incidents between the troops and the inhabitants have been confined to a strict minimum. If the Berlin Cabinet had hoped to provoke serious trouble, it has been deceived.

"German propaganda describes us as tyrants and executioners. Some of these stories have been so exaggerated as to be amusing. It is so easy to invent.

"In his Reichstag speech Chancellor Cuno referred to the Recklinghausen incident, where it was alleged French officers entered a theatre with horsewhips and chased out the civilians. Now, the officers in question have given their word of honor that this story is absolutely false.

"The struggle in which we are engaged is an economic one, limited to certain products and certain individuals who are the holders of Germany's wealth. As for us, there is one thing they shall be certain of—we shall not relinquish our grip. The result of Germany's resistance has been to strengthen the will of France to continue the struggle to the end.

"There is not a man in France who does not feel that the future of his country, the future of Europe, is at stake in the Ruhr. This is a moment that if France lost ground here it would be a triumph for German nationalism. It would mean the entry into power of the partisans of the old régime and revenge, the end of the German republic. The pretended French militarism, which some denounce obstinately, is defending here in reality the cause of democracy and the peace of Europe."

DEFENDS BLACK TROOPS.

Poincare Calls German Campaign Against Them Odious.

PARIS, March 8 (Associated Press).—Premier Poincaré has addressed a letter to Gratier Candace, a colored member of the Chamber of Deputies from the Island of Guadeloupe, replying to the Deputy's announcement that he purposed to question the Premier in the Chamber concerning the withdrawal from the Ruhr of 200 colored soldiers coming from Martinique and Guadeloupe.

M. Candace said statements published regarding the withdrawal permitted the inference that the removal of the troops was ordered in consequence of the abominable German campaign against troops of color, notwithstanding the straightforward and unexceptionable testimony in their favor from Americans, such as Major Gen. Henry T. Allen and Colonel Coleman, after a searching investigation.

"It is easy to understand the reasons for the odious campaign of the German Government against our black troops," says M. Poincaré's letter. "They wish to restrict France's military resources to the homeland, thus ensuring forever the numerical superiority of the Reich. But France's boundaries extend to wherever our flag flies.

"We shall never cease to claim before the world the right to incorporate in our divisions, in peace as in war, Colonial and European contingents. If the Government has persisted not to employ black troops in the Ruhr, it was because it was judged to be wiser not to furnish any pretext for propaganda, which unfortunately has penetrated even among friendly peoples."

OFFER REWARD TO CLIPPERS.

French Jail German Who Claimed Money for Cutting Girl's Tresses.

BOCHUM, March 8 (Associated Press).—A bonus of 200,000 marks has been offered by the German Nationalist Party to every member of the "Scissors Club" who cuts the hair of any German girl caught associating with a Frenchman.

One German here who claim this reward was caught by the French and sentenced by a military court to serve six days in jail.

BIG FRENCH LOAN TO BALANCE BUDGET

PARIS, March 8 (Associated Press).—The Chamber of Deputies today authorized Finance Minister de Lasteyrie to balance the budget by the issuance of Treasury bonds to the approximate amount of 1,400,000,000 francs.

It will be remembered that the budget was sent to the Senate with a deficit of something like 4,000,000,000 francs, and that the Upper House returned it to the Chamber with the remark that it preferred not to take up the budget until it was balanced, the Chamber then took the ground that it was for the Government to propose means for raising the necessary money.

Finance Minister de Lasteyrie later introduced a bill increasing direct taxes to produce the needed sum. No party in the Chamber, however, desired to take the responsibility of increasing the people's tax burden, in view of the elections next year.

While a confused discussion of the situation was going on today, M. Brousse took the floor and proposed that the sum needed, which was estimated at about 1,400,000,000 francs, be raised by the issue of Treasury bonds. The Chamber immediately adopted this proposal.

The Government has accepted the plan on the understanding that the Minister of Finance shall be free to decide in what form the bonds shall be issued. The proposed lotteries, rejected for budget purposes, will come up for consideration for the raising of money to be used in the reconstruction of Northern France.

BRITAIN COMPLAINS OF COLOGNE BARRIER

tively, assisting the French in the Ruhr operation and all its dependent schemes of Rhineland control, which the British representative on the Rhineland Commission has never sanctioned. There exists considerable doubt as to the legal right of the Rhineland Commission to decide by a majority such action as handing over to the French towns beyond the bridgehead limit which cut off the bridgehead from direct communication with Germany and this is one of the points on which Lord Kilmarnock, the British representative on the commission, is at present consulting his Government.

The curious unsatisfactory incident has occurred that several letters addressed to British officials in the bridgehead have been opened, it is stated, by the French censor, and among them was one to Lady Kilmarnock. Such action, it is pleaded, is inadvertent, but in view of the fact that it has always been declared that no press censorship exists it is significant that the military censorship of private correspondence is being carried so far.

The French are constantly complaining that their dependence upon the German telephone and telegraph system at Cologne hampers all their communications. They complain of sabotage at Cologne and are pressing the British to take measures to clear out the Germans from the telegraph and telephone services. Actually for every one except the French, Cologne is now the only means of communication with the outside world. Almost all other telegraph and telephone offices in the occupied district have been closed. To telegraph from Duesseldorf it is necessary to make a fifteen-mile journey.

FRENCHMEN NAMED IN BAVARIAN PLOT

TWO MORE ARE ARRESTED

BERLIN, March 8.—All the organs of the Extreme Right represent the Munich monarchist conspiracy as the work of muddleheads who cannot be taken seriously. There is a shrouding of the proceedings against the plotters and their names are kept in absolute secrecy.

Some of the Republican papers today name former Prime Minister von Kahr as Dr. Kuehlen's protector. Ludendorff and Ehrhardt are also mentioned as having been associated with the plotters.

An evening paper states that the conspirators were advised by former French Ministers Alize and Dard, who had in view the separating of Bavaria from North Germany and the forming of a South German federation including Austria. Unknown to the two French diplomats, it is said, Kuehlen and Fuchs informed the monarchists of Munich, who, it is believed, intended to use the movement thus launched for their own counter-revolutionary purposes if the developments should be favorable.

The Munich Post today reports the resignation of von Kahr from the Chairmanship of the so-called Patriotic League, evidently seeking to give the impression that he disapproves their "Putsch" plans.

Wanted Bavaria Neutralized.

BERLIN, March 8 (Associated Press).—An official dispatch received from Munich denies that Count Bothmer, former President of the Bavarian Royalist Party, was arrested in Munich Wednesday when fifteen other persons were taken into custody in connection with an alleged plan to carry out a coup d'état. The dispatch says it is also untrue that the conspirators were endeavoring to separate Bavaria from the Reich with the support of a hostile power.

"It is true," the dispatch continues, "they had contact with nationals of such a power, apparently regarding the neutralization of Bavaria in the event of Northern Germany turning Bolshevist."

The message concluded by asserting that no important person or organization was behind the proposed "Putsch."

Blindfolded at Meetings.

BERLIN, March 8.—Two more arrests were made by the Munich police today as further evidence discloses the details of a monarchist plot. The seriousness of the affair, which has been carried down by the Bavarian Government, no longer is open to doubt.

Those arrested were Professor Ruge of Heidelberg, well known as an organizer of guerilla bands in Upper Silesia, and former Captain Meyer, a member of the Bavarian Government Secret Service. Captain Meyer acted as organizer of the meetings at which the details of the plot were worked out. The greatest secrecy surrounded the meeting, the participants being brought to the locality with their eyes bandaged. The rendezvous was changed for every meeting.

The police state that it has been proved that a French emissary took part in the meetings and that the plans of the revolters had official French support. The police declare that the French support went to the length of supplying munitions, thirty-five field guns being brought in for a "putsch."

NEW RUSSIAN MONEY TO BE KEPT DOWN

MOSCOW, March 7 (Associated Press).—The Russian money printing presses are to slow down, according to Finance Minister Sokolnikoff, a law is to be proposed limiting the output to 30,000,000 gold rubles monthly. This amount will meet the deficit of the newly prepared 1923 budget, the estimates of expenditures in which are given as 1,1415,000,000 gold rubles and the revenues as 1,056,000,000. Only 230,000,000 rubles will be spent for the army and navy. A strict interpretation of the budget and strict economy will now form the Government's slogan.

Meanwhile the ruble, the value of which recently was multiplied a million times by cutting off six others, seems to be stabilising arpund forty-five to the dollar. American, English and other foreign currency now is plentiful in Russia. A statement of the State Bank shows the bank has on hand foreign currency of a gold value of nearly $5,000,000, while the total gold value in the possession of the bank, not counting Government Treasury reserves, amounts to nearly 88,000,000 gold rubles.

Much American money is arriving in Russia from relatives of Russians. Other Russians with relatives in the United States are being advised by advertisements. "If you have not received dollars from American relatives, why not write and get them?"

ANONYMOUS $525,000 GIFT.

American Relief Administration in Russia Tells of Receipt.

The receipt by the American Relief Administration of an anonymous gift of $525,000 became known yesterday when the organization made public a cable from its Moscow office, stating that the distribution of food and clothing to school teachers and school children under its provisions had been begun. The cable read:

"Distribution to teachers and children of secondary and technical schools of food and packages of clothing from the $525,000 gift of an anonymous donor has been begun here by the American Relief Administration. This represents the largest individual contribution for this purpose yet received.

"In acknowledging the gift, Lunacharsky, Commisar of Education for the Soviet Republic, said: 'Hearty thanks for this consideration of the needs of Soviet Russia, and for the valuable and auspicious assistance that the people of America are rendering.'"

No information of any kind as to the donor of the $525,000 was forthcoming at the New York headquarters of the American Relief Administration, 42 Broadway. The gift was made in two instalments, it was stated, the second being received about two weeks ago. No intimation of the gift has been made public before this time, it was said.

KAISER CAN'T GO TO CORFU.

Dutch Government Denies That Any Request Has Been Made.

THE HAGUE, March 8.—The report that the ex-Kaiser has made a request to reside on his estate in the Island of Corfu is denied by the Dutch Government. Moreover, it is learned, even if the ex-Monarch approached the Government on this question which appears impossible there absolutely is no question of the request being granted. The Dutch Government having given certain pledges to the allied Governments concerning the sojourn of the ex-Kaiser in Holland could under no circumstances allow the ex-Kaiser to leave the country without permission of the allied Governments who, it is known, would not even consider such proposal.

SAYS AMERICA MUST 'SPEAK' IN NEAR EAST

O. J. Sands Declares Our Duty Is to Induce Nations to 'Quit Squabbling.'

ATHENS, March 7.—A group of American bankers and business men, who are delegates to the convention of the International Chamber of Commerce, have spent the past week in studying Near Eastern problems at close range. They are on a Mediterranean cruise aboard the steamship Caronia as a preliminary to attending the Rome congress, and have spent several days in Constantinople and Athens.

The group is headed by Oliver J. Sands, President of the American National Bank of Richmond, Va. Other members are George M. Reynolds, President of the Continental Commercial National Bank of Chicago; Silas H. Strawn, Chairman of Montgomery Ward, Chicago; Frank L. Fay, President of the Greenville Steel Car Company of Pittsburgh.

Before leaving Athens Mr. Sands said:

"The economic and political situation throughout the Near East is a live volcanic whose fires are daily costing countless lives. If people at home think the Near East muddle is clearing they are wrong; it was never more muddled or more critical, and the daily loss of human life is terrible. More than ever, it needs the thoughts and prayers of the Christian peoples who are making efforts for a better world.

"Greek refugees in Constantinople are living and dying under intolerable conditions, while thousands of others on the shores of the Black Sea are suffering a fate of which nobody can speak with certainty or hope. The only assistance now being given these refugees is by the Americans through the Near East Relief, whose work is splendid despite handicaps of political bickering and racial hatred.

"The American people must speak with no divided voice, in the name of humanity. The present situation is unspeakably inhumane. A stable peace must be imposed on this part of the world in the name of fair play. Civilization cannot permit continuance of the present chaos. America's aim in the continuance of her very necessary relief work must be to see that the nations quit squabbling and give the Near East a square deal.

"I cannot speak too highly of the superb effort Greece is making to absorb and care for a million refugees, and it is a great credit to the American people that we have done so much to assist Greece in this work."

CAN'T SNAPSHOT REFUGEES.

American Tourists Prevented by Turks From Photographing Camps.

American tourists on the Mauretania and Caronia, now in Constantinople, have been forbidden by Turkish gendarmes, acting under instructions from the Angora Government, to take photographs of the refugee camps along the Dardanelles and in Black Sea ports, according to a cable received by Near East Relief headquarters here yesterday. Keen disappointment and some indignation were expressed when the order "No cameras" was made known to the tourists, who wished to show the folks back home what were the conditions in the Near East refugee camps.

When the two big tourist ships anchored in the Bosporus, R. C. Jaquith and other American Near East Relief workers went aboard and took some of the passengers on a sight-seeing tour of Constantinople and the bazaars of Stamboul. After a visit to the American colleges and the Near East Relief headquarters, Mr. Jaquith yielded to requests that he show the tourists some of the "starving refugees we hear so much about." Accordingly a special launch was chartered for a twenty-mile trip up the Bosporus.

On the way stops were made for inspection of some of the Near East Relief refugee camps occupied by 30,000 Ottoman Greeks expelled from Anatolia by the Turks. It was here that the Turks forbade the use of cameras.

"The visiting Americans," the cable stated, "were horrified by the desperate plight of these people, who a few short weeks ago were prosperous peasants and tobacco cultivators in Samsun, Trebizond, Sivas and Tokat, and who, but for American aid, would now be left to die. These Greek refugees are now occupying the former homes of the orphan children whom the New East Relief has removed to Greece."

HOOVER SEES END OF AID TO RUSSIA

Economic Assistance Needed, but That Is Outside Province of Relief Board.

Economic aid to Russia is outside the scope of the American Relief Administration, said Secretary of Commerce Herbert C. Hoover, Chairman of the association, after presiding at a conference of New York officers in the Bankers' Club yesterday. He made public a cabled report from Colonel William N. Haskell, in Moscow, a summary of which appeared in yesterday's newspapers.

"If you have not received dollars from American relatives, why not write and get them?"

"Colonel Haskell reports that the Soviet authorities state they are able to provide the necessary relief for adults in the famine area of Russia," said Mr. Hoover. "The American Relief Administration has provided the special foodstuffs, such as milk, fats, &c., required for 3,000,000 children until the next harvest, this being the estimated number in need of such aid. We have also received today a further cable from Colonel Haskell, which he states was approved by Leo Kamenev, Vice President of the Russian Government:

"'What Russia now needs is money or credit against which it can purchase necessities, rehabilitate agriculture, transportation, vital industries and medical institutions on a permanent basis, and destroy the ravages of pests in agricultural areas.'

"Economic reconstruction is outside the province of the American Relief Administration," concluded Mr. Hoover. "This is purely an emergency charitable organization for the amelioration of famine conditions."

Mr. Hoover yesterday presided here at stated meetings of the American Child Health Association and the Educational Foundation of the American Committee for Belgian Relief, of each of which he is Chairman.

WILL STOP SELLING PACKAGES FOR RUSSIA

Relief Administration Says Food Prices Are Now Lower in Russia Than Here.

MOSCOW, March 8 (Associated Press).—The American Relief Administration has announced that, owing to the reduced price of food in Russia and the possibility of affecting money remittances between the United States and Russia, it will end the sale of food and clothing remittances in the United States after March 15, and that there will be no deliveries of such remittances in Russia after June 15.

At the present time the gold value of a food package will purchase more in Russia than in the United States. Grain is almost a drug on the market in some Russian localities, even where there is still some famine, but there is little money with which to buy. The Saratov market quotation on rye is equivalent to 38 kopecks per pood, or about 20 cents per bushel, while wheat flour is only slightly higher.

PARLEYS WITH TURKS SEEM TO BE ASSURED

CONSTANTINOPLE HOPEFUL

Ismet Said to Have "Full Powers" to Continue Negotiations on Disputed Treaty Clauses.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 8.—The French Foreign Office understands that Lord Curzon is willing to resume negotiations with the Turks for the purpose of amending the Lausanne draft of the Near East peace treaty.

Although the British Foreign Minister, leaving Lausanne when Ismet Pasha refused to sign the treaty drafted there, let it be understood that the draft was the last word of the Allies, the French at the time did not subscribe to the refusal to alter the treaty in any way, and it became known yesterday, as soon as the Angora Parliament had declined to take the treaty as it stood, that the French and Italians were ready to renew conversations with Kemal's envoys. If Lord Curzon is also willing to renew negotiations it is practically certain that another effort will soon be made to bring about peace with Turkey.

It is expected that today or tomorrow the Turks will send the Allies a request for the reopening of the Lausanne conference. However, it is not likely that the negotiations will be resumed on the same scale as before. The Allies are expected to ask the Turks to submit in writing their new demands, which will be considered by Premier Poincaré and Lord Curzon in Paris and London, the negotiations at Lausanne being carried on by lesser officials.

There is some doubt as to just what the Turks are demanding. They ask for the postponement of a decision on the economic and financial clauses of the treaty, which naturally cannot be granted offhand without some guarantees. A formal note from Angora, which is expected in a day or so, will probably make their demands clearer.

Ismet Reported to Have "Full Powers."

PARIS, March 8 (Associated Press).—The latest newspaper dispatches from Constantinople declare that the Turkish National Assembly at Angora has given full powers to Ismet Pasha to continue negotiations with the Allies on the financial, economic and juridical peace terms which the Turks have not accepted. The Assembly, it is stated, endorsed the concessions made by Ismet at Lausanne.

A note from Ismet is to be dispatched to the powers some time today, these advices declare. Political circles in Angora, it is added, are optimistic over the issue of the negotiations.

The time and place for the proposed new conference to conclude the work of making peace in the Near East, left unfinished at Lausanne, have not yet been fixed, but the French Government, it is stated, will do everything possible to facilitate the holding of such a conference, provided there is no attempt to undertake a change in the basic ideas of the treaty framed at Lausanne.

Meanwhile, it is pointed out, recognition must be given the fact that Ismet Pasha and the other members of the Turkish Government have achieved a difficult task in obtaining from the Angora Parliament a vote of confidence and the practical approval of the majority of the clauses in the Lausanne treaty draft.

LONDON, March 8 (Associated Press).—Premier Bonar Law said in the House of Commons today that an official statement from the Turkish authorities at Angora, relayed by the British High Commissioner at Constantinople, was to the effect that the draft treaty presented at Lausanne was considered unsuitable, but that the National Assembly, by a great majority, had given authority to continue the peace negotiations.

The last word on the recent Near East conference has been issued in the form of Lausanne's Blue Book which takes nearly a thousand pages to chronicle the ten weeks of allied and Turkish oratory, the arguments, claims and counter-claims which resulted in the draft treaty that the Turkish National Assembly has just refused to accept.

According to the interpretation in British official quarters, the records show that the Turks failed to agree with the British on three points: the Greek reparations, the economic clauses, which the Kemalists desired included in a separate treaty, and capitulations or extraterritorial rights for foreigners in Turkey.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 8 (Associated Press).—A special courier left Angora at 9 o'clock this afternoon bearing the Angora Government's reply to the allied peace proposals. He is expected to reach Constantinople Friday night or Saturday.

While the exact details of the reply are unknown here, it is indicated in Turkish quarters that the note will open the way for another conference. The local press is so confident that such a meeting will be held that it is already engaged in a discussion as to the place, suggesting either Paris or this city.

The heavy vote of confidence given the Government by the National Assembly is taken here to indicate that the so-called radical or war group is in the minority and that Mustapha Kemal Pasha and his Foreign Minister, Ismet Pasha, are maintaining a strong moderate control.

In foreign circles confidence is expressed in renewed efforts toward peace, while the business feeling is reflected in the steadiness of exchange rates.

DEMOCRATS CONFER ON PHONE RATES

MAY INCLUDE WHOLE STATE

Senator Walker and His Colleagues Expect Defeat of Pending Measures in the Assembly.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 8.—Democratic Senators who remained at the Capitol conferred today with Senator Walker on a proposal for legislation to lower telephone rates, especially in New York City, where subscribers have been particularly hard hit as a result of recent rate increases granted by the Public Service Commission.

Two bills, both introduced by Assemblyman Cuvillier of New York City and providing for drastic cuts in the rates now in force, are pending in the lower house. No bill has been introduced in the Senate, and the step taken today by the Democratic Senators was due to the almost certain prospect that the Republican Assembly would not take kindly to the Cuvillier proposal, which affects only New York City. A Senate bill, it is understood, will be introduced at an early date, possibly next week, in accordance with a decision reached at the conference.

While up-State localities were dealt with much more kindly by the Public Service Commission and the New York Telephone Company at the time the present rates were established, there still remains much resentment in many up-State cities at the heavy rates which were imposed by the Public Service Commission three years ago.

While a decision has not been reached it is likely that the Senate bill will affect some of the up-State cities as well as New York. If drafted to be thus inclusive it will be largely to make it appeal to Republicans in the Assembly who represent districts within the larger cities up-State.

With the plans of Governor Smith calling for regulation by all municipal authorities of rates and operations of public utility corporations, the proposal growing out of the conference held and the introduction of a bill recently by Senator Walker providing for a maximum rate of $1 per 1,000 cubic feet of illuminating gas in New York City have aroused some comment as being indicative of the uncertainty with which the Democrats look upon the outcome of their fight in the Legislature for the measures proposed by Governor Smith to carry out platform pledges.

Should plans for the abolition of the Public Service Commission and other drastic changes in the control of public utilities go through there would be no need for the proposed telephone and gas legislation. There was some discussion at the conference today of a proposal for a legislative investigation of the New York Telephone Company, it was said tonight. This, however, was dropped as untimely and impractical.

The telephone "joker" which has found its way into the Twomey bill amending the Public Service Commission law, as well as the companion bill in the Assembly, is to be eliminated after the hearing on the public utility measures next week before the Senate Committee on Public Service.

This "joker" was pronounced today by Robert C. Cummins, Bill Drafting Commissioner, a "mistake" which occurred in carrying out instructions to make the Public Service Commission law in its general provisions what it was before it was amended during the Miller regime. Then it was amended to provide that in all instances the burden of proof that rates were just should rest on the telephone company.

The "joker" or "mistake" consisted in substituting the word "increase" for the word "change" in a section which placed the burden of proof relating to the justice of rates on the telephone company in proceedings brought to have them changed.

The effect, should the present language be retained, would be to put the burden of proof on the company only where increases for which, of course, only the company itself would take the initiative, were involved and that in other circumstances the general rule of law should be followed, this placing on a petitioner for reduced rate the burden of proving that existing rates were too high.

prosecutors everywhere in the State, if necessary, in going after shady practices of the kind that have aroused the ire of Mr. Untermyer.

The statement was made tonight that no new penal statute under which to prosecute such offenders had been provided for in the bills, but that the Republican leaders in the Assembly say the Donnelly anti-trust act is still as efficient an instrument for bringing offenders to justice as it was when first enacted.

"There can be no question of the efficiency and zeal of the present Attorney General who happens to be a Democrat," said an influential Republican leader of the Assembly tonight.

"We propose to give him a good law with plenty of teeth in it, and we will give him all the machinery he needs to go after offenders against that act and those engaged in illicit practices, whether it be as dealers in commodities or as dealers in securities. That is a more effective way than State regulation. It hits hard the comparatively small percentage that lay themselves open to complaint and lets the others alone."

This leader pointed out that placing the responsibility with the Attorney General would make for permanency in the exercise of these functions.

"The trouble with Mr. Untermyer's trade commission and his plan for Wall Street regulation is that what this Legislature does in that direction the other Legislature can as readily undo," he said.

Nearly all the Brooklyn Senators returned home on Wednesday, and some have not been here at all this week but according to the best information that can be obtained from some of their Democratic colleagues who remained, no one here has information to indicate that the eight Democratic Senators from Kings have been "delivered" and are prepared to part company with the rest of the Democratic delegation in their vote on the "Blue Sky" bill, the Cotillo bill to incorporate the Stock Exchange and other Housing Committee measures.

There is no reason to believe that any effort will be made by Senator Walker to apply caucus rule and there is every prospect that the vote on the bill next week when they come up on third reading will sigzag across party lines, with some Democratic Senators voting against them, and some Republican Senators, possibly, for them.

Senator Walker said today that he hoped to see some of the bills, possibly all, go through in the Senate. He added that the most drastic of the measures, which has been the target for most of the opposition from "big interests," the Trade Commission bill, would never receive his vote unless it was extended to include among those subject to regulation the Dairymen's League.

Should Senator Walker persist in that attitude and succeed in having the league included, the bill would have no show at all on account of the opposition it would cause among up-State Republicans who control the Assembly and may be needed, even in the Senate, to see the bill through. Some regard the proposed amendment as a subtle means of insuring its defeat. It would mean the loss of the vote of Senator Lusk, who, up to the present, has been a stronger advocate of Mr. Untermyer's Trade Commission bill than any of his Democratic colleagues in the Upper House.

BALDWIN WON'T ASK TARIFF FAVORS HERE

Refuses a Proposal in the Commons Based on the Need of Trade in Paying Debt.

LONDON, March 8 (Associated Press).—Stanley Baldwin, Chancellor of the Exchequer, declined a proposal in the House of Commons this afternoon that he take steps to urge that the American Government grant preferential treatment to imports from England.

His declaration was in answer to Sir John Norton-Griffiths, Laborite, who had asked whether the Chancellor would "consider the desirability of urging upon the United States Government that some preferential treatment should be extended to imports from this country, having regard to the fact that, while our American liabilities must largely be discharged in goods, yet British merchants are faced with the greatest difficulty in entering the American market by reason of the high tariff barrier."

Mr. Baldwin replied: "I have the greatest sympathy with the member's object, but I do not think any special steps are possible."

PLAN FOR AERIAL BUSES CONSIDERED IN PARIS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 8.—The Transport Committee is examining a plan to establish a series of aerial bus lines between the city and its suburbs which would transport passengers at a speed of one kilometer per minute.

The scheme, that of M. Francis Laur, consists of an overhead wire cable at a height of 100 feet from the ground, supported every 300 yards by steel towers. Suspended from the wire is an aerial bus, shaped like an airplane fuselage and propelled by an airplane engine and propeller.

M. Laur claims that a bus carrying sixty passengers would be able to run or fly at a speed of 250 kilometers per hour, but for practical purposes a speed of sixty kilometers would be sufficient. The inventor further claims that his scheme is the cheapest form of transport construction, the line costing only 700,000 francs per kilometer, while a street car line with an underground cable costs 2,500,000 francs per kilometer and the subway 15,000,000.

The plan submitted comprises nine of these overhead lines from various suburban points to the city gates, their length varying from five to nine kilometers.

FRENCH WIN WIRELESS DUEL

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, March 8.—The Eiffel Tower has won the first round of the battle with German wireless stations broadcasting concerts to Holland, Switzerland and elsewhere. In the course of these concerts the Berlin station often sent out reports of the Ruhr situation, after which some artist frequently sang "Deutschland über Alles."

The Eiffel Tower, listening in during the strains of the German war hymn, began operations making it impossible for the Berlin concerts to break through. So far as the matter sent out was purely a concert program there was no interference; but the moment the Germans started to give Ruhr reports or to sing "Deutschland über Alles" the Eiffel Tower sent out waves of the same length as those of the German wireless, which effectively interfered and made it impossible to hear the concert.

Berlin has recognized defeat in this fight and has declared that it will no longer send out Ruhr reports or the war hymn.

OTTO H. KAHN DROPS PLAN TO SEE 'REIGEN'

Banker Writes Vice Society Head, However, Defending Green Room Club.

SUMNER'S ARREST ASKED

Assailed Officials Charge Criminal Libel, but Magistrate Refuses to Act.

Otto H. Kahn, who had accepted invitations to be the guest of honor at a dinner of the Green Room Club Sunday night and at a special performance of "Reigen" at the Belasco Theatre afterward, decided last night not to go to the play.

Mr. Kahn announced his decision in a letter to John S. Sumner of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, who had denounced "Reigen" as "vile" and "vicious," and had called on Police Inspector Bolan to stop it and arrest the performers on Sunday night. At the same time Mr. Kahn in his letter defended the Green Room Club and expressed the opinion that it would not give any performance of a questionable character.

The letter reached the club late last night. Officials were called hurriedly into consultation to decide whether the performance should go on without the guest of honor.

Earlier in the day the club had made two counter-moves against the Society for the Suppression of Vice and the Lord's Day Alliance, which had joined together to make a fight on "Reigen," which, according to Mr. Sumner, was forced off the stage in Berlin by hissing and rioting. Through its counsel the club applied to Magistrate Moses R. Ryttenberg for a warrant for the arrest of Mr. Sumner on the charge of criminal libel, but the Magistrate declined to issue it without hearing more on the subject. The next move was to draw papers to present to the Supreme Court today in an application for an injunction to prevent Inspector Bolan, Mr. Sumner, the Lord's Day Alliance or any one else from interfering with the production of "Reigen" on Sunday night.

Text of Kahn's Letter.

Late last night it had not been determined whether to press the legal projects, in view of the decision of Mr. Kahn, which was embodied in the following letter:

March 8, 1923.

Dear Mr. Sumner:

I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 7th inst.

I have not read the play to which you refer, and it was only a couple of days ago, upon my return from Florida, that I was informed that the dinner to which the Green Room Club some weeks ago did me the honor of inviting me, was to be followed by a performance at the Belasco Theatre.

You will doubtless agree with me that well intentioned persons may differ as to the fitness of a play for production (especially when the occasion is not a public one), the true test being not so much the subject of the play, as its spirit, tendency, dialogue and treatment of situations.

The Green Room Club, as I understand, is an organization composed of leading actors, playwrights and publicists connected with the stage. It is affiliated with the Actors' Order of Friendship, which has been in existence for over a century, and of which Edwin Forrest, Edwin Booth, Lawrence Barrett, Joseph Jefferson and other eminent artists were members. I am informed that for nearly twenty-five years it has been the custom of the club to have one or two annual dinners, followed by a performance given by and to its members and guests. I am entirely certain that these gentlemen would not undertake a production which is justly subject to the criticism of being "off" or salacious and objectionable character."

However, I do not desire to participate in any function which runs counter to the susceptibilities and the moral sentiments of any substantial body in the community, whose motives are entitled to respect, and, without wishing to be understood as passing upon the merits of the case, I purpose to act accordingly in the present instance.

Very truly yours,

OTTO H. KAHN.

P. S.—You are at liberty to publish this letter.

Author's Other Work Assailed.

The play in question is by Arthur Schnitzler, whose novel "Casanova's Homecoming" recently weathered a prosecution by the Vice Society, but has been translated openly by Justus Kaul, newly organized Clean Books League.

Mr. Sumner said yesterday that no one had made a complaint against the proposed complimentary performance for Mr. Kahn, but that he (Mr. Sumner) had taken the action wholly on his own initiative.

"I ran across this play in 1921 in an English translation," he said. "I believe this was printed in England and I understand that it has been but little circulated in this country. The play is pure smut. It is simply a representation of a series of immoral acts. It is the kind of thing that the police would stop at some stag affair on Second Avenue, and I could not see why it should be treated any differently because it is to be presented under the auspices of the Green Room Club."

The Green Room Club officials yesterday referred reporters to Harry S. Hechheimer of 1,440 Broadway, to tell the club's side of it, and Mr. Hechheimer said he was too busy to discuss the matter.

FIELD LEAVING COURT BEATS PHOTOGRAPHER

Son-in-Law Smashes Camera—Judge Ryner Intimates He Will Grant Divorce.

CHICAGO, March 8.—Stanley Field, President of the Field Columbian Museum and nephew of Marshall Field, as he was leaving the court room today after Judge Ira Ryner had indicated that he would grant his plea for a divorce from his wife, Mrs. Sara Carrol Field, won an encounter with a newspaper photographer. He was assisted by his son-in-law, Thomas Clifford Rodman, son of Admiral Hugh Rodman, U. S. N., who, after knocking the cameraman to the floor, demolished the camera.

Strict secrecy was observed concerning the details of a property settlement which was effected between the couple before Mrs. Field filed a formal answer "neither admitting nor denying the charges but demanding strict proof thereof" which eliminated all possibility of a contest.

"We were married on April 17, 1920, at Brooklandville, a suburb of Baltimore," On Jan. 2, 1921," Mr. Field said in court. "Mrs Field left our home at 1,550 North State Parkway. She told me that she was going to leave me for good, and in fact have not seen her since.

"Was your departure against your wishes and had you given her cause to leave you?" he was asked.

"She left in the face of my protests and I am sure that I have never given her the slightest ground for leaving," declared Mr. Field. "She has visited our home on many occasions since the separation, but only to see the children, and over and over again she has said she would never, never return to me.

"Mrs. Field returned to 1,550 North State Parkway, on the occasion of our daughter's marriage to Mr. Rodman and again on the occasion of our younger daughter, Daphne's debut. I have always been ready and willing to take her back and have so stated many times."

Young Rodman declared that he was aware that Mrs. Field had abandoned her husband and that the desertion had been continuous.

WELFARE MEASURES SLATED FOR DEFEAT

SENATE GETS RESOLUTION

Duanigan Presents Bill Increasing Salaries of Five Bronx Assistant Deputy Sheriffs.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 8.—A resolution creating a legislative commission to investigate the minimum wage and the eight-hour day for women and children in industry was introduced in the Legislature today by Senator Ames, Republican of Watertown, and was referred to the Senate Finance Committee.

This means the defeat of the pending minimum wage and eight-hour day bills. The resolution states that before such legislation is enacted there should be a comprehensive investigation of the whole subject. Recent hearings, the resolution says, revealed that there is a wide difference of opinion, even among women, as to the value of such laws.

Under the resolution the commission would consist of five Assemblymen, four Senators, two citizens representing labor, two representing employers and one representing the general public. The citizen members would be appointed by the Chairman of the committee. The resolution calls for an appropriation of $15,000 and the commission would have to report back to the Legislature with recommendations not later than March 1 of next year.

An almost identical resolution was to have been put in the Assembly last week by Assemblyman Miller, Republican of Genesseo, but was held up at the last minute because of a clause which would have given to the Governor the power of appointing the citizen members of the commission.

Under a bill introduced by Senator Duanigan, Democrat of the Bronx, five assistant Deputy Sheriffs in the Bronx would receive an increase in salary from $1,800 to $2,500. The measure also would create the place of special deputy clerk in the County Clerk's office with a salary of $5,000. The new clerk would have three assistants with salaries of $4,000 a year. The bill also provides for a salary of $4,000 for the private secretary of the Bronx County Judge.

The Board of Estimate would be authorized under another Duanigan bill to construct a railroad for freight between the proposed public market and the barge canal terminal in the Bronx.

Provision is made in a bill introduced by Assemblyman O'Connor, New York, Democrat, that a Supreme Court Justice who has been on the bench for five years, instead of ten as at present, and who is sixty-five years old shall be eligible for appointment as official referee.

Senator Baumes, Republican of Newburgh, introduced a bill which would prohibit fraternal or other organization emblems, such as that of the American Legion, from being used on motor vehicles unless the owner of the car was a member of the fraternity or organization.

JOHNSON WARNS U. S. TO STAY OUT

putes and which will prevent in the future all sorts of wars. On, this body will do nothing of the sort! Keep that in mind.

"The First False Step."

"Joining an organization such as that might be thought by you of little consequence, but there is another angle to it, an angle that does mightily concern you. This is the first false step. It is the first step into a part of the League of Nations. I thought that fight had been fought in 1920 and I thought it had been won, but those who are interested in the League, those who expect to make profit out of taking us into Europe's maelstrom, those deluded individuals who believe that it has within it the possibilities of preventing future difficulties, those good people who honestly think that it has great capacity for good, have never ceased to struggle; since 1920 propaganda has been alive, has ever been going all over this country, and it has been a very, very difficult thing for a few feeble individuals with nothing on God's earth but the voices and the strength that God gave them to meet this propaganda that day in and day out, has been poisoning the minds of the people of the United States."

Senator Johnson said he wanted America to remain just as it is, but if we have to enter the League of Nations he didn't think we should sneak in any back door that happened to be left open. The Senator talked for more than two hours and during his remarks he praised the work of the last Congress. He said it had been characterized as a "do nothing" Congress, but this wasn't so at all. He said it had done more during its session of three months than any previous Congress had done within the memory of any man in the room. He enumerated the various bills that had been passed and then came to the settlement of the British debt. On this matter he said:

"Some of your distinguished people seem to think that the settlement of the British debt was an occasion for self-abasement on our part. Some indeed went at the matter in a deprecatory fashion, as if they were doing something of which they ought to be ashamed, or for which they should apologize. Oh the floor of the Senate there was an amendment introduced to the settlement by which Great Britain should be charged the same rate of interest that the people of the United States are today paying, and should be given any lessened interest that we obtained in the years to come upon our indebtedness.

Wanted the Matter Settled.

"I believe that to be a just amendment, and I voted for it, but it was defeated, and then subsequently I voted for the settlement of the British debt, because I would rather have an irritating and a distressing situation out of the way, even if I had to make something of a bad bargain in respect to it.

"When Great Britain made her proposition to us—I have no hostilities and no prejudices, my friends, believe that of me, please. I believe in the Constitution of the United States. I believe in the right of every man to speak as he will that which is in his mind and that legitimately he may speak. I believe in the right of every man and every woman in this land to worship God as he or she may desire, without hindrance of any sort whatever. I have no room in my make-up for intolerance of any sort toward any people, toward any religion or any creed or any faith or any human being, and I have no intolerance to be spoot to any people beyond the sea at all.

"I do resent the attitude that has been taken by some part of the press of the United States and some part of the people of the United States in abasing themselves and this nation in dealing with purely a business proposition presented by the debt that was due to us from Great Britain. We had a right to deal with it in a business manner, just as we deal with any business proposition. I dealt with it with generosity, and our nation dealt with it generously. I have no fault to find with that, of course, nor with any other course that have the thought that ran through this country immediately upon the suggestion of the settlement, the propaganda that was carried through this country, was something that was foreign to America and ought to be foreign to Americans."

Likes His Job As Senator.

Senator Johnson said he liked his job as Senator despite the criticism that had been made against him.

"And liking that job," he said, "I have no complaints to make concerning those who would indulge in criticism. I know just one way when they indulge in unjust and untrue criticism, to go back at them with both fists just as well as I am able. That is the only system that I understand in public office, or even, I might say, politically, too.

"But just let me say a word to you about public officials. They are often times a little better and seldom any worse than those who select them. And in a government such as ours where our people have the opportunity at recurring intervals to do just as they please, people ought to be satisfied for a brief period at least with the choices that they made. And then if you know human nature at all, you can adequately measure and appraise public officials."

The dinner was one of the largest ever given by the Bronx Board of Trade. About 1,200 business men of the borough were there. Albert Goldman, President of the board, was toastmaster. A musical program preceded the remarks of Senator Johnson, who was the principal speaker.

BORAH DEMANDS REAL WORLD COURT

War Possibly Any Day, Says Senator, Who Asks Recognition of Russia and Mexico.

Recognition of Mexico and Soviet Russia was advocated last night by United States Senator William E. Borah, speaker at the annual dinner of the Jersey City Chamber of Commerce which was held in the People's Palace, Jersey City. In addition, Senator Borah made a plea for a "real world court" with obligatory powers, and indulged in criticism of the present foreign policy of the Administration, declaring that a change was needed.

He reviewed the events of the five years since the armistice and said that even now peace was not in sight, considering to the fact that since the war ended no less than twenty-three European disputes had cropped up. He pictured the immediate future as decidedly dark, saying that almost any time the word might flash across the wires of a new conflict in Europe, which the Senator thought might eventually lead to a war of world proportions. He said that he hoped that out of the darkness would come an understanding in this country that America must consider ways and means of getting the overseas difficulties adjusted, adding that he was "not here tonight to argue for or against a League of Nations or an association of nations."

"To the south of us," said Senator Borah in urging recognition of Mexico, "there is a nation of twenty millions of people, and for the last three years they have had a well established Government resting on the will of the people, maintaining law and order and protecting life and property. I feel that they have a Government that has earned the right to be recognized by the Civilized nations of the world, and I know of no reason why we don't take the lead in recognition.

Doesn't Overlook Mexican Oil.

"I do not overlook the fact that we are told that there is oil in Mexico. I am in favor of making the basis of American policy with regard to Mexico not oil but humanitarianism, and the settlement of the property questions can be made after the principles of humanity are established between the nations."

Senator Borah then dwelt on conditions in present-day Russia, and urged that this nation, too, be included in American recognition.

"The Soviet Government," he said, "has been established for nearly six years. It is stable and it is protecting lives and property. I understand from certain churchmen, who have spoken to me about conditions there, that life is as safe in Russia today as it is in New York City. It is not a question of trade or not to trade. Twenty-six nations are dealing with Russia now, and I think that within a year France and Japan will be trading with her."

In discussing the foreign policy now being pursued by Washington, the Senator said that it struck him as really "three kinds of policy. The first is the one we employ toward weak nations like Haiti and Nicaragua; the second is used toward nations like China and the third is used for nations that maintain strong armies and navies."

BOY LOCKED 4 HOURS IN HUGE BANK VAULT

were lugging ledgers and files into the vault while the cashier neatly piled away big stacks of currency and his bags of coin, to joke about the danger of being locked fast behind that great steel door. Sometimes, they played at being locked in. Again one would swing the door just to while the other was inside. They had many a laugh over that sort of play.

Skylarking Closed Vault Door.

They were at it last evening, Templeton, on the outside calling to Charley within to "stow that stuff quick" if he didn't want to be trapped. Charley gave some laughing answer, half a dare. Templeton said, well, he guessed he might as well shut up if his companion wouldn't come on out, and gave the massive door a gentle push. It is balanced as smoothly as a wheel of a watch, the slight impulse sent the serried plates home against the steel jamb, the bolts locked, the time mechanism slid automatically into place—and Di Giacomo was a prisoner.

Templeton knew a lot about that vault. He knew that it had been installed only a few months ago. He knew that the Remington-Sherman safe concern had built it as one of the most modern and invulnerable in all the country; he knew that a bonding company had such faith in the series of safety devices that protected that it had insured the bank for $200,000 against burglars ever penetrating it.

Garret Kulken, the cashier, was still in the bank. To him Templeton went to falter out the story of what he had done. Kulken telephoned to C. W. Benson, the President, and Mr. Benson directed him to flash the alarm and to send word to D. A. Beckwith of Park Ridge, N. J., who had installed the vault.

Fire Department to the Rescue.

While Beckwith was racing from his home Chief Thomas Coyle of the Fire Department was sending trucks and men speeding from their quarters and Captain Frank Bott was detailing every available man on the force to the bank on the double quick.

There was a moment of conference, a moment of shaking heads and looking ruefully at that stout prison, then plans were laid and policemen were sent scurrying through the city for contractors with acetylene torches, bars and sledge hammers, with powerful jacks that could be used to widen the first breaches.

It was found that only forty men could be crowded inside the bank office with such tools and apparatus as they needed. Those were told off in relays of ten, ladders were set against the vault sides, and soon the first batch of men were ramming and prying and sledging away at the thick concrete.

They worked until 8:15 before they could smash their way through the outer layer of stone and steel and then their tools rang against the battleship steel, specially treated to be as nearly impenetrable as possible. Meantime electric drills and acetylene torches had been rigged, men with masked faces were on hand to withstand the heat and glare of their use, and the onslaught against the inner lining was begun.

Forty-five minutes later one drill slipped clean through, a cheer went up from the group crouched over the work atop the vault, word was sent to those outside, the cheer resounded in the street and then a little oxygen tube was worked through the hole.

But first a man pressed his ear to that hole and listened. There came no sound, and he was about to give up in despair when a faint moan reached him.

A Faint Moan Tells of Life.

"He's alive," the listener called, and the work went on.

Things went faster once the steel top was punctured and by 10 o'clock there was a hole big enough for a man to get through. Dr. Irving Newman of the Paterson General Hospital had been crouched on top of the vault, his case of restoratives ready. Ropes were adjusted about him, and he descended, swinging for a moment with his fingers on the ragged rims of the hole, then softly told the strong men above to let go.

As the doctor disappeared into the gloom an electric light on a long cable was lowered after him, and men perched on the roof above listened for the first word that might come from him.

Already they had had Di Giacomo's note and they expected the best. But soon the doctor called. "He's just alive; that's all."

As soon as the doctor had disentangled himself from his harness and bent over his unconscious patient, an employe of the bank was lowered after him. That man disconnected the time lock mechanism from inside, the cashier spun the combination wheels and knobs, and at 10:12 the great vault door swung open.

Hardly a minute more and the boy was on his way to the hospital.

Saved Life by Letting Clock Run Down.

D. A. Beckwith of Park Ridge, N. J., who installed the vault for the Remington & Sherman Company, 17 Warren Street, this city, said last night that the construction of the huge strong box had proved its impregnability, and that the only way it could have been entered through the door was by slipping the time lock. This was done from the inside, he explained after forty men had worked for four hours, with his tools.

"The vault is 10 feet wide, 8 feet deep and is 8 feet high inside," Mr. Beckwith said. "It has an 8¼-inch steel door with a steel lining and is built in a concrete vault. It was built six months ago and is the latest type of vault. It would have opened automatically at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow morning. It was absolutely burglar proof. The time lock is a Sargent and Greenleaf and operates two combinations. When the man got in he let the clock run down, otherwise the vault could not have been opened."

Mr. Beckwith said that the vault cost $7,000.

The Economics of Ice

Food is dangerous when alternately frozen and melted as it is when left to the mercy of the window-sill. Aside from being a menace to health, thousands of dollars' worth of food is lost yearly because of a lack of knowledge on the part of the homemaker in the proper care of foods. A prominent writer on economics points this out in an article on the Economics of Ice.

PRESIDENT AT GOLF IN SAND AND WIND

SHOWS BENEFIT OF OUTING

Mrs. Harding Makes a Short Journey From the Houseboat to Visit With Relatives.

Special to The New York Times.

MELBOURNE, Fla., March 8.—President Harding left the houseboat Pioneer this afternoon for a golf match here over a recently completed course. It was his first experience on his present vacation with sand greens instead of the turf variety. Added to the difficulties of the Presidential foursome, which included A. D. Lasker, General Charles G. Dawes and E. B. McLean, was a strong northeast wind which played all sorts of tricks with soaring golf balls, and a lowering temperature waged a winning fight with the brilliant Florida sunshine, with the result that woolen clothing and sweaters were brought out of trunks on board the Pioneer.

Whatever his thoughts upon the afternoon's match, the President kept them to himself, probably remembering an experience of two years ago when, after playing over a sandy course upon which he needed a mashie on the fairgreen and a lofter instead of a putter on the greens, he declared it it be the sportiest golf course in Florida. His words were promptly used for advertising that resort, and golfers who took his words seriously and followed him there have not forgiven him. The Florida golf courses that are compelled to use sand greens on account of the reluctance of grass to grow, or the high winds that literally blow the seed from the sparse soil, furnish splendid practice for golfers who come to grief in the sands of the Northern courses.

Today the Pioneer reached the half-way point on the 200-mile cruise between Ormond and Miami. The houseboat has made good time since leaving Ormond last Tuesday, so that the President could, if he chose, reach Miami by Monday night or Tuesday morning. Although he is looking forward to a two days' fishing trip at the Cocolobo Club, twenty miles south of Miami, it appears probable tonight that his arrival at his southern destination will be postponed a few days more in order to make other stops for golf.

By landing at Vero tomorrow he can play over the Seaside course, or motor twelve miles down the Indian River to play over the Fort Pierce links and then proceed for the night to Hobe Sound, a short twenty miles from Palm Beach, of which both the President and Mrs. Harding are fond. There was some talk tonight that the Pioneer may omit Palm Beach until the return from Miami, but no definite predictions were made because the Hardings' idea of a vacation trip is one without schedule, so they can be tied down in the White House to all the routine they care for. Three days out of doors in the bright sun has improved the President visibly. His face has lost the pallor that was so marked when he left Washington, and is burned red. Mrs. Harding, too, has benefited by the cruise, and a short stop was made at Rockledge this morning to enable her to have a visit with relatives who are spending the Winter there.

VERO, Fla., March 8.—President Harding during a stop at Rockledge today, became a Freeholder of the State of Florida. Citizens of the little town who went to the pier in a body to greet the visitors presented the President with the deed to a lot.

At Melbourne, members of the country club proudly displayed to the party a neat little nine-hole golf course with water hazards in which alligators are reputed to lie in wait at times for poorly driven balls. No alligators were seen, however, during the two rounds the Presidential foursome made on the course.

Members of the club willingly served as caddies, John S. Chapman, publisher of The Rockford Star, carrying the clubs of the publisher of The Marion Star.

NEWCASTLE CHARGES FALSE, M. P. SAYS

attempted to influence travel on American ships. Investigation conducted by this Government satisfied Secretary Hughes that the charges against the American officials were unsubstantiated. Therefore, he suggested that Great Britain withdraw the charges which reflected upon them.

Unsigned Evidence Rejected.

Secretary Hughes's statement, issued tonight, gives the main points as to his attitude. It reads:

"The Department of State has taken the position that since the British Government has charged the American Consular officers at Newcastle with improper conduct in the performance of their consular functions, and has allowed these charges to become public, it was incumbent upon the department to investigate carefully the charges, in order to determine whether or not the officers were guilty and, if guilty, the extent of the discipline required. With a view to reaching a conclusion, a very careful investigation of all the facts was at once undertaken, with the result that the department reached the conclusion the charges against the officers had not been substantiated.

"In these circumstances the department saw no alternative but frankly to advise the British Government of the result of its investigation and to express the hope that the charges could be withdrawn.

"Article 4 of the Convention of Commerce and Navigation of 1815 with Great Britain provides that, 'in case of illegal or improper conduct toward the laws or Government of the country to which he (a consul) is sent, such consul may either be punished according to law, if the laws will reach the case, or be sent back, the offended Government assigning to the other the reasons for the same.'

"The position of the department in the present case is that, in its opinion, the laws or Government of Great Britain has been committed and that the only evidence of guilt which the British Government has produced in support of its charges consisted of three unsigned statements, which upon examination by the department were not regarded as at all sufficient."

British Move Puzzles Officials.

The communications from the Government of the United States to that of Great Britain, as given out, included the text of circular instructions sent to American consular officers on Dec. 30, 1922. These instructions deal with the attitude which American consuls should assume toward American shipping and instruct the consuls as to their work, having probably been inspired by the complaint in the Newcastle controversy.

Officials at the State Department could not understand why Great Britain's note of Dec. 27 was made public. They had regarded the incident as closed. In some circles the opinion prevailed that shipping interests in Great Britain had become very critical over the negotiations which brought about the closing of the American consular offices at Newcastle, and that the note was given out in London to satisfy this criticism.

It is not expected that this Government will recede from its position and it was said at the State Department that the negotiations would not be resumed unless the initiation came from London.

Statement by the Embassy.

Lord Curzon's note of Dec. 27 to the United States on the Newcastle incident was made public by the British Embassy simultaneously with its release in England. It was issued with the following explanatory statement:

"The official pronouncement on the subject of the United States Consulate at Newcastle, which appeared in the newspapers of the 4th inst., contained a statement to the effect that the British Government, by specifying the reasons why the American consular officers at that post had become unacceptable, had in effect invited a discussion of these reasons. In order to remove the misapprehension which appears to exist on this point, the British Foreign Office are causing a statement to be published in which they repeat the declaration already made in their published note of March 1, to the effect that in furnishing a reason for their action in withdrawing the exequaturs of the United States Consul they were not inviting a discussion of the grounds on which their decision was taken, but were merely complying with the terms of Article 4 of the commercial convention between Great Britain and the United States of July 3, 1815, which provides that the 'offended' Government shall assign to the other Government its reason for 'sending back' a consular officer.

"In order that the procedure followed by His Majesty's Government in this may be the better understood, the British Foreign Office are communicating to the press a note addressed on Dec. 27th last to the American Charge d'Affaires in London, the reply to which has already been published by the State Department."

Text of the Curzon Note.

Foreign Office, S. W. 1.,
27th December, 1922.

"Sir: I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of Mr. Harvey's note No. 446 of Nov. 9th on the subject of the closing of the United States Consulate at Newcastle-on-Tyne.

"As I had the honor to point out to His Excellency in my note of Aug. 28th last, the note addressed to the Secretary of State of the United States by His Majesty's Charge d'Affaires at Washington on July 18th, informing Mr. Hughes of the view taken by His Majesty's Government of the action of Mr. Slater and Mr. Brooks in making difficulties over the issue of visas for the United States to passengers not traveling by American lines, was intended as a friendly hint to the United States Government to transfer those officials to other posts since they were no longer personæ gratæ to His Majesty's Government. Instead of withdrawing the recognition of Mr. Slater and Mr. Brooks at once, as was their undoubted right, His Majesty's Government postponed action for one month in order to give the United States Government an opportunity, if they so desired, to transfer those officers to other posts.

"The purpose of this action was precisely to avoid that publicity which Mr. Harvey appears to deplore in the second and fourth paragraphs of his note and for which His Majesty's Government must entirely disclaim responsibility.

American Precedent in 1856.

"At the conclusion of the period of delay His Majesty's Government had no alternative but to exercise their sovereign right, as had been done by the United States Government in 1856 in the case of the British consuls at New York, Philadelphia and Cincinnati, and Mr. Slater's exequatur and the recognition of Mr. Brooks were accordingly withdrawn.

"In furnishing the United States Government with an indication of the reasons for their action and with copies of the statements submitted, the object of His Majesty's Government was to place the United States Government in possession of information which might show that no unfriendly motive underlay the decision of His Majesty's Government and which might at the same time permit the United States Government to conduct such enquiries as they might think fit, from the point of view of the internal administration of the United States consular service, into the charges brought against the two Consular officers.

"It was at the same time hoped that a frank exchange of views would enable the two Governments, in consultation, to frame whatever new regulations might be necessary on the one side or the other to prevent the occurrence at other places of difficulties of a like character. It was not thought, nor could it be admitted, that there should be any question of reviewing the conclusions to which His Majesty's Government had come after a full consideration of all the facts.

"I have taken due note of the intelligence conveyed in Mr. Harvey's note that, as a result of separate investigations, the character and scope of which are unknown to me, the United States Government has drawn conclusions different from those drawn by His Majesty's Government, but while regretting this difference of opinion, His Majesty's Government feel bound to adhere to their original position.

Harvey Contention Denied.

"You will have gathered from what have already stated in this note that I cannot admit the justification of the statement made in Mr. Harvey's note under reply, to the effect that innocent officers have been publicly and unwarrantably accused of serious misconduct and the good faith of the foreign service of a friendly nation has been openly brought into question upon inadequate and incorrect information. On the contrary, His Majesty's Government regard the information at their disposal as being entirely accurate in substance and consequently entirely adequate to warrant the cancellation of the officers' recognition.

"Mr. Harvey's note appears, however, to have been written on the assumption that a legal case had to be made out against the officers in question before the recognition extended to either of them by His Majesty's Government could be properly withdrawn. Such an assumption is at variance with the well established international practice in these matters and very distinctly at variance with the action of the United States in the precedents already mentioned above.

"It may well be admitted that affidavits made by persons who, for good reasons, prefer that their identity should not be publicly disclosed, would not be accepted as competent evidence in a court of justice, but it must be pointed out that the statements, with copies of which Mr. Harvey has been furnished, were presented to the Foreign Office by individuals whose truthfulness is not doubted by his Majesty's Government.

"As a result of those statements the confidence previously reposed by his Majesty's Government in the correct official conduct of Mr. Slater and Mr. Brooks was shaken and, in the circumstances, the continuation of their employment as consular officers in British territory could obviously be of benefit to neither country.

"I have the honor to be with high consideration, sir,

"Your Obedient Servant,
"CURZON OF KEDLESTON."

American Documents Given Out.

The correspondence given out by Secretary Hughes contains a note from the Secretary of State to Henry Getty Chilton, Charge d'Affaires of the British Embassy, dated Aug. 11, 1922; a telegram of Sept. 18, 1922, to the American Ambassador in London, the substance of which was transmitted to the British Foreign Office, and notes of Nov. 9, 1922, and Feb. 28, 1923, from the American Ambassador in London to the British Foreign Office.

The note to Mr. Chilton reads:

"Aug. 11, 1922.

"Sir: I beg to refer to your note of July 18, 1922, in which you inform me that the British Government contemplates withdrawing the exequatur of the American Consul at Newcastle-on-Tyne and the recognition of the American Vice Consul there, on Aug. 18. In your note, you state that this action is to be taken by your Government because the American Consulate at Newcastle-on-Tyne has been attempting to divert passengers from British to American lines by making difficulties over the issue of visas for the United States to passengers not traveling by American lines, and, further, by hinting that inconvenience is likely to be encountered in the United States unless the passengers travel by American lines. Your note further states that the action of the British Government is being deferred until Aug. 18, in the belief that this Government may prefer to remove these officers of its accord.

"In view of the fact that the British Government has seen fit to specify the reasons which have prompted its contemplated action in this matter, I have caused a careful investigation to be made of the alleged improper activities of these American consular officers.

"The reports, supported by affidavits, that I have received, as a result of this investigation, do not appear to substantiate the allegations against the American consular officers set forth in your note, and therefore, in justice to Mr. Slater and to Mr. Brooks, this Government will be unable voluntarily to transfer these officers from their present post.

"As the British Government, by enumerating its complaints against the American consular officers, apparently invited an investigation of these complaints by this Government, and a discussion of their sufficiency, I trust that the British Government will not follow the course of action suggested in your note before submitting to this Government specific evidence in support of the allegations that have been made and before an opportunity has been afforded for the presentation of the views of this Government in the light of such evidence.

"Accept, sir, the renewed assurance of my high consideration.

"CHARLES E. HUGHES."

Telegram Sent to Harvey.

The telegram sent to the American Ambassador in London was:

"Sept. 18, 1922.

"American Embassy, London.

"Please inform Lord Curzon, with reference to his note of Aug. 28, that since Slater and Brooks have categorically denied the truth of the affidavits enclosed with the last note from the Foreign Office, Consul General Nelson T. Johnson will arrive in England about Sept. 25, as the Department's representative, to conduct a searching investigation of the Newcastle affair; that this Government considers it important to go to the bottom of this matter now, so that future misunderstandings may be avoided; that to this end the department has selected Mr. Johnson, who has been attached to the department for the past four years, to review evidence on the ground and to submit a report on his findings to the Secretary of State and to the President.

"Please express to Lord Curzon [illegible] bearing on the settlement of the [illegible] Newcastle incident, which settlement should be determined on the basis of the truth of the charges preferred by the British Government against the two consular officers. It, therefore, declined to agree to a proposal for the issuance of identic instructions but indicated its willingness, after the Newcastle incident should have been disposed of, to discuss with Great Britain the conclusion of a consular convention defining the rights and duties of consular officers of the two countries.

"With a view to making clear the duties of consular officers of the United States in respect to American shipping, including Government-owned vessels, and avoiding an occasion for misunderstanding in regard to the position of the United States with respect to the activities of consular officers in behalf of American shipping, a general instruction was issued to all American consular officers and in conformity with the frank spirit in which the discussions in regard to the Newcastle incident had been carried on with the British Government, a copy of that instruction was promptly handed to the British Embassy in Washington."

"Department of State,
"Washington, Dec. 30, 1922.

"To the American Consular Officers:

"Gentlemen—The activities in shipbuilding in the United States during the war period wrought marked changes in the position and outlook of the United States with respect to its merchant marine. The great increase in the number of American-owned and operated ships has not only provided the United States with adequate facilities for the transport of a large volume of its overseas trade, but also with a merchant fleet large enough to compete as an international carrier with the maritime countries of the world.

"The policy of the United States to encourage the formation of companies for the operation of steamship lines, to stimulate the opening up of trade routes and to prepare the way for American ships to compete on terms of equality with those of other countries is set forth in the Merchant Marine act of 1920 as follows:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled that it is necessary for the national defense and for the proper growth of its foreign and domestic commerce that the United States shall have a merchant marine of the best equipped and most suitable types of vessels sufficient to carry the greater portion of its commerce and serve as a naval or military auxiliary in time of war or national emergency, ultimately to be owned and operated privately by citizens of the United States; and it is hereby declared to be the policy of the United States to do whatever may be necessary to develop and encourage the maintenance of such a merchant marine.

"The declared policy of the United States with respect to its merchant marine presents to the Consular Service an exceptional opportunity to assist in the building up of American shipping interests. With its representatives at all important ports the Consular Service is peculiarly equipped to render the American merchant marine direct assistance, similar in many respects to that which it now renders the American manufacturer and exporter, by collecting information which will enable American ship owners and operators to meet those conditions in all parts of the world which will affect the future of the cargo and passenger carriers of the United States.

Data of Merchants Sought.

"If American business men are promptly and accurately informed concerning the volume of international freight and passanger traffic, the extent to which such traffic is subject to seasonal fluctuations and the effect thereof on freight rates, the division of the trade between American and foreign shipping and the competitive conditions under which the trade is conducted; and if they are also informed of the cost of fuel at foreign ports, port facilities for handling cargo, repair and dry dock facilities, and the overhead charges connected with in and out of port movements such as port, light, pilotage and similar charges or dues, existing American steamship lines will be placed in a better position for development and profitable operation, and more consideration will unquestionably be given to the establishment of new American ship operating companies.

"The department expects consular officers to make a close study of the subjects covered by the foregoing paragraph in so far as they relate to their respective districts. While definite reports are to be submitted from time to time on these subjects, reports on other related matter should be submitted from time to time as material therefor may become available.

"Supervising Consuls General will, in so far as it is practical, assist officers under their supervisory control in the preparation of shipping reports and instruct officers at inland consulates to report on the relationships existing between railway and navigation companies, special rates, if any, on exports or imports covered by through bills of lading, or other matters affecting the movement of overseas merchandise to or from the interior. Copies of these reports from inland consulates will be transmitted to the officers in charge of the seaport offices or at the distributing centres through which the foreign trade of each district passes.

Facts to Be Given on Request.

"Several requests have been received by the department from consular officers for information as to the propriety of displaying advertising matter of American steamship lines in consulates. The department has no objection to the display on the walls of consular offices of attractively framed pictures or photographs of American steam or sailing vessels. Colored posters, however, and similar advertising matter should not be so displayed, as these deface the walls of the office.

"Applicants for consular services, such as certifying invoices, acknowledgments, authentications and passport visas, unless they inquire specifically for the information should not be approached on the subject of the facilities of American passenger vessels. Space should be provided in the commercial files of the consulate for pamphlets, folders and cards giving information relating to the facilities offered by American vessels, and consular officers should make this information readily available to interested inquirers in the same manner as is done with catalogues and advertising matter of American exporters. In this, as well as other respects, privately operated American vessels should be given the same consideration as that given to merchant ships owned or operated by the United States Government.

"The department believes the interests of the American merchant marine will be greatly promoted if consular officers carry out the instructions herein contained and confine their activities in behalf of steamship companies to investigating and reporting upon shipping matters and answering satisfactorily any proper inquiry relating thereto which may be received. The attention of the service is invited to the fact that in complying with proper requests for commercial or shipping information the confidential nature of the information contained in consular invoices and other records, as set forth in existing instructions, must be respected.

"Your obedient servant,
"CHARLES [illegible]

Reasons for Circular to Consuls.

The announcement by the State Department concerning circular instructions sent to American consular officers, dated Dec. 30, 1922, reads:

"In the course of the negotiations in regard to the action of the British Government in revoking the recognition of the consul and vice consul at Newcastle, the suggestion was made that as a means of avoiding misunderstandings in the future in respect to the aid which consular officers of the United States and Great Britain should give to the merchant marine of their respective countries, the two Governments issue identical instructions to their consular officers. The British Government, in its note of Dec. 27, 1922, made the promulgation of identic instructions one of the conditions in the settlement of the Newcastle incident.

"The Department of State held that the question of identic instructions was a separate and distinct matter having a bearing upon the appropriate settlement of the Newcastle incident. My Government would be pleased, however, after final dispostition has been made of that incident to entertain proposals from the British Government looking to the conclusion of a consular convention inasmuch as no such convention at present exists between the two countries."

1856 Precedent Questioned.

The note of the American Ambassador at London to the British Foreign Office, dated Feb. 28, 1923, was:

"On behalf of my Government, I have the honor to inform Your Lordship of the receipt of Your Lordship's note of Dec. 27, 1922, in which you state the decision of the British Government with regard to the cancellation of the exequatur and recognition respectively of Mr. Slater and Mr. Brooks, Consul and Vice Consul at Newcastle-on-Tyne.

"In the circumstances, I am instructed to inform Your Lordship that orders have been issued not to reopen the Consulate and to dispose of the lease of the consular premises.

"May I call once more to your attention the fact that a thorough investigation, of which the British Government has been fully informed, was made of this case by officers of my Government and that the evidence secured convinced my Government that the charges preferred cannot be substantiated?

"My Government desires me, furthermore, once again to point out that although it has never questioned the right of the British Government to cancel the exequatur of an American Consul on the ground that he is persona non grati, it considers that when specific charges are advanced it is compelled to make the most thorough investigation in order to clear or to discipline the alleged offender. My Government must, moreover, call in question the accuracy of the parallel which Your Lordship found in the cancellation in 1856 by the Government of the United States of the exequaturs of the British Consuls at New York, Philadelphia and Cincinnati. The evidence against these Consuls was developed in judicial proceedings which showed them to be guilty of violating the laws and the sovereign rights of the United States."

BOYS' NORFOLK SUITS AND SPRING OVERCOATS

Wherever the boys of the best known families of the United States foregather, whether it be at the leading "prep" schools or in the city, our productions in correct English norfolk suits are the accepted standard of dress.

In addition to our standard models we present, for the older boys several sport models with sporting jackets and English knickerbockers, retaining in these suits the characteristics of the sport suits worn by their fathers and older brothers.

That our overcoats for boys from 8 to 17 years may possess a marked degree of distinction, we import for our boys topcoats the finest overcoatings woven in England, Ireland and Scotland.

IRISH REBEL LEADER IS TAKEN PRISONER

HEAVY FIGHTING IN KERRY

Free State Drives 400 Irregulars Into Mountains, Where They Offer Stiff Resistance.

BELFAST, March 8 (Associated Press).—Con Maloney, republican Deputy Chief of Staff, has been captured in Glen Aherlow. Maloney was the successor of Liam Deasy, whose peace proposals, made while a prisoner of the national army, were rejected by the republican leaders last month.

Thomas Connelly, an officer commanding the First Southern republican division, is also in custody after being wounded, and two republican leaders named O'Brien were taken in the Silvermines district of Tipperary.

In the course of operations by Free State forces around Newport, County Mayo, twenty-three armed republicans under a leader named Baker were captured, one republican was killed and 9,000 round of ammunition were taken.

Reports from County Kerry indicate that the heaviest fighting since last Summer is proceeding in the mountainous area near Garrane and Cahersiveen, where 400 irregulars were driven in by the nationalists. Receiving reinforcements, the irregulars offered stiff resistance and by counter operations forced the national troops to entrench themselves until relieved by an armored car.

The total casualties in Kerry since Monday, including fatalities through the explosion of trap mines, are given as eight national soldiers and twenty-one irregulars killed, with many on each side wounded.

DUBLIN, March 8.—Francis J. Lowe, Secretary of the Friends of the Irish Free State in the United States, who is visiting Ireland in an endeavor to bring about peace, has sought an interview with Eamon de Valera. De Valera, however, answered the request for a conference by expressing regret at his inability to see Mr. Lowe.

CORK, March 8 (Associated Press).—When Commandant Scott of the Free State troops knocked this evening at the residence in Cork of Mrs. Powell, a sister of Michael Collins, whom he had come to visit, the door was opened by men who, observing Scott's uniform, promptly opened fire on him. The officer was seriously wounded.

It happened that the house had been occupied by a party of incendiaries who were busily engaged in saturating the furniture with gasoline, preparatory to burning it. One of the men was arrested, the others escaped.

New Director for Jewish Charities.

The Directors of the Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities have elected Morris D. Waldman an Executive Director to succeed Max Abelman, retired. During February more than 1,000 new members were enrolled by the federation. It is expected that by the end of the calendar year at least 10,000 new members will have been enlisted.

treaty should be ratified and was only awaiting the recovery of Deputy Guernier, Reporter for the Foreign Affairs Commission, whose illness has been delaying the reports on the treaties.

Deputy Locquin said the slowness of the ratification process had furnished arguments for Americans in accusing France of imperialism.

"America's failure to ratify the peace treaty was also a great vexation for France," interjected Deputy Balanant.

During the discussion it was stated that France would remain within the terms of the Washington accord in constructing a battleship of 25,000 tons to replace the lost battleship France.

Deputy Locquin sought to establish that the United States Navy was beginning to increase the tonnage of its small units to bring them in proportion with the capital ships.

Deputy Sevene, a naval captain, pointed out that it was France who demanded that the Washington agreements maintain freedom of construction as regarded the small units.

Deputy Locquin replied that hitherto the United States had not manifested any intention to increase this tonnage. He added that he considered it premature for France to come to any decision before knowing what decisions the Powers and the League of Nations would take on armament measures.

British Taxpayer Saves £8,000,000

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 8.—A reduction of more than £8,000,000 in expenditures on the British navy was announced today by Lieut. Col. L. S. Amery, First Lord of the Admiralty. But this is only possible, he said, as "an act of faith" in the spirit shown by the other countries in living up to the Washington treaties. The expenditure estimated for 1923-24 is £61,401,165, a reduction of a third as compared with the expenditure for 1921-22, which was £92,519,869.

More than £4,000,000 are to be spent on two new battleships, the Nelson and Rodney. These are the first to be laid by Great Britain since 1916 and the last which under the Washington agreements can be laid down before 1931.

In an explanatory statement accompanying the estimates, Lieut. Col. Amery draws attention to the fact that they bring out the full effects of the program of reductions initiated immediately upon the acceptance by the British Government of the Washington agreement.

"Ratification of the agreement has not yet been completed by all the great powers concerned," he said, "and none of them have so far followed the example of this country, which in anticipation of the general ratification and implementing of the treaty has already sold or broken up practically all the capital ships to be scrapped under the treaty. This act of faith, though involving risks to which the Board of the Admiralty have been fully alive, has secured for the taxpayer the immediate fruition of large economies which would otherwise have been deferred."

It is not proposed to lay down any new ships in 1923-4, but a small sum has been taken for preparatory work on one submarine, the construction of which will begin in 1924-5. By April 1 the fleet personnel will be reduced to 99,500. The discharge of 20,000 officers and men necessitated by this cut, in number will then be practically complete. As it is not yet decided, however, whether the Admiralty's recommendation will be adopted for the manning of the naval air force from the ranks of the navy, 180 officers and 1,000 men are being temporarily retained in case they are needed for this purpose.

British Air Estimates £18,605,000.

LONDON, March 8 (Associated Press).—The estimates for the upkeep of England's aerial forces for the fiscal year 1923-24, announced today, show a gross total of £18,605,000.

BIG RUSH EXPECTED FOR TREASURY ISSUE

MAY OFFER VICTORY BONDS

Which Would Reduce Amount to Be Refunded on May 20—Oversubscription Expected.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—It is believed that the double issue of $400,000,000 or thereabouts of Treasury certificates offered yesterday will be heavily oversubscribed and that a considerable number of Victory notes, which will be accepted at par and accrued interest, will be exchanged, which will probably avert any further operations in the open market by the Treasury Department until it becomes necessary to refund the outstanding Victory notes which mature on May 20.

It is the object of the Treasury Department to reduce, as far as possible, the total amount of Victory notes which will fall due to May 20. One recent estimate has placed the total at about $800,000,000, but this may be materially cut, and there are some who feel that the notes to be refunded will not exceed $700,000,000.

The $386,000,000 of certificates of indebtedness which are due on March 15 are the only maturities the Treasury must meet, except the Victory notes, before the end of the fiscal year. It is estimated that the income and profits taxes due on March 15 will more than cover that amount, although this, of course, cannot be definitely established at this time. The offering of new certificates of indebtedness to the extent of $400,000,000 therefore probably will leave a considerable margin, after current expenses are met, to reduce the total of the Victory notes not yet called.

The March program is another evidence of the fact that the Treasury Department is endeavoring to adjust its affairs so that its necessary financial operations can be handled without serious disturbance to the money market. The Treasury is now confident that this will be brought about and the nation's budget balanced at the end of the fiscal year. The interest rates of 4¼ and 4½ per cent. for the new certificates offered by the Treasury are believed to be in line with the money market and that they will invite heavy subscriptions.

There were no developments here today to indicate that an increase in the rediscount rates of the Federal Reserve Bank at New York was contemplated. So far as could be learned, Secretary Mellon's visit to New York had nothing to do with this situation.

The forthcoming issue of $400,000,000 of Treasury 4¼ per cent. and 4¼ per cent. certificates, which will be dated March 15, will be well oversubscribed, according to local banking opinion yesterday. It was pointed out in this connection that the interest rate which the new certificates would bear was in general line with the present money market, a situation which would result in large inquiries from institutions and individuals. It would not surprise bankers if the issue was oversubscribed in large proportions because of this condition.

Officials of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York indicated yesterday that they expected a large number of applications at an early date, and a canvass of the financial district showed that several financial institutions were whipping their demands into shape so as to file an early subscription for the certificates.

According to belief yesterday there will be a substantial amount of March 15 Treasury certificates turned over to the Treasury in exchange for the new certificates, and there is also expected to be a definable amount of Victory notes, maturing May 20, exchanged. These securities are to be accepted by the Treasury at par and accrued interest.

INDIAN BOY DISAPPEARS.

Leaves Luxury of Washington, It Is Believed, to Return to Old Haunts.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Dissatisfied among the comforts of a new home on Massachusetts Avenue here, 14-year-old Dwight Madison, said to be the next in line to become Chief of the Chippewa Indians, has disappeared and is believed to be on his way back to the less restricted haunts of his first remembrance.

Dwight came to Washington some months ago with his father, who has been in consultation with Federal Government officers over affairs of the tribe. Their old home was in Independence, Mo., and the police believe Dwight is attempting to return there.

He had no money when he disappeared.

HITCH IS REPORTED IN PACKER MERGER

Armour Interests Are Said to Have Made a Big Cut in the Price to Be Paid Morris & Co.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 8.—Millions of dollars—reports in the financial and stock yards districts place the figure as high as $10,000,000—cut by Armour & Co. from the price shareholders of Morris & Co. expected to receive for their interests, is said to have thrown an unexpected stumbling block in the way of the merger of the two big packing concerns.

As a result of this unexpected hitch conferences, which on some occasions have run far into the night, are in progress between the financial representatives of the two companies. Definite figures on the price offered by the Armour interests for the Morris plant and business have never been given out, but it has been persistently reported, without contradiction, that the Morris family was to receive more than $30,000,000.

The sudden pruning of the indicated price is said to have aroused intense indignation in the Morris camp. Delay in the formal closing of the deal, with consequent uncertainty among officials and employes of the Morris Company, is said to be the cause of the departure of a number of valued men.

Charles M. McFarlane, Treasurer of Morris & Co., recently announced his acceptance of an offer to become Vice President of Wilson & Co. Hiram Bickett, manager of the provision department of Morris & Co., has also joined the ranks of Wilson & Co., and A. N. Maclaren, general manager of Morris & Co.'s traffic department, is to become Vice President in charge of sales of the Chicago Bearing Metal Company. There have been numerous other defections from the Morris ranks, it is said.

Representatives of Morris & Co. are said to be fighting either to conclude the merger with all possible dispatch or to break it off definitely. On the other hand, the powerful financial interests which have taken over the direction of affairs of Armour & Co. are declared to be bringing strong pressure to bear to force the deal through, but at the same time to cut millions from the price.

'UNCLE JOE' CANNON QUITS WASHINGTON

BIDS FAREWELL TO CAPITOL

Takes Last Stroll Through Corridors and Chants Old Verse to Show Policeman He Is Happy.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—A quiet little man with a gray beard and a slouch hat flattened so as to fit into a pocket got out of an automobile at the Union Station today, walked slowly through the crowded waiting room and boarded a train for Danville, Ill. One or two remarked "there goes Uncle Joe"; the train drew out, and with scarcely a ripple, the bustle of the railway terminal went along as usual.

The incident marked the final passing from official life of Joseph Gurney Cannon, who came to Washington 50 years ago to begin his legislative career. His departure was almost as unheralded as was his arrival during the days when the Civil War was as fresh in the memories of the people as the World War is today.

As though he were brushing aside all of the memories of the long years during which he had helped to direct the destinies of the nation as a member of Congress, Uncle Joe hardly cast a backward glance at the Capitol as he left for home. General Grant was president when he began his first term in the House and President Harding was a barefoot boy of eight. James G. Blaine, the "Plumed Knight," was speaker, and men with whom the new member from Illinois had to match wits included Alexander H. Stephens, Roscoe Conklin, James G. Garfield, John J. Ingalls and Ben Butler.

Some of Mr. Cannon's friends said he had been here too long to quit; that he had made farewell trips to Danville before, and always came back, but Uncle Joe said his official life had ended, and that he was going back to Danville to stay.

"All I was good for this session," he said, "was to make up a quorum."

Although not active in debate during the Congress just ended, Mr. Cannon was present at all sessions, day or night. His contributions to The Record were in a philosophical or whimsical vein. On the last night of the Congress he got permission to insert in the Congressional Record:

"What I do not know about the farm credits bill."

But the speech never appeared and those who looked for it finally became convinced that it was a farewell joke.

Uncle Joe's step as he walked to the train was not as jaunty as it was fifty years ago, but it was firm. He used a telephone to call his automobile; rode from his hotel room in an elevator and saw two airplanes flying overhead as he traveled through the crowded traffic of Pennsylvania Avenue. Street cars traveled to and fro, electric signs covered the store fronts and in the background towered the Arlington wireless.

All of these signs of progress had come into being since the day the ambitious young Congressman-elect arrived and rode through dusty streets in a one-horse carriage to begin a fight which ultimately carried him to the Speakership, made his name a national issue and brought him honors seldom accorded a public servant.

One of the last acts of Uncle Joe before his departure was to stroll for perhaps the last time about the corridors of the Capitol. He apparently was in buoyant spirits and to put aside all doubt as to whether he was happy at leaving he chanted a couple of verses of an old ditty to a policeman who had expressed regret at his departure.

"Doesn't that sound like I'm happy?" he asked.

PAROLED NEGRO SHOOTS FIVE IN ONE FAMILY

Returns With Gun After He Is Driven From Resting Place in Corn Crib on Tennessee Farm.

SPENCER, Tenn., March 8.—Posses from both this and White County this morning are searching the banks of the Calf Killer River near Sparta for Lewis Douglas, negro, paroled convict, who at 3 o'clock this morning attempted to wipe out the Haston family, at the family home at Cummingsville, three miles from here.

The wounded included Sam Haston, a brother of Ernest N. Haston, Tennessee's Secretary of State; Mrs. George Haston, Sr., his mother; Mrs. B. D. Shapero, a sister; Tullus Trogden, a boy living on the place, and another person, also living on the place but whose name is not known here.

Members of the Haston family were sitting up at the bedside of Mrs. Sam Haston, who was critically ill, when at 3 o'clock in the morning, some one paid a visit to the corn crib and is said to have found the paroled convict there. He was ordered away and left without creating a disturbance. Later, however, the negro returned and when near the house called out. Members of the family went to the door, and Douglas, who had armed himself with a shotgun, began firing.

IRVIN COBB HAS A FAST RIDE

His Taxi Chauffeur Sentenced to Fifteen Days in the Workhouse.

Charged with driving his taxicab recklessly and with failing to show his license badge, Albert J. Kimbecker, 25 years old, of 120 Roosevelt Avenue, Corona, L. I., was sentenced to fifteen days in the workhouse by Magistrate Norman J. Marsh, in Traffic Court, yesterday. Irvin Cobb, writer, was a passenger in the car at the time.

Saturday night Cobb hailed Kimbecker at Forty-seventh Street and Sixth Avenue and asked to be driven to his home at 830 Park Avenue. As the cab plunged through traffic he tapped at the window of the cab, he says, and asked the driver to slow up. When the cab neared his home, Cobb espied Patrolman William Sinnot of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station, who gave Kimbecker a summons. Probation Officer William J. McElroy reported to the Court that Kimbecker has been a persistent traffic violator.

"Truth-In-Fabrics Bill Should Have Passed", Says Finkelstein.

"Yes, and also a Bill to Compel Truth in Advertising," says his Partner, Maisel.

"Take this clearance sale we are now running," continued Finkelstein "Imagine, we are not only giving the public the benefit of wholesale clothing prices, but also a bona fide 20 per cent discount on our entire line of men's and young men's suits and 15 per cent discount on our entire stock of overcoats.

"When we advertise these facts and also that we guarantee every suit and overcoat pure wool—the very best American mill productions—does everybody believe we are telling the truth? If they did, even the wonderful business we are doing would only be a flea bite. Fifty factories like this wouldn't hold the crowds."

"That's the pity of it," said Maisel. "All the people simply can't believe that they can buy a suit of the purest woolens here as low as $19.60 or an overcoat of like quality at $20.83 until they come here and see for themselves."

"If, as this bill required," said Finkelstein, "every merchant were compelled to print on his labels the percentage of wool in every garment there couldn't be any misrepresentation and consequently the sensational values we are offering would be fully realized by everybody and, as I said, fifty factories like ours wouldn't hold the crowds."

"We certainly need a law like that, yes, and also a law to compel truth in advertising," replied Maisel. "Every day we get people in here who show us garments which they say they bought elsewhere as all wool, but it isn't, and not worth half the price they paid.

"And the pity of it all," said Finkelstein, "is the fact that so many people are stuck this way and think, of course, we are in the same class. It's only when they come here that we can change their minds. However, let the public know our full scale of prices."

Here they are: $19.60, $23.60, $26.40, $30, $31.60 for ultra-fashionable suits of guaranteed pure wool serge, worsted, tweed, etc., and our special 2-trouser suits at $26.40.

A Reduction of 20% Off Wholesale Prices

On overcoats, belted and unbelted, Chesterfield and other latest models, these remarkably low prices prevail—$20.83, $25.08, $25.05, $31.88 and $33.58.

A Reduction of 15% Off Wholesale Prices

If you are hard to fit, a suit or overcoat will be made to order for a slight additional cost. Very complete line of Full Dress and Tuxedo Suits.

SEES AID TO FRAUDS IN BROKER LICENSES

DECLARES LAWS ADEQUATE

Stock swindlers are not all brokers, and the bill to license brokers now pending before the Legislature will only furnish a cloak for promoters of fake investments, according to Seymour L. Cromwell, President of the New York Stock Exchange, who addressed members of the Merchants' Association at a luncheon yesterday at the Hotel Astor. Describing the evil effects of State licensing as foreseen by the Stock Exchange, Mr. Cromwell said he was sure no licensing bureau could have resisted the pressure brought to bear by politicians and others who sought to force the Stock Exchange to restore the wire service of the firm of Hughes & Dier after quotations were stopped by the Stock Exchange.

Mr. Cromwell asserted that the "lethargy of unenforcement" was "even worse than the passion for legislation," and added that there was written into the statute books of New York every law necessary "to defeat the swindler, protect the investor, put the crook in jail and clean up not only what is called 'Wall Street' but every other section of the city."

"Let me say in that connection that from January 20 to February 20, the Better Business Bureau placed sixteen cases involving fraudulent transactions in securities in the hands of the Deputy Attorney General to be prosecuted under the Martin law."

Referring to a recent statement of District Attorney Joab H. Banton, who said that the public had lost $3,000,000,000 since the war through brokers, through the issue of spurious securities, through bucketing and through wash sales, Mr. Cromwell denied that spurious securities were issued by brokerage houses or that bucket shops were brokerage houses.

Mr. Cromwell outlined the necessary function of the Stock Exchange, said legislation that would destroy that market must not be permitted to pass and promised that as soon as bills discriminating between the operations of legitimate business men and the operations of crooks could be devised Wall Street would rally to the support of such legislation.

FEAR A PEST HIDES IN SALVAGED COTTON

Federal Department of Agriculture Officials on Watch for Pink Boll Worm.

The upsetting of 1,377 bales of Egyptian cotton, valued at $300,000, into the Hudson River on Sunday has stirred up many complications. Officials of the Federal Department of Agriculture fear that this cotton may be infested with the pink boll worm and that salvaged bales may find their way into the cotton belt without the fumigation required by law. The owners of the cotton, who are responsible for seeing that the cotton is properly fumigated, are offering $15 a bale reward for salvage. The underwriters, for whom many bales have been recovered, say they cannot fumigate the cotton without drying it and that the officials will not allow them to dry it before it is fumigated.

Harry B. Shaw, pathologist in charge of the Horticultural Bureau of the Federal Department of Agriculture, said the Merritt-Chapman Company had recovered about 1,000 bales.

Mr. Shaw said he feared that some of the cotton might fall into the hands of junk dealers and, without being fumigated, get into the cotton belt.

Francis H. Weeks, of the Weeks Stevedoring Company, 8 Cortlandt Street, which recovered some of the cotton, said the owners were considering shipping the cotton to Canada.

DEFENDS METERS IN GAS CUT-OFF SUIT

Charges of Property Owner Demanding Safety Device 'Loose Language,' Company Says.

Papers in the suit of Frederick Wingenbach, as a taxpayer, against the Consolidated Gas Company to compel the gas company to install a gas cut-off in four apartment houses which he owns in West 119th Street, were filed in the Supreme Court yesterday, and Justice Erlanger will hear the argument today. Robert A. Carter, Vice President of the Consolidated Gas Company, says in an affidavit that Wingenbach is not a consumer of gas in the house and that if the cut-off is installed it will be necessary to shut off the supply of gas from thirty families who have not complained about the meters now installed.

Mr. Carter says further that Wingenbach's buildings are not in the category of buildings which the Board of Aldermen decided should be equipped with cut-offs, and that he fails to show that there is not now installed suitable cut-off valves in front of each building to shut off the gas if necessary.

"VINDICATES" LA FOLLETTE.

Wisconsin Assembly Condemns University's Censure of War Record.

MADISON, Wis., March 8.—The 450 University of Wisconsin faculty members who signed a round robin denouncing the attitude of Senator Robert M. La Follette toward the World War, stood condemned by the Wisconsin Legislature today, as the Assembly voted, 82 to 11, to concur in the Huber resolution adopted by the Senate yesterday, 17 to 12.

This action of the Legislature is taken by members to be a vindication of Senator La Follette, who was himself condemned by the two houses in the early days of the war.

While the resolution confines itself to condemnation of the University of Wisconsin faculty members who signed the document denouncing La Follette, speakers all alluded to it as a general vindication by the Legislature of the Senator's war attitude.

The crystallization of the vogue of color has been effected by the spun glass bracelets which adorn the wrists and arms of the woman of fashion. Numbers of them worn together run the gamut of rainbow hues—crystallized rainbows encircling the world of fashion.

Like Alice in Wonderland, the necklace has shrunk and then found itself growing larger, after tasting much fashionable popularity. Today it just encircles the neck, but its beads are almost as large as olives.

U. S. PLANS TO GROW HER OWN RUBBER

PHILIPPINES TO BE STUDIED

Congress Recently Appropriated $500,000 for Investigation of the Sources—British Control Output.

The automobile and rubber industries were asked yesterday by Secretary of Commerce Hoover to name a committee to work with Government representatives in investigating the possibilities of rubber growing in the Philippines and elsewhere. An appropriation of $500,000 has just been made by Congress in furtherance of the investigation, by which it is hoped to make the great American rubber industry eventually independent of the British rubber producers, who control 90 per cent. of the output of crude rubber.

The motor car manufacturers received the request from Mr. Hoover at a conference with him at the Automobile Chamber of Commerce, 366 Madison Avenue. There he met 131 members of the chamber and members of the Rubber Association of America. He was escorted to the meeting by a committee including Pierre S. DuPont, President of General Motors Corporation, one of the country's six billion-dollar corporations; J. J. Raskob, Vice President of the same corporation; Fred J. Haynes, President of the Dodge Motor Car Company; H. H. Rice, President of the Cadillac Motor Car Company, and George M. Graham, Vice President of the Chandler Motor Car Company.

To the leading representatives of the motor car industry who are the most vitally concerned with the production of rubber, Secretary Hoover outlined the scope of the investigation made possible by the Congressional appropriations. The possibility of growing rubber in the Philippines is considered great by some experts who have looked into the situation in that part of the world. Particularly in the southern part of the Philippine Islands are conditions said to be excellently suited to the industry's development.

Certain South American countries are also under consideration. They are said to offer great possibilities. It is believed that liberal concessions would be granted by those countries in view of the benefits to be derived. Burma and Ceylon are the great sources of supply for the British.

The rubber consumed last year by the American automobile industry was valued at more than $1,000,000,000, according to figures discussed at yesterday's meeting. This included 32,000,000 rubber tires and 34,000,000 inner tubes for American automobiles.

The demand for rubber is expected to grow by leaps during the current year, it was said at the conference, because the automobile industry is expecting to manufacture 3,000,000 automobiles, the greatest output in the history of the American industry. That figure is the estimate based on the production for February, a slack month, when 271,000 automobiles and trucks left the factories.

Of the great automobile output in America 114,000 cars and trucks were for export last year. Europe bought 112,000 passenger cars and trucks. The American producers supplied 85 per cent. of the world's motor cars in 1922.

The effect on the American rubber industry of the British export tax on crude rubber was the subject of a study by the British mission of rubber producers invited here by the American manufacturers. At the time of the arrival of the mission crude rubber had jumped to 37½ cents a pound, from 13 cents last August. Surplus stocks of rubber amounted to 300,000 tons — about a year's production—of which 72,000 tons were in London and the rest in America or in transit.

It was suggested that the Governments of the rubber producing countries might release part of the surplus, under authorization of the British tariff regulations, in order to stabilize the market.

Following the conference Secretary Hoover attended a meeting of the Child Health Association, of which he is President, and later a meeting of the American Relief Administration. Last night he was a guest at the reunion dinner of the American Food Administration at the Hotel Commodore.

Percy N. Collins of the Illinois Athletic Club of Chicago was crowned national amateur billiard champion last night at the Crescent Athletic Club. He won the title for the second time by defeating Francis S. Appleby of the New York Athletic Club in the final game of the annual class A 18.2 balkline tournament. The score was 300 to 237.

Although the game was long drawn out, it developed some sensational playing, particularly on the part of Collins, who came to the front after he appeared to be badly beaten. With Appleby leading him by 109 points, the Chicago player started his long climb and with runs of 31, 79 and 69 in succession, he assumed the lead and went on to win. Appleby had 215 points when Collins finally found his stroke and he added but 22 while his opponent was running out.

Collins previously won the title in 1920. In the recent tournament he came through the final round without losing a game.

Collins played his poorest billiards at the start of last night's match. He appeared to have entirely lost confidence until he made his first good run of 46 in the seventeenth inning. In addition to winning the championship, Collins also won possession of a silver trophy on which he had previously won a leg.

The afternoon games resulted in victories for the finalists. Collins won from Edgar T. Appleby by 300 to 291, and Francis Appleby won from John A. Clinton Jr., by 300 to 240.

Collins Unsteady.

Collins was unsteady in the early innings of the final game and Appleby quickly gained a long lead, though not playing at his very best. At the end of the ninth inning Appleby was leading by 107 to 21. Two runs of 32 each helped to put him well in front, but in making these clusters he was constantly in trouble. He was unable to hold the balls together for any length of time. However, he was able as a rule to gather them again with splendid table shots.

Collins had several good opportunities but could not take advantage of them. He missed repeatedly on either his first or second shot on simple carroms and added not registering in double figures during the first ten innings. He appeared to be playing under a strain and was badly off his game. Appleby left him an easy chance in the tenth inning and, after making one carrom, the balls spread. He tried a bank shot and missed.

In the thirteenth inning Collins gathered a cluster of 18 and showed improvement but missed on an easy one-cushion bank. Appleby scored but one point, and left the object balls less than an inch apart, a draw shot falling short, but Collins ran only six from this set up before he came a cropper.

Appleby made a run of 43 in his fourteenth inning, during which he had the balls under fine control. He escaped several lineups through fortunate kisses, but finally had to make a one-cushion bank in the corner and missed.

Collins missed down and made a fine run of 46 points on his seventeenth run at the table and brought his score over the century mark. Three innings later he made a cluster of 31 and was playing steadily when he missed a draw shot. But he came right back and gave a fine exhibition when he ran 79 and got within one point of Appleby, the score being 215 to 214.

During this time Collins played brilliantly. He made a score of difficult shots and several times when the balls spread he quickly gathered them. He kept the gallery applauding and was at his ease. He had the balls in a corner at the foot of the table but they spread on the seventy-eighth shot and he finally missed a bank to the side rail.

Appleby failed to count, and Collins at once assumed the lead on his next turn at the table, when he ran 69.

The score by innings:

Referee—W. J. Ryan.

Collins Hard Pressed.

Percy Collins earned the right to play in the final game for the title by defeating Edgar T. Appleby, former champion, in the first of the afternoon games. Though not particularly brilliant at any stage of the game, Collins played consistently well and was always able to take advantage of his opportunities. However, he was hard pressed near the end, as the score of 300 to 291 indicates.

Appleby had a chance to go out when he had brought his total up to 291, but he missed a masse shot and Collins ran out his string in his turn at the table. Appleby was not in good form at any time during the tournament. Only on occasions did he show the form that won the title for him a year ago. His high run of 89 yesterday was an exhibition of good billiards, but several times he lost control of the balls and had to resort to open table play to get them in position again. Collins kept steadily at the job of scoring and played with confidence. He had been in his best form all through the tournament.

The score by innings:

Percy N. Collins—9 27 0 1 0 27 48 1 0 1 23 35 48 1 37 0 8 19 17 10. Total, 300; average, 15; high runs, 48, 48.

Edgar T. Appleby—28 6 0 9 0 0 28 0 7 0 9 21 80 1 5 0 1 6 31 53 12. Total, 291; average, 14 11-20; high runs, 80, 53.

Francis Appleby kept his slate clean in the afternoon game by winning from John A. Clinton Jr., 300 to 240. Francis took the lead in the early innings with runs of 32 and 50. Clinton made a run of 75 in the sixth and threatened to take the contest, but he fell down badly in succeeding innings and Appleby drew away safely.

Clinton was one of the surprises of the tournament. He played remarkably well at times and his failure to win the title was due probably to his lack of experience in championship competition. This was his first attempt to win the title. He at least holds the record for high average of 37 4-8 and high run of 154.

The score by innings:

Francis S. Appleby—0 32 20 17 0 6 0 5 0 12 8 54 24 0 20 9 17 0 1 45 2. Total, 300; average, 14 8-21; high runs, 54, 50.

CLINE TO REFEREE TITLE CUE MATCH

Hoppe and Schaefer Approve Selection of Philadelphian, a Former Champion.

Harry Cline of Philadelphia will referee the 1,500-point match between Willie Hoppe and Jake Schaefer for the world's professional 18.2 balkline billiard championship. The Quaker professional, who once held the title, was definitely selected yesterday. Cline is conceded to be one of the best qualified men in the country to officiate at such an important affair. He will take the place of J. Herbert Levis, the Chicago amateur, who had been named originally to act as the third man at the table side.

Schaefer protested against Levis, and C. P. Miller, Vice President of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, called a meeting of the players. Schaefer submitted a list of about ten names, but at the first session it was impossible for the rivals to agree. That session was followed by another formal conference and several informal confabs were held. When Cline was finally mentioned both men agreed that if he could arrange his affairs in Philadelphia so that he could officiate he would be acceptable to them. An offer to referee was sent to Cline and yesterday he informed Mr. Miller that he would be glad to referee the match, which is to start in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Pennsylvania next Monday night.

No meeting was held yesterday. As soon as Mr. Miller received Cline's acceptance he notified Hoppe and Schaefer, and the players said the selection was agreeable to them.

"Cline is one of the best men in the country," asserted Hoppe. "Not only has he been a player of the first flight himself, but he has had experience as a referee. I am glad that he has been obtained to act."

Schaefer previously had stated that he would be perfectly satisfied if Cline would accept the invitation to act as referee. "He is a competent official and knows the game thoroughly," was Schaefer's comment.

With the question of the referee satisfactorily settled, everything is now in readiness for the three nights' play. The players have been practicing for the last month and both report that they are in excellent condition. The tickets have been on sale for a week and the demand has exceeded expectations. Arrangements have been made to seat 2,000 persons in the ballroom and it is evident that the supply will be insufficient.

Billiard Results.

In the second of the series of practice matches in which Willie Hoppe is preparing for his meeting with Jake Schaefer for championship next week at the Hotel Pennsylvania, Hoppe last evening defeated Charlie Peterson at the Hoppe-Peterson Billiard Club by 500 to 146. A new set of balls was used and the players found them untrue and excellent practice was obtained. The handicap Hoppe ran out in ten innings, averaging fifty and getting a high run of 143. Peterson's high run was forty-four and his average 16 2-9.

The score:

Hoppe—122, 0, 40, 143, 27, 1, 4, 60, 100—500
Peterson—0, 1, 18, 33, 15, 17, 0, 44, 18—146

Leeker in fifty-two innings, the score being 30 to 20.

One match was played last evening at Thum's Billiard Academy in the amateur handicap three-cushion tournament, A. Isaacs defeating Z. RUMOR OF IMPENDING RED SOX SALE REVIVED

Frazee Reported to Have Discussed Project Recently With Bostonians.

BOSTON, March 8.—Rumors of the impending sale of the Red Sox by President Harry Frazee were renewed today in dispatches from the Hot Springs (Ark.) training camp quoting Representative James A. Gallivan of Boston as having said that Frazee was discussing such a project in New York with President Johnson of the American League, and that the prospective purchasers were Bostonians.

The pitchers and catchers of the Red Sox squad, led by Jack Quinn, who is beginning his twenty-third season in the box, had their first workout yesterday. From the St. Petersburg (Fla.) training camp of the Braves word came that Frank Gibson, Texan catcher, was the only known hold-out.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 8.—Larry Graver, Secretary of the Boston Red Sox, said today that Representative Gallivan of Boston probably had been misunderstood.

"I know that Mr. Gallivan would make no such statement," Mr. Graves said.

He explained that Mr. Gallivan had no official connection with the club and asserted that he was without authority to issue statements concerning its affairs.

LOCAL TURF SEASON BEGINS ON APRIL 30

Two-Day Hunts Meeting to Start Campaign — Jamaica Track Opens on May 2.

OTHER DATES ALSO NAMED

Jockey Club Announces Complete Schedule for 1923 — Change in Selling Race Rule Discussed.

The thoroughbreds will come back to New York on Monday, April 30. This was decided yesterday at the regular monthly meeting of The Jockey Club, which was held at the club's offices in West Fortieth Street. On that date and the next the United Hunts Racing Association will hold its Spring meeting. On the following day, Wednesday, May 2, at the Jamaica course, the Metropolitan Jockey Club will open the season proper. The Jamaica meeting will continue until May 23, making nineteen days of racing in which three Saturdays are included at this popular track.

On May 24 the Westchester Racing Association will inaugurate a nineteen-day meeting at the beautiful Belmont Park track. From Belmont the horses will be sent to Aqueduct for nineteen days of competition, and when this meeting ends on July 6 the Empire City Association will entertain at the Yonkers course until July 28.

Then will come a three-day intermission, following which the Saratoga meeting will be held, as is customary, throughout the month of August. After leaving Saratoga the horses will return to the metropolitan tracks and thirteen-day meetings will be held in succession at Belmont, Aqueduct, Jamaica and Empire City, concluding at the last named course on Wednesday, Oct. 31.

Schedule Includes 157 Days.

In all, including the Saratoga and United Hunts meetings, 157 days of racing are in store for lovers of the thoroughbreds. There will hardly be a vacant moment from the time the first barrier lifts on the last day of April until the last horse trails home in the final event at Yonkers on Oct. 31. Not only will there be lots of racing, but lots of quality as well is promised, and 1923 should be one of the most prosperous years that the turf has known since racing was revived in New York State.

The standards under which racing has been conducted here since its revival, the enforcement of the rules and, in general, the rules themselves, have been of such high order that they have come to be accepted as a matter of course, but in the opinion of many followers of the turf the rules will be still further improved by the adoption of the Joseph E. Davis amendment to the selling race rule. This proposed change was discussed at yesterday's meeting and a special committee was appointed to study the matter thoroughly and recommend some action. This committee is expected to report the result of its findings within a week or ten days. The general opinion among those best informed is that some decisive action will be taken on this troublesome rule before the season opens here, but this action need not necessarily take the form of objections as proposed by Mr. Davis. In brief, the trouble lies in the fact that under the present rule owners have been able to race handicap horses in claiming races and then protect them above the entered selling price.

Proposed Selling Race Rule.

To prevent this evil Mr. Davis has suggested the following amendment to the selling race rule:

No sweepstakes nor selling purse other than claiming shall be given.

In claiming races all horses are subject to claim by any one or their authorized agents, but for their own account only. A horse claimed shall not be delivered by the original owner until authorization be given by the Secretary, and the Secretary may require the proper amount to be deposited with the claim unless the claimant shall have such amount to his credit with the association. All horses may be claimed for the selling price. Each horse shall run for the account of the person in whose name it starts, but title to the claimed horse shall be vested win the claimant from the time it leaves the paddock for the post.

Every claim must be in writing, sealed and filed with the Secretary or Clerk of the Scales at least fifteen minutes before post time, and if more than one person should enter claim for the same horse, they shall draw lots for priority in the presence of one of the Stewards, and the one determined by such lots to have the right of claim shall become the owner of the horse, whether it be alive or dead, sound or unsound or injured during the race or after it. The Secretary shall not open a bid nor inform an owner that a claim has been made until after the race is run.

No person shall claim his own horse nor more than one horse. If the Stewards should be of the opinion that any person is not claiming for his own account, they shall require him to make an affidavit he is doing so, and if, upon proof, it is ascertained that he made a false affidavit, he shall be ruled off.

No horse claimed out of a claiming race shall be allowed to start in a claiming race until thirty days have elapsed.

Those present at yesterday's Jockey Club meeting were F. K. Sturgis, George H. Bull, John E. Cowdin, Joseph E. Davis, Robert L. Gerry, A. H. Morris, R. W. Maxwell, Joseph E. Widener and William Woodward.

At a meeting of the Stewards of The Jockey Club the following were present: August Belmont, F. K. Sturgis, John E. Cowdin, J. E. Davis, J. E. Widener and William Woodward.

SCOTT JOINS GIANTS, BUT DOES NOT SIGN

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 8.—Jack Scott reported to John McGraw today and put on a Giant uniform but he has not yet signed a contract or even accepted terms. Apparently the rule against hold-outs practicing here has been lifted in the case of the big right-hander from Ridgeway, N. C., for he was out with the other boys this morning and afternoon despite the fact that his case is still in the hands of President Stoneham.

However, it looks as if Scott's case will be speedily adjusted. He and the club are not so far apart as might be supposed. McGraw had a talk with the big fellow this afternoon, and after the conference John J. made the following optimistic remarks:

"Scott has not yet accepted terms, but his case has been greatly simplified. In our conversation today he made me a counter-proposition that struck me as fair and reasonable. In line with my understanding with President Stoneham I was not empowered to accept this new proposition, but I have telegraphed it to Stoneham and asked him for a decision. I look for no trouble in the matter."

According to Scott, McGraw wired him to come here and talk things over. This, of course, is flying straight in the face of the Giants' rule against hold-outs, but the rule, it seems, has its exceptions.

Rule Aimed at Bentley.

In fact, it is suspected that the rule was designed mainly for Jack Bentley. If the Baltimore star should be allowed to report here before accepting terms, that very act might invalidate the Giants' later claim that Bentley had made a bona-fide retirement from baseball, and it is also quite practically that the Giants will base their demand for the return of the $65,000 paid to the Baltimore Club, if Bentley persists in his stand. Quite naturally, therefore, the Giants do not want Bentley to report unless he is legally bound to them. Scott had a light workout at League Park today. He pitched a few, and then took a long jog several times around the park. Ryan was expected in today and did not arrive.

The first nine-inning game of the season was the big feature of the afternoon session. The Frank Frisches retaliated against the Heinie Groh's and massacred them, 7 to 4, in a free-hitting affair.

Home runs were as thick as mosquitos in New Jersey. Ralph Shinners and Dave Bancroft, Frisches' shortstop, started it in the second with a poke to the fences in left centre. In the third young Travis Jackson rammed a fly over the left field fence and tied the score. But little red-headed Lucas, the pitcher, put the Frisches ahead again in the fifth with a screaming liner to the same fence that Shinners reached.

Frisches Score Four More.

The Frisches followed this up in the eighth by prodding Virgil Barnes for four runs on singles by Frisch, Young and Higbee and a triple by Kernan.

Walberg, Voight and Virgil Barnes pitched for the losers, and Johnson, Lucas and Morrison for the triumphant Frisches. Lucas blanked the enemy for three innings and had a fine single to add to his homer. Virgil Barnes showed the least of the six twirlers.

That Jackson boy can hit. His home run was solid and emphatic, and he had a single besides. Earl Smith got two doubles and a single. Jimmy O'Connell's lot was only one single.

Kitts, the added entry from Dallas, is no slouch as an athlete. Today he batted for Walberg and slammed a triple to deep right. He circled the bases like a young and ambitious greyhound. This lad, it develops, was All-Southwestern quarterback for two years at the Southern Methodist University in Dallas. You can't turn around now in the Giants' camp without bumping right into a collegian.

Willie Kamm, who cost the White Sox a cool and even $100,000, was here today to compare with his old chum, Jimmy O'Connell. Willie went out to the park in the afternoon, but only looked on. He says O'Connell will be a sure-fire hit, the same thing that Jimmy said of Willie last week. You can't beat these California boosters.

"If he only has the heart and courage he'll be a fine pitcher," says John McGraw of Earl Webb, the Memphis boy. "I can see he has speed, strength and a good build, and I know he has a nice curve, for he pitched against us last year at Memphis."

SIX MORE ROBINS AT TRAINING CAMP

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 8.—There were twenty-five members of the Robins working out at the Brooklyn team's training camp here this afternoon. The new arrivals in camp were Jimmy Johnston, Bill Mullen, Stuffy Stewart, Tom Griffith, Walter Keeley and Bernie Neis. They joined their mates in batting practice. Neis and Griffith succeeded in driving the ball over the right field fence. Johnston sent several drives against the barrier.

Manager Robinson watched the players closely as they worked. The stout leader stood behind the batting cage and issued instructions to the athletes as they stepped to the plate. Burleigh Grimes, Harry Harper, Clarence Brown, Leon Cadore and Leo Dickerman took turns pitching to the batters. The hurlers did not try to throw any curves, but now and then turned on more speed than they showed in their previous workouts. Dickerman again made a decided impression on Robinson, and it now seems certain that the tall right-hander will be retained during the championship season.

Another practice game was played between the Yannigans and regulars. It was called at the end of the sixth inning with the score tied at 6 to 3. The regulars boasted of an infield that was composed of Decatur at first, Stewart at second, Johnston at short and Mullen at third. Griffith played right field, Neis was in centre and Clarence Brown covered left. Al Mamaux and George Smith each pitched three rounds for the Yannigans, and Dizzy Vance and Harry Shriver divided the mound work for the regulars.

A real first baseman has yet to report to Robbie. Fournier, who was obtained from the Cardinals for Hi Myers, has threatened to retire from the game, and Schleibner has not yet reported. He is expected to arrive here in time to take part in tomorrow's workout.

BENTON RESTORED TO GOOD STANDING

Landis Declares Former Giant Eligible to Play in Organized Baseball.

APPROVES TRADE TO REDS

Says American Association's Standards Are as High as the Majors' —Criticises Pitcher's Accusers.

CHICAGO, March 8 (Associated Press).—The controversy over Pitcher J. C. (Rube) Benton was settled tonight by a decision by K. M. Landis, Baseball Commissioner, declaring Benton eligible to play in organized baseball, approving his transfer to the Cincinnati National League team by the St. Paul club of the American Association, severely criticising those who brought charges against Benton nearly two years after the alleged irregularities occurred.

The National League had objected to the transfer of Benton on the ground that he had knowledge of the 1919 world's series scandal and failed to bring it to the attention of the proper authorities and failed to sustain charges filed by him against another player.

The question involved, the Commissioner said, was whether Benton was eligible to play anywhere. The standards of the American Association were as high as those of the majors, he ruled, adding that if Benton was ineligible to play with the Reds he was ineligible to play with the St. Paul club.

It had never been contended, Commissioner Landis said, that Benton was guilty of dishonest ball playing. He said the charges against the player were known throughout the baseball world in 1920, but no disciplinary action was even considered while Benton played through the 1920 season and until August, 1921, with the New York Giants, and the succeeding year and a half with St. Paul. After two years these same matters had been brought forward in the form of charges, with no new facts involved, the decision said, concluding:

"This is at war with every conception of justice and fair play. Certainly the time to present and to act upon charges which seek to permanently deprive a man of his chief means of livelihood is at the time the matters alleged become known, not at the objectors' discretion upward of two years later."

ENGLISH POLO TEAM IS DEFEATED AGAIN

U. S. Trio Excels in Every Department of Game Before Big Crowd at Squadron A Armory.

TONIGHT'S POLO PROGRAM.

Class C—Riding Club vs. Squadron A "Y" team.

Class D—Riding Club vs. First Philadelphia City Troop.

America decisively outplayed England in the second match of the indoor polo tournament for the John R. Townsend International Challenge Cup at the Squadron A armory last evening, the defenders of the trophy emerging victors by a score of 11 goals to 2. The final figures represented fairly accurately the difference in the play of the two teams in about all departments of the game and indicated that the international trophy will remain in this country.

The second match was played before the largest and most enthusiastic audience which has graced the tournament and the individual performances of the players were greeted with unstinted applause. The international event was preceded by two contests in the national championship tournament. In Class C the Squadron A "Y" team defeated the 101st Cavalry by 9 goals to 5 and in Class B the Riding Club won from the Squadron A "Y" team by 6 goals to 5½. The latter victory puts the Riding Club trio into the final of the Class B event, in which it will meet the Squadron A "X" team.

It was nearly 10 o'clock, therefore, when the eight ponies in the strings of the contesting teams were paraded with their respective national colors preceding them. They were followed by the players, who were greeted with great enthusiasm as they rode about the great ring two by two. John R. Townsend, donor of the massive challenge trophy, threw in the ball at the opening of the first period.

Unfamiliar With Indoor Game.

As in the first contest on Tuesday evening, the British players plainly showed that they have not fully mastered the indoor game, although Egan, their field leader, made heroic efforts to rally his forces throughout the contest, coming up time and again into the play when his own goal was not in imminent danger, and dashing back at top speed when the tide of battle on the tanbark turned against the invaders.

Captain Kenneth McMullen, at No. 1 for the challengers, once more appeared not at home in his position. He lacked accuracy in his driving and did not work into the team combination with success at times when team play meant either the scoring or the saving of a goal. Blackwell, the American No. 2, was most successful in riding off the opposing No. 1 and the attention which the heavier American player devoted to putting McMullen out of the play whenever the opportunity offered undoubtedly played a large part in the Englishman's ineffectiveness in his position.

Captain Holman was much better than in the opening contest of the tournament, but it was Egan again who starred for the visitors. The most experienced of the English players at the indoor game, he was able to play much closer to his forwards than in previous matches and showed a world of speed in getting back to position on the defense after one of his sorties to the firing line. He still exhibited a fearsome wallop, both forehand and backhand, but his accuracy in placing did not compare with that of the American, back and in this respect the match was a repetition of the first.

Blackwell and Kinny, the American forwards, worked together much more effectively than in the opening contest. When one scored it was generally as a result of his partner's clever feeding up of the ball, and it also was usually as a result of long and accurate driving up by Granniss in the rear. The two forwards interchanged with speed and disconcerting understanding that was seemingly intuitive.

Granniss's Strokes Accurate.

Granniss at back did not shine so brilliantly as in the opening match, largely because the ball was more often in British territory, and he was not called upon to make so many long saving strokes in the territory of his own goal. His strokes, both backhand and forehand, however, were long and accurately placed, enabling his forwards to pick up and carry on toward the English goal.

In brief, the United States representatives outrode their opponents, were more accurate in their mallet work and appeared to fight harder in the pinches, playing the game out to the last whistle in every period.

Immediately after the first throw-in there was a scrimmage, into which Egan dashed and swung his mallet with such force that he hooked another and his stick was shattered. He rode to the side for another and returned to the play just as Blackwell took the ball up to his goal and scored on a rather soft shot from a sharp ankle in less than a minute of play.

The first period indicated that the game would be almost a runaway for the defenders of the trophy unless the English players braced tremendously. Shortly after the opening score Kinny and Holman engaged in a mix-up in which the American's mount came out second best. Kinny was unhorsed, but unhurt. The American player, none the worse for this experience other than a ruffled temper, entered the play again with such effectiveness that he scored the second goal after four minutes of play, taking the ball up the tanbark with two effective strokes. Only 35 seconds later he put over the third American goal, driving a backhander about 75 feet to the English goal.

Blackwell Scores Two More.

Blackwell brought the score of 5 goals to 0 before the whistle blew for the end of the first period. The first of his tallies in the closing moments was made from in front of the English goal. Egan had endeavored to carom the ball off the back wall, but the rubber rebounded straight off and Blackwell rode in and hit for the score. The next tally by the No. 2 was made after Captain Granniss had relayed the ball up from his own goal to the vicinity of the English goal. Egan backed it out of immediate danger, but Blackwell came up along the side and caught it with a forehander that drove true to a score.

America increased its lead at the opening of the second period. After the scrimmage immediately following the throw-in, Blackwell got on the ball and fed it to Kinny, who picked it up with a nearside forehand shot and scored fairly between the uprights.

Captain Granniss then came into the limelight for a tally after Egan had saved on a shot by Blackwell. The American field captain came up into a scrimmage at the side of the ring about a third of the distance from the English goal and shot accurately for the tally.

There ensued a long series of scrimmages with the honors about even. From one of these Captain Holman hooked the ball out and Egan came through from position and carried on to score England's first goal, while Holman effectively rode off Kinny to make a clear path to the American goal. It took Blackwell a little over a minute to score the ninth goal of the game and America's eighth on a forehand drive, after the ball had been relayed to him by his team captain. At some point in this period a foul was called against Captain Granniss for crossing, so that the score at half time was 7½ to 1 in favor of the United States.

English Team Stages Rally.

With this overwhelming lead at half time it was evident that the English case was almost hopeless. The challengers, however, grew stronger defensively in the last half of the game and in the fourth period, especially, were able to render the American attack almost ineffective.

At the opening of the third period Kinny scored in 35 seconds by taking the ball, relayed up by Blackwell, and driving a fairly easy goal. The second and last English goal was scored after a little more than a minute of play. Captain Egan brought the ball along on two good drives from his own territory and Captain Holman, cutting in from the side, picked it up and shot straight between the American goal posts.

The American players succeeded in working the ball down toward the English goal, where a scrimmage gave Kinny an opportunity to tap the ball between the English posts. Play alternated up and down the field, the British players striving desperately to improve their score and the Americans tightening their defense effectively. Near the end of the period Granniss drove up a long shot, which Blackwell forwarded to Kinny. The No. 1 played a carrom to the side wall and on the rebound shot the goal. During this period the referee detected Blackwell turning into the line of play and announced a penalty of half a goal against the United States after the play had stopped.

Only one goal was scored in the final period, the English defense preventing all scoring except one tally by Kinny. The latter hooked the ball out of a scrimmage, lost it and then regained it in a position to shoot for the final score. The challengers, for nearly five minutes, although their cause was hopeless, strove with all their might to stem the American tide and successfully blocked all further scoring efforts.

Among those who were spectators at the match were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Harriman, Louis Stoddard, R. Lawrence Smith, Mr. and Mrs. James Marshall, Commodore and Mrs. Dallas Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. John Bloodgood, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Benjamin, Mr. and Mrs. Struthers Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Towar Bates, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bliss and the Misses Bliss, Commodore and Mrs. Nash, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Haight, Maj.-Gen. Dispute After Class B Game.

The match between the Squadron A, "X" team and the Riding Club in Class B was anybody's game, even after the final whistle. There was a debate as to whether the final Riding Club goal by Jones was a full-fledged score or not. Referee Fahys decided that a goal was scored and the match went to the Riding Club. Captain Matthews, No. 2 for the Squadron trio, did some hard hitting. The Riding Club will meet the Squadron A "X" team in the finals of Class B next week.

In the Class C game the Squadron A "Y" team defeated the 101st Cavalry team, despite the fact that the latter team was leading by 4 to 3 at the end of the half. Drowne accounted for three goals in the last period, while Timmerman at No. 1 and Fanning at back made two and one tallies, respectively. The summaries:

Argentina Joins Ranks of Challengers for Davis Cup

BUENOS AIRES, March 8 (Associated Press).—The Argentine Lawn Tennis Association announces that Argentina will be one of the contestants for the Davis Cup this year. Notification to this effect will reach New York next week.

The players are expected to leave for Europe about the middle of May.

MISS CADLE BOWS TO MLLE. LENGLEN

Mrs. Mallory's Conqueror Loses to French Star in Mentone Tennis Play, 6-0, 6-1.

MENTONE, March 8 (Associated Press).—Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen defeated Miss Cadle of England in the women's singles of the Mentone lawn tennis tournament today, 6—0, 6—1. Miss Cadle is the player who on Tuesday eliminated Mrs. Molla Bjurstadt Mallory, the American champion.

Mlle. Lenglen played a vigorous game against Miss Cadle, being apparently anxious to show how decisively she could defeat Mrs. Mallory's conqueror. She gave evidence of disappointment when the English girl succeeded in winning the eleventh game, which came about, however, through the champion's own errors.

Mlle. Lenglen repeatedly played her opponent up to the net and then scored with smashing drives down the sidelines.

Tomorrow Mlle. Lenglen will meet Mrs. Satterthwaite, who eliminated Mrs. Mallory from the singles in the Monte Carlo tournament last week.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan, the former Californian, won from Mrs. Beamish of England, 6—3, 6—3.

Mrs. Mallory and Miss Blake, the only all-American pair in the women's doubles, defeated Lady Denman and Mrs. Sanderson of England, 6—2, 6—1, reaching the fourth round. This was the first winning match in which Mrs. Mallory has figured at Mentone.

The Racquet Club player turned the tables in the second game, principally by good placing, and won by 15—12. The third game was a hard battle in which Gummill had the lead at 14—10. Riggs then came up, through his exceptionally fine driving, to win the game and match at 17—16. In the University Club handicap tournament final match yesterday Hoffman Nickerson, playing from scratch, defeated G. M. Sherman, plus 3, by scores of 15—12, 15—9, 15—12.

Southern California Coach Calls Membership Ruling Justified.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 8.—Intercollegiate A. A. A. Henderson, head coach.

The attitude taken by the students because of the tabling of U. S. C.'s membership application was rendered calmer by the receipt of the text of the resolution passed and an explanatory statement by Secretary Abbott Southall. U. S. C. has not definitely called off plans to participate in Eastern meets, said Henderson.

FIRPO INJUNCTION HEARING TODAY

Papers in an action to show cause why an injunction should not be issued against Luis Angel Firpo and the Madison Square Garden Sporting Club to prevent the bout between Firpo and Bill Brennan at the Garden next Monday night were filed in the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon. The petitioner is Alfred M. Ernst, President of the Pioneer Sporting Club. Frank Coultry, general manager of the Garden, was served with a summons to appear before Supreme Court Justice Erlanger at 10 o'clock this morning. Firpo was served on Wednesday afternoon. Hyman Bushe, an attorney, will represent Firpo and the Garden.

The Pioneer Sporting Club claims priority to Firpo's services, asserting that Firpo agreed to box for that club last Fall before sailing for his home in Argentina. This agreement was reached, according to officials of the Pioneer S. C., when the club agreed to the transfer of a bout between Firpo and Jack Herman to Brooklyn. It is claimed that this transfer was agreed to with the understanding that Firpo would box at the Pioneer before appearing at any other club.

It is understood that Firpo and the Garden will enter a general denial of all the allegations, and in the event of an injunction being issued, Rickard will try to go through with the bout by posting a bond.

Coultry said yesterday that Rickard had gone ahead with the arrangements to hold the bout following the refusal of the New York State Athletic Commission to approve the complaint of the Pioneer Sporting Club and that the Garden officials were confident the bout would be held on Monday night.

HARVARD HOCKEY COACH RESIGNS

Claflin Says Business Considerations Make His Retirement Essential.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 8.—The Harvard hockey players, returning to their studies as champions of the "Big Three" after defeating Yale at New Haven in the deciding game of the series last night, learned that Coach William H. Claflin was resigning. In the four years he has been head of Harvard hockey Claflin's teams have won every series with Yale and have lost only one game to the Blue—that by which Yale tied the series here last Saturday. Claflin said that business and family considerations make his resignation necessary.

It was indicated that Captain George Owen, whose goal in an overtime period won the game last night, might continue his connection with hockey at Harvard as coach or assistant coach next year. Coaching in this sport has always been on an amateur basis and will continue so under Owen or whoever is selected.

William E. Crosby Jr. of Newton was elected captain of the Harvard hockey team to succeed Owen this afternoon. He plays a defensive position, as does Owen.

BECKER VICTOR ON ICE.

Wins Handicap Class A Skating Race at Iceland Rink.

West Becker, the Iceland star, won from scratch in the mile and one-half Class A handicap race at Iceland last evening in the handicap races. Becker finished two yards ahead of McLaughlin of the Tremont Skating Club, who was about a yard ahead of Morris of the Peerless Skating Club.

In the women's quarter-mile race Miss Elsie Muller of the 181st Street Ice Palace found a difficult field to make her way through. She fought hard to gain the lead and just missed catching Miss Edna Carroll at the finish line. The handicap was just a trifle too much for Miss Muller.

The summaries:

Quarter-Mile Women's Handicap—Won by Edna Carroll, Women's Skating Association (85 yards); second, Elsie Muller, 181st Street Ice Palace (scratch); third, Ottoly Barth, Women's Skating Association (60 yards). Time—0:40 4-5.

Men's Class A Handicap, 1½ Miles—Won by West Becker, Iceland (scratch); second, Mike McLoughlin, Tremont Skating Club (70 yards); third, Louis Morris, Peerless Skating Club (75 yards). Time—4:40 4-5.

Class B, Half-Mile, Handicap—Won by P. O'Brien, unattached (70 yards); second, A. Shaffer, unattached (55 yards); third, P. Golden, unattached (60 yards). Time—1:52 3-5.

Half-Mile, Novice—Won by A. Wallace, unattached; second, A. Marshall, unattached; third, W. Perry, unattached. Time—1:49 1-5.

During one of the greatest jams of the week starting shortly before midnight last night, eight of the fourteen teams remaining in the six-day grind at Madison Square Garden were lapped. At the end of the fifteen-minute session of wild riding, during which all the riders were on the track and the capacity crowd in the amphitheatre was yelling itself hoarse, it was announced that the following teams, which had been up with the leaders, had dropped back a lap: Oliveri and Drobach, the Wynsdau Brothers, the Buysse Brothers, Thomas and Taylor, and Lorenz and Saldow, as well as Kopsky and Osterritter, Spencer and Fitzsimmons and Kochler and Stockholm.

The result left six teams in the lead so far as mileage goes—Goullet and Grenda, McNamara and Horan, Brocco and Coburn, Egg and Van Kempen, Hanley and Magin and Gastman and Lands.

The jam was started by Henry Wynsdau, one of the Belgians. He had not opened up any distance before Coburn, who was in hot pursuit, set out on his own accord. He and Brocco, alternating, managed to pick up almost half a lap on the field. After a few whirls Brocco gave up the attempt and was overhauled by Horan who had ridden like mad, and the Wynsdaus.

Egg's Effort Fails.

Brocco again started out, and opened up distance on the field, but he was caught by Goulett and Van Kempen, who had relieved the tiring Egg. Before the cheers of the crowd had died out, Egg, returning to the track, started off again with Hanley and Lands in pursuit. The three were a quarter of a lap to the good when a poor pick-up by Van Kempen spoiled matters so far as the Swiss-Holland combination was concerned.

Then Reggie McNamara decided the time was ripe for an attempt. Shooting out of the field at the entrance turn of the track, he opened up yard on yard and sent his team-mate, Horan, off to a good start. On the following pick-up Jake Magin dashed alongside of McNamara, putting an end to the aspiration of the Newark pair.

A moment later, Goulett shot out but slowed up after a lap or so of hard riding. A few minor flurries, led principally by Stockholm, Spencer and Kopsky, followed before the riders settled down to their steady, monotonous plodding once more.

Goullet-Grenda Gain.

The rivalry approached animosity last night and, although Goullet and his partner, Grenda, won the majority of points in the two-mile dashes, the honors went to Van Kempen, who, on two occasions, clearly outsped Goullet.

The Goullet-Grenda pair collected 41 points in the sprints, bringing their total to 247, while Van Kempen and Egg gathered 24, which left them at the top with 378. Van Kempen won four sprints but was disqualified in one. Grenda accounted for three, while Goullet took two, in addition to finishing second twice and third once.

Kopsky and Osterritter regained the lap they lost in the earlier jam of the evening, shortly after 11 o'clock last night. Kopsky let out a burst of speed which gained him a quarter of a lap, and after one relief by Osterritter Kopsky pulled up on the heels of the pack, leaving the team only three laps to the back.

The "steal" was more or less of a gift, however, none of the other riders paying much attention to the yellow-jerseyed pair.

Brocco and Coburn experienced a bit of ill luck in the afternoon, when Magin, Saldow and Egg went down in a spill, ending a bid that the Italian-American pair were making for a lap. Brocco opened up a quarter of a lap, but the spill ended the drive.

Egg, who appears to be in poor physical condition, as is Goullet, had to have his ankle dressed before he could continue. None of the other riders received more than bruises.

Van Kempen Outrides Goullet.

The first evening sprint brought the two rivals, Van Kempen and Goullet, into competition again, and the Holland rider scored another victory. He jumped into the lead just before the bell-lap, with Goullet on his trail. Goullet tried to pass on the final lap, but failed. Magin took third and Gastman fourth.

Van Kempen took Goullet's measure again in the third sprint, but was disqualified. He got the jump toward the close, and when Goullet tried to get past rode him high on the turn, for which he drew a disqualification, Goullet winning, with Taylor, Coburn and McNamara collecting the remaining points.

Saldow won the fourth heat in a close finish from Drobach. Egg was third and Grenda fourth.

The rivalry between Goullet and Van Kempen was evident in the fifth heat. With Goullet leading the pack at the bell-lap, the Holland rider tried to pass him on the back-stretch, but Goullet swerved and, according to the crowd, rode Van Kempen high. The judges took no notice of the incident, however, giving Goullet first place, with Van Kempen second. Other points went to McNamara and Coburn.

Grenda stepped into the picture in the sixth sprint. Taking the lead in the early part of the last mile, he was never molested. Hanley, Thomas and Lands followed him across the line.

Goullet Surprised Again.

Van Kempen got revenge on Goullet in the next sprint. This time Goullet got the jump and staved off the Van Kempen attack until the final turn, when the Hollander shot away from Goullet and won handily. He was applauded freely and seems to have displaced Goullet in popular esteem.

Grenda took the eighth sprint, which seemed spiritless in comparison with those in which Goullet and Van Kempen were the leaders.

Buysse spoiled matters for another Goullet-Van Kempen duel in the ninth sprint by assuming the lead on the third final lap. He dropped out of the pace-making task and Van Kempen won the contest. Coburn was second, Goullet third and McNamara fourth.

Grenda jumped the field for an easy victory in the final sprint, crossing the line with Brocco a wheel-length back, followed by Horan and Hanley.

2—Lands, Thomas, Hanley, T. Wynsdau.

Jake Magin and Willie Hanley were second with 21, and Sammy Gastman and Dave Lands third with 9. During the third sprint Goullet-Scat Horan for third place, but was disqualified for rough riding.

Previous to the start of the sprints, Brocco, Lands, Henry Wynsdau and Stockholm went down in a spill on the back stretch, but no one was seriously hurt.

SPECIAL REAL ESTATE ANNOUNCEMENT.

"Every year I save money at Jackson Heights"

The liberal features of the Jackson Heights Plan of Tenant-Ownership are available to you.

A resident of Jackson Heights in commenting on these features said:

"I have had many, many experiences with employees and associates; I mean trying to tell them to get out of the rut on the rent paying side of the ledger and get over on the other side, and when I was back in Michigan about eight or nine months ago I had a former employee of mine say to me, 'If I had only just listened to you fifteen years ago. I have recently bought a home and I have been figuring up what I had paid in rent up to the time I bought it. I could have had a home and here I am now just starting to buy one.'

"Personally, I feel that every time I make my payment on my Jackson Heights Garden Apartment I have something laid away which is vastly different than when you pay rent as the ordinary person does."

The New Elevator Garden Apartment Homes of 5 to 7 rooms, 2 and 3 bathrooms, are a sound investment because of the steady growth, desirability, social prestige and easy accessibility of Jackson Heights, where a Golf Course, Tennis Courts, Children's Playgrounds, an Athletic Field, a Club House, meet the requirements of those who desire to lead the normal and healthy out-of-doors life, and yet live in New York City.

FINANCING THE TREASURY.

The Treasury's offer of $400,000,000 certificates brings the total Treasury operations in connection with the public debt to over six billions for the fiscal year. Treasury operations reach such large figures because they are mostly book credits and debits. The new debt pays the old debt, and the balance depends upon the proportion of the old debt that is paid. The welcome end of this churning process may be said to be fairly in sight with the approach of the last billion requiring to be paid or funded next May. The Treasury's total requirements on March 15 are about $700,000,000, against $400,000,000 estimated tax receipts. This year's taxes are the first under the new laws, which alter both the internal taxes and the customs. The latter have been running above the estimates, and business has shown marked revival, so that the Treasury may be able to pay off instead of renewing a considerable debt. It will be noted that the Treasury's offering is at the higher rate of interest corresponding to the increase in Federal Reserve discount rates.

The Treasury calculates closely, and pays no more than its conceded precedence as a borrower justifies. As for the banks, they deserved praise for financing the Treasury below the credit market during the war. The Treasury should always be treated generously and patriotically. Yet the banks, too, have a public function in seeing that the money market reflects money market principles. The exemption privilege which cheapens credit to the Treasury makes it dearer to other borrowers. That is one reason why it should be jealously reserved for wartime. No one has crusaded more zealously on that issue than the present Secretary of the Treasury. But necessity now makes him the largest offender against the rule.

THE COAL DEALERS' COUP.

The monarchist conspiracy which has just been thwarted at Munich shows some signs of the influence of the movies, like the recent attempted burglary of the German Embassy in Rome. Nevertheless, it was by no means a joke; and though on a smaller scale it suggests comparisons with the Kapp putsch of March, 1920. The Bavarian Government found out that "persons who stand outside of political circles had decided to bring about "a forcible change." Consequently fifteen men were arrested and seven of them locked up after examination. Of the eight released one promptly shot himself, which suggests that he at least took the affair seriously.

So far, that is all. No popular disturbances, no bloodshed. Rural Bavaria, at least, seems to be overwhelmingly monarchist; but this affair was a flash in the pan. General LUDENDORFF, living near Munich, is not even mentioned. ADOLPH HITLER and his goose-stepping gray shirts were as hard to find as Baal when his priests wanted him at Carmel. Monarchist Bavaria, ex-army officers, private armies, militarist refugees who swarm in Munich, all stood aside while these "persons who stand outside of political circles" were arrested for trying to realize the end which all these militant adventurers desire.

The leaders are said to have been a professor, who is a theatre manager on the side and owns stock in the leading Munich paper, a musical director, and the attorney for the Association of Wholesale Coal Dealers. This last conspirator was said to have opened communication with a brother coal merchant of Prague who was going to induce the Czechoslovak Government to invade Bavaria. The Czechoslovak Government is about as likely to invade the moon, but this Winter we can believe anything of coal dealers. At any rate, the Munich coal man, who has now committed suicide, was a brother-in-law of General Count VON BOTHMER, one of the most distinguished of Bavarian soldiers; and here at least we are getting near some of the men higher up.

It appears that the coal dealer and the musical director and the dramatic professor were going to set off a revolt next Monday. No doubt more distinguished personages intended to wait and see. Three years ago the unimportant WOLFGANG KAPP, with the help of some minor-league militarists, set out to overthrow the German Republic; and for about twenty-four hours he succeeded. But the general strike upset him before the eminent and cautious gentlemen who had more to lose, as well as to gain, thought it safe to get off the fence. Something of the same sort seems to have happened in Bavaria. To the generals and highnesses and serenities the fate of a coal dealer and a musical director is of no great consequence.

However, the conspiracy seems to have been broken up, so there will probably be no civil war in Bavaria. That will not discourage the pessimists. Yesterday's evening papers printed a list of six or seven European wars that are going to break out as soon as the mud dries up. Ex-Senator LEWIS does even better by tying them all up into one universal war. Turkey is going to start it, Russia and Germany and Hungary will help, even Austria will beat the martial drum and march out to reconquer Trieste and Prague; though the Senator admits, with inexplicable moderation, that he believes Austria would rather have peace "just at present."

Some of the rest of us also long for a little peace just at present, peace from the gloomy prophets who know that they can always get into print by predicting war, no matter how extravagant their combinations and permutations.

GOVERNOR SILZER'S FIGHT.

In the highways controversy in New Jersey between Governor SILZER and the Legislature it is not the Republican majority that appears to advantage. The Republicans are playing politics. Senator EDGE joined them in the capacity of leader, no longer having to divide honors or compete with his former colleague in the United States Senate, Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. According to a Jersey Republican newspaper, Senator EDGE aspires to the absolute control of his party in the State. The Republican Senators having failed to confirm the appointments of Governor SILZER to a bi-partisan Highway Commission of four, and not being able to agree to reject them, Senator EDGE responded willingly to an appeal to break the deadlock. He came to the State House, and in the office of the State Treasurer consulted with the Republican Senators, two or three at a time being admitted to his presence. He was convinced that some of the Senators were tenacious in their belief that Governor SILZER's nominees should be confirmed. There are seventeen Republicans and four Democrats in the Senate.

The Senator had a plan to break the deadlock and acquire prestige as the skilled leader of his party. Admitting that the Governor's Republican selections for the Highway Commission, General HUGH L. SCOTT of Princeton and WALTER KIDDE of Montclair, were personally unobjectionable, "I think," he said, "one man should be in charge "of this work. He should be very "strong, and I have such a man in "mind." The putting of one man in charge involved the displacement of the commission created by the Republican Legislature since the inauguration of Governor SILZER.

Accordingly, a "ripper" bill to provide for a one-man commission was prepared in an Assembly caucus. Senator EDGE's choice for a road-builder turned out to be THOMAS H. MACDONALD of Iowa, who is now chief of the Bureau of Public Roads in the Federal Department of Agriculture. The caucusing Republicans sought support for their bill in the Senate, but got scant encouragement. On Wednesday the Legislature took a recess until next week without acting on Senator EDGE's solution of the highway problem. As the case stands, the Assembly accepts his leadership, but the Senate balks.

The "ripper" bill seems to be moribund. Eight Republican Senators have joined the Democrats in opposing it. This would seem to augur well for confirmation of the Governor's four appointments, but while the Democratic nominees, ABRAHAM JELIN of New Brunswick and PERCY H. STEWART of Plainfield, are acceptable to Republican Senators, the other nominees, General SCOTT and Mr. KIDDE, are condemned, ostensibly because they are not "outstanding Republicans." The true reason, of course, is that they could not be counted on to play the game to suit the politicians. Early in the controversy it was said that General SCOTT was not representative of the South Jersey Republicans nor Mr. KIDDE of the North Jersey Republicans. That let the cat out of the bag. The high character of these gentlemen, and particularly General SCOTT's fine record in the army as a man who did things, went for nothing. To the majority in the Legislature who want "outstanding" Republicans of New Jersey, Senator EDGE offers a man from Iowa, who would replace a bi-partisan commission. Confusion seems to be worse confounded by the Senator's intervention.

So far Governor SILZER has acquitted himself creditably and stands in an unassailable position. "My purpose," he has told the Republican Senators, "is to build good roads and "build honest roads. I do not care "who builds them; I do not care "whether the Democrats or the Republicans build them." He has protested against "the injection of politics." He intends to stand by his appointments. The Republicans of the Legislature, with honorable exceptions, want him to discard two men of their own party who have unblemished records. The people of New Jersey must understand who is in the wrong.

PICKEREL AND GUDGEONS.

Wednesday was a busy but not a wholly happy day in the State Senate. From divers committees were reported eighty-five bills, an unusually large crop even for that fertile field. More than twenty measures came from the Committee on Internal Affairs of Cities, the Democratic Chairman and several members of which were absent. A meeting of the committee had been called to report certain bills immediately required by the State Highway Department. Apparently, the Republican humorists on the committee saw their opportunity. Nearly all the measures that the committee had to report, except the highway bills, were reported; bill after bill, fathered by Republican Senators and Assemblymen for the advantage of Republican up-State communities, found its way to the calendar. Republican Senators grinned. Democratic Senators had sour faces.

Worse remained behind. The Chairman of the Committee on Conservation was caught in the act of poaching on the preserves of Senatorial privilege and courtesy. Taking advantage of the absence of Mr. THAYER of Franklin, this Chairman, Mr. RABENOLD of this town, moved to substitute for one of the former's bills an identical bill, passed in the Assembly, which bore the name of Assemblyman PRATT of St. Lawrence. It provided that pickerel less than twenty-eight inches in length must not be caught in the St. Lawrence River.

This attempt to rob a Senator of the honor of giving his name to a monumental piece of legislation that will go swimming down the ages was rebuked by Mr. PEARON of Onondaga, who showed that the sacred precedents and traditions of the Senate forbade the proposed substitution. An emergency message brought Mr. THAYER, fiery hot with haste and wrath, back to the chamber. In a voice quivering with wounded pride and love of fame, he cried that "he had an understanding "with Assemblyman PRATT under "which his bill was to pass and he "was to become father of the law to "protect pickerel in the St. Lawrence "against being caught young." Finally, Mr. RABENOLD, though "sick and tired of so much child's play," denied any intention of violating Senatorial courtesy and apologized. So, if the bill passes, Mr. THAYER will be inseparably connected with pickerel, not to say pike. That is his right, yet here was glory enough for two; and believers in fish protection and Senatorial protection will "beg to surround "with a rich halo of enthusiastic "cheering the united names" of PRATT and THAYER.

Speaking of fish, where is the bill to repeal the Mullan-Gage Prohibition Enforcement law? Where is the bill to investigate the Anti-Saloon League? In the deep bosom of the Assembly Codes Committee, of the Assembly Committee on Ways and Means, of the Senate Codes Committee, buried! Governor SMITH has sent to members of Congress the harmless beer and wine resolution passed by the Legislature. Thus the Democrats of New York have fulfilled their pledge of 1922. Where is the Wet hope and enthusiasm of last November? The politicians aren't going to monkey with the rum question any more than they can help till after 1924. The Legislature may be protecting pickerel, but it has done great ravage among gudgeons.

FRENCH PLANS.

Writing from Düsseldorf to The Daily Telegraph of London, about a month after the occupation of the Ruhr, Colonel REPINGTON paid a high tribute to the skill with which the movement had been conceived and executed, from the military point of view. But as much could not be said, he thought, for the civilian and technical aspects of the affair. The reason which he gave was that the French had been "obsessed" by the belief that the German inhabitants of the Ruhr would aid them in carrying out their task. Colonel REPINGTON was of the opinion that the French did not foresee the extent to which passive resistance would go, and that this had thrown their plans into confusion.

"Don't think us so short-sighted or so innocent," protested the Paris Temps in a comment upon this statement. It was true that the French Government had hoped that the Germans in the Ruhr would accept the situation and go on quietly with their productive work under French control. But from the first it was clearly perceived that they might not do this; and, accordingly, alternative plans were thoroughly studied long before the advance into the Ruhr took place. Engineers, railway men, telegraphers, postal clerks, customs officials, were ready to be thrown in behind the troops as soon as the need for their services might be demonstrated. Meanwhile, the military encirclement was to be drawn tighter, until the German Government should be brought to see the folly of indefinite resistance, and to ask for terms. That this steady and double French pressure in the Ruhr is having its designed effect in Berlin there is multiplying evidence to show.

It is also having its effect upon certain flighty sentimentalists in this country, who began by glorying in the German refusal to submit to the French demands, but who are now plaintively calling upon the German Government to recognize the fact that France is mistress of the situation, and to abandon the policy of futile resistance. So far as concerns the tenacity of the French purpose, even Colonel REPINGTON, with his pessimistic view of what had occurred, did not try to blink the truth. Nobody could say, he wrote, whether the Germans would hold out for three months or for six. But he added: "The "French have taken a position which "they cannot abandon; and if the "French press remain steadfast, "France will triumph."

HOME BOUNDARIES.

Europe is not alone in having boundary troubles. We have one of our own. Whether the "medial line" or the "south bank" of the Red River which extends for 539 miles along the border of Texas was the true northern boundary line has been in dispute since 1821. The United States Supreme Court found in 1921 that it was the south bank. But a later decision of the Court (1922) held that the title to the bed of the river did not pass to the State of Oklahoma on its admission to the Union, though a still later decision recognized the rights of certain riparian owners on the north bank down to the medial line. The result of all these decisions is that the United States itself still retains ownership of a narrow strip of land on the bed of the river between the medial line and the southern cut bank.

This strip is constantly on the move, but the shifting of the medial line, from flood to low water and back to flood, with all the "avulsion" and "erosion" and the consequent backing and filling, might have gone on for another century without exciting anything beyond neighborly quarrels and complaints of the capricious river, if oil had not been discovered beneath the floor of this narrow interstice between two States. This discovery was before the final decree of the Court awarding the United States the southern half. Meanwhile, various persons began to drill for oil on the land in dispute. And now they set up a claim that they ought to be considered as claimants "in good faith," despite the fact that some or all of them were gambling on the future award. And after all the labor to make the physiographic determination which assisted the Court in reaching its decision, and the care that the Court took to reach a just decision in the matter, Congress in the last hours of the session passed a bill (and the President promptly signed it along with ninety-eight others in the final rush) which practically sweeps away the greater part of the benefit, by providing for the return of certain oil wells to private claimants who, it is stated, knew what chances they were taking.

It is to be hoped that the report is well founded that hearings will be held before any leases are made or any moneys paid over to the claimants. This will perhaps furnish the first test of Secretary WORK's mettle in his new office.

THE NEW LEVIATHAN.

"The Leviathan," wrote President HARDING in declining the proposal that the great German liner and American Army transport should bear his name, "stands not only as a national sentiment but as a national symbol." The Leviathan made forty-two voyages during the war and after the armistice between New York and Brest. She carried as many as 10,000 soldiers on a trip when reinforcements were sorely needed in France; and she was so well convoyed as never to be in danger from the enemy's submarines. The American people had an affectionate regard for her; she will be forever associated in the minds of American soldiers with the big war. President HARDING showed his good sense and reflected the universal sentiment when he insisted that the great ship should not lose her name.

The reconstructed Leviathan, which is to compete with the Majestic, Mauretania, Berengaria and other great steamships on the Atlantic passenger route, will be faster than any of her rivals, according to Admiral BENSON. She will be "beyond question the most luxurious steamer on the seas." Moreover, she will be 50 per cent. safer than the old Leviathan. Between decks she has been restored to her pristine splendor, hand-carved pillars, leather furnishings, stained glass, brilliant mirrors. Her conversion to an oil-burner required the rebuilding of the bottom of the ship to provide space for 10,000 tons of oil, and 3,500 tons of water. Her gross tonnage has been increased to 70,000. That of the Majestic, a longer vessel, is 56,000. The new Leviathan will have accommodations for nearly 4,000 passengers, and she will carry a crew of 1,100 officers and men. There will be space enough in her swimming pool for water sports. Her flower shop and restaurant are the last word in luxury. Her ballroom will rival that in many a New York hotel of the first class. No one who did not look on the disfigured interior of the transport when the army was done with the job of compressing soldiers into every foot of space by tearing out decks can realize the difficulties of making the Leviathan over.

The "reconditioning" will have cost $3,500,000 when she is ready for passenger service. Whether she will be available for her first trip on July 4, as has been planned, may be doubted. While the work on her has surpassed expectations, the finishing touches will take a considerable time. As reservations on Atlantic liners have to be made months ahead the Leviathan can hardly carry off the honors this season. Shipping men are divided on the point whether she can be operated at a profit. W. AVERELL HARRIMAN, head of the United American lines operating for the Shipping Board, has been quoted as saying that the Leviathan's greatest value would be as an advertisement. Taking into account the cost of reconditioning, he doubted whether a profit could be made on the full investment. The Westminster Gazette has said that "the United States will "never be a dangerous competitor in "the shipping world if her boats are "to be run with cargo in one direc"tion only." It cannot be denied that the operation of the Leviathan will present a problem. With the proper management she might be made the most popular Atlantic liner.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Practice Open to Criticism.

It is with something of a shock that the American friends of the Irish Free State read yesterday of a use to which their military authorities are putting some of their prisoners.

It seems that the so-called—and most inadequately called—"irregulars" have acquired the habit of making barricades across roads and bridges, not as defenses from behind which to fight their enemies, which, as guerrilla warfare goes, could pass for legitimate, but as devices for the killing of those who, coming after the barricades have been deserted, undertake the task of removing them. As soon as a stone or other material forming the obstruction is disturbed an explosion occurs, because a "trigger mine" has been concealed there. The work of removal, therefore, has become extremely dangerous, and the Free Staters have resorted to the expedient of compelling captured republicans to do it. In a single day this resulted in the death of eight prisoners at one barricade and four at another, with an incidental wounding of two national soldiers.

In considering these proceedings it must be remembered that the Free State Government is dealing with desperate men, who long since abandoned all respect for the laws of civilized warfare, men who have earned the names of assassins and bandits. Full explanation could be found for the use of any means to overcome them. Still, it is evident that the prisoners upon whom this work is imposed probably have not been guilty themselves of setting the traps, else would they know how safely to perform a service so perilous to all not in the secret of construction. That is what makes their use seem cruel and wrong, and, if a military necessity, it is a terrible and regrettable one.

Success is the Only Good Excuse.

Putting military prisoners in positions of danger, though distinctly reprehended by the laws of war, has been done in most if not all wars to some extent when the expectation or the hope was that thus the enemy could be deterred from doing something from which the other side suffered severely. One or more of them often have been placed on trains in danger of attack, so posted that they would be killed first if anybody was; and in many other ways the supposed disinclination of one side or the other to peril the lives of its own men has been taken advantage of. Always, however, such practices have in them a highly repugnant element, and, just as in the case of "reprisals in kind," they are commendable only when they are successful as a threat—when, that is, the threat alone compels the enemy to cease whatever he was doing to which just objection was made.

If forcing republican prisoners to remove republican barricades puts an end to loading the barricades with "trigger mines," then the deaths of a few of them would be defensible, from the military standpoint.

It Was No Day for Flying.

Hardly a day passes that THE TIMES does not have to record the death of army aviators. The ever lengthening list of these accidents means the loss of men more than ordinarily valuable in the military service of their country, for all of them, of necessity, are possessed of courage in high degree and all of them have received in acquiring their special skill a long and expensive training.

To say that they should not be allowed to risk their lives would be absurd, for to do that is their business, their profession; but certainly they should not be compelled or permitted to take unnecessary risks, and the airplanes supplied for their use should represent the very highest state of the art of making those machines, and they should be equipped with all available devices for securing such degree of safety as is possible to achieve in aerial navigation.

In the case of the two fatalities reported yesterday from near the Philadelphia Navy Yard, the flying was done on a day of strong and gusty winds, and to this alone seems to have been due the killing of a noted pilot and his able mechanic. They were on no errand of importance—at least of none apparently important enough to justify battling with a storm—and while it has come to be a matter of pride with aviators nearly or quite to ignore the state of the weather, something of reasonable caution might be enforced when they are under military discipline.

These Jurors Showed Good Sense.

In finding the Sellades woman guilty of murder in only the second degree the jurymen before whom she was tried exercised a power which, while not explicitly recognized by the law, yet is tolerated, and even commended as conducive to that "essential justice" which, after all, is the object for which courts are maintained.

Of course, this verdict does not mean that in the opinion of these jurors the killing of the man MARTELLARA was justified; it meant that in their opinion his slayer had so much provocation for what she did and the character and acts of her victim had been such that the imposition of the death penalty would have been an excessive punishment. But they very sensibly recognized the fact that a woman who thus takes into her own hands a right which the law properly reserves for itself cannot be left free to exercise her judgment in other cases; that at liberty she is an intolerable social danger.

In this instance, as in that of the Raisen woman, the much criticised jury system in action has earned general public approval. No immunity was granted to the "crime of passion," and there was no ferocity of vengeance. No doubt, in both cases, the fact that the defendant was a woman counted for something, but so it should have done, for about the wronging of women there is a special heinousness, and it is well that those who commit such wrongs should be in more than usual danger.

COST OF PUBLIC EDUCATION.

Not Too Much When Other Expenditures Are Considered.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have been struck by the subtle amusing qualities of the portions quoted in THE TIMES of the recent report of President Pritchett and his associates of the Carnegie Foundation as to their findings in regard to the cost of public education in the United States. I can't conceive that they seriously put before the public the billion dollars spent for education in 1920 as a burden when the same public is spending half a billion yearly for soft drinks alone (World's Work for March, p. 503). Surely President Pritchett and his associates are not making the mistake of taking themselves entirely seriously, which is so common an error among educators. They are, of course, simply displaying ordinary human bowels of compassion for a public so heavily taxed for its ice cream. They probably feel that the public should have its ice cream even at more than its half billion cost. Why shouldn't the public enjoy itself mildly since alcohol that used to cost so much more than education is now strictly prohibited? The poor public must have something in which to indulge itself.

Of course President Pritchett and his associates know that the public is taxed (pays) nearly as much for cigarettes as for education, but what of it? Let the public by all means enjoy itself, no matter if tobacco in its various forms costs more than education. Did not the crotchety English Colonial Governor of Virginia answer the plea of certain citizens of that colony for their soul's welfare with "Damn your souls! Grow tobacco?" Perhaps the next Carnegie Foundation report will recommend the growing of sugar, since the public is paying about an equal amount each for candy and for education. It is not fair apparently that the billion dollars burden of education keep pace with the billion for candy. It is too much for a hard-working public that spends seven billions a year on automobiles.

President Marion LeRoy Burton of the University of Michigan told the people of Michigan the other day that they spent in their State alone in one year $30,000,000 for admissions to moving pictures, $10,000,000 for soft drinks, and $65,000,000 for cigars and tobacco, exclusive of cigarettes. Again what of it? Haven't the people of Michigan a right to enjoy themselves? So have the people of any State. After all the Carnegie Foundation findings are probably correct. The public is, perchance, paying too much for the kind of education it is getting. MELLINGER E. HENRY.

New York, March 8, 1923.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Just what is a religious performance? When is religion not religion? If the Book of Job were enacted upon the stage, would it be a religious performance? And if 2,000 years later a great dramatist dealt with the problems of the spirit in the light of present-day knowledge, is it less religious because it is mere vital? The late Leonid Andreyev wrote "Anathema" and Dr. Bowlby of the Lord's Day Alliance caused the arrest of the manager of the Yiddish Art Theatre for giving a Sunday performance of it. Here was live religion, challenged because it was modern and interesting. How Andreyev, a keen appreciator of life's comedy, would have enjoyed the sardonic jest!

Dr. Bowlby issued a statement recently to the effect that, if people are not in sympathy with his blue laws, they should go back where they came from. If the blue law chief were omnipotent enough to enforce this it would mean a wholesale exodus of members of all denominations, including his own. Only the Lord's Day Alliance would be left, and if they were to go where they belong they would have to go back two centuries.

Dr. Bowlby has a new slogan—they're not blue laws, he explains, but red, white and blue laws. A blue Sunday isn't any more palatable because of Dr. Bowlby's arbitrary borrowing of two colors from the American flag. Nor is wrapping one's self in the American flag for his own purposes a new or a particularly clever device.

JASPER.

And lived and died upon its acres mean.
To beauty blind, with laughter quarrelsome.
But Jasper loved the girl who had become
His wife when Spring's first wistful green
Burned on the hill, yet would his longing keen
He feared for her, lest his dull ways should slay
The look he saw within her eyes that—June;
And once at dusk he found the homestead still.
He called and listened, wept and tried to pray.
He found her safe, but not a step too soon
Upon the cliff that drops from Marlow Hill.

OLD MASTERS EXHIBITION.

Dutch and Flemish paintings, some four centuries of work of the familiar old masters and up to the modern work of today, nearly 200 pictures are in a collection which has just been hung at the Anderson Galleries. The exhibition will open with a private view on Saturday evening and following that will continue on view to April 7. It is a collection of many fine pictures and particularly interesting from the opportunity given of seeing the development and change in the work of the artists through the centuries.

It is the Goudstikker collection of Amsterdam, and comes to New York by way of the West, where it has been shown in several museums. It came to this country through the interest of Edward Mellichkrod, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the City Art Museum of St. Louis, who saw it in Amsterdam, and through his invitation and that of Director S. L. Sherer of the Museum it was brought to that city. Since then it has been shown in the Cleveland Museum of Arts and the Detroit Art Institute. It is being shown under the auspices of the Netherlands-American Affiliation, which is composed of the Netherlands-American Foundation, of which Edward W. Bok is President, and the Netherlands Chamber of Commrce, of which William C. Redfield is President. It will be formally opened by Dr. J. R. Hubrecht, Secretary of the Royal Netherlands Legation in Washington. It is expected that this will be the beginning of reciprocal exhibitions of art and other exchanges of courtesy between this Government and that of the Netherlands.

Merely a mention of the names of the artists represented in the exhibition is a sufficient introduction. There are three Rembrandts, one of these a great one, "Heraclitus and Democritus," in the Rembrandt golden browns, the standing figure the brother of the artist, originally from the Van Vliet collection, Amsterdam, 1750, and in the after war sale of J. R. West, at Christies, June, 1920. One of the earliest and most interesting pictures of the collection is a little "Portrait of a Man," by Lucas Van Leyden, a panel, 9¾ by 8¾, a fine earnest face, the figure against a blue blackground.

Another old picture, brilliant in color and action, characteristic of the old Dutch artists, is the "Procession to Calvary," by Hieronymus Bosch, innumerable figures, each figure a portrait. Albert Cuypt is represented, there are Hobbeamas; a strong face portrait of Prince William I., by Adriaen Thomas Key, is reproduced as a frontispiece to the large illustrated catalogue; Brouwer is there; Frans Hals, Van Dyck; there is an interesting small head of a girl by Rubens, three Brouwers, a Van Ruisdael landscape, Gerard Terborgh; Israels and Mauve among the later men and in a room by itself a gayly colored lot of the quite modern paintings, a self portrait by Van Gogh being one of the pictures by that artist.

On the committee of patronesses of the exhibition are Mme. A. C. D. de Graeff, Honorary; Mrs. Joseph Ferris Simmons, Chairman; and among the members, Mrs. Hamilton Fish, Mrs. Frederick de Peyster, Mrs. T. J. Oakley Rhinelander, Mrs. John King Van Rensselaer, Mrs. Howard Duffield, Miss Amy Schiermerhorn and Mrs. William Jay Schieffelin.

O'RYAN CHOSEN AS COUNSEL

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan of New York, who commanded the Twenty-seventh Division in France, has been retained as counsel by the special Senate committee which is investigating affairs in the Veterans' Bureau.

Announcement of the selection was made today by the committee, which is headed by Senator Reed of Pennsylvania. It is expected that the General will begin work at once, making a preliminary survey of charges made against the Bureau by American Legion officials and others, and will recommend to the committee later what questions are worthy of special treatment in the investigation.

A lawyer in New York City, General O'Ryan has had long experience as an officer in the National Guard, in which he enlisted as a private in 1897. He commanded the New York division on the Mexican border in 1916 and was one of the few National Guard Major Generals to go abroad at the head of a National Guard unit.

Senator Reed has left Washington for Bermuda, and it is expected that during his absence General O'Ryan will formulate a plan of procedure under which the committee can begin a series of hearings in Washington and other cities. The Senator will return about April 1.

Immediate action to provide for disabled soldiers who have just claims for immediate aid was promised yesterday by General O'Ryan in announcing his acceptance of the appointment as counsel for the Senate committee.

"Everything will give way to their needs," General O'Ryan said, "and all the interfering red tape will be set aside for the accomplishment of that purpose. General Hines, the new head of the Veterans' Bureau, will co-operate in every way to this end.

"The more general needs of the disabled in relation to hospitals and other facilities will come next, followed by an investigation to ascertain the facts in relation to the waste and extravagance which are said to exist. The committee may make recommendations looking to the elimination from the public service of all employes of the Veterans' Bureau who may be considered unnecessary or lacking in sympathetic understanding of the disabled soldiers, or who may be otherwise inefficient. It will be found, I think, that General Hines, who has just taken charge of the Veterans' Bureau, will be alert to perfect his organization in these respects and without loss of time."

OIL CASE IN SUPREME COURT

Contracts Covering Pumps and Tanks of Retailers Are Discussed.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Contracts under which refiners and wholesalers of gasoline install pumps and tanks for retailers on the condition that they are not to be used for handling the product of competitors was under discussion in the Supreme Court today in four cases brought by the Federal Trade Commission against the Sinclair Refining Company, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the Gulf Refining Company and the Maloney Oil Manufacturing Company.

These cases involved proceedings brought by the commission against about thirty wholesalers and sought to attack present gasoline retail practices prevailing throughout the United States. The commission contended that the contracts had the effect of restricting competition, because they deterred refiners from seeking the trade of retailers using apparatus installed by competitors.

The refiners and wholesalers asserted that in most instances the retailers were set up in business by them; that the retailers had the option of purchasing tanks and pumps; that such apparatus could be purchased by the retailers in the open market, and that the contracts did not prohibit the dealers from installing the apparatus of more than one refiner. It was asserted also that the business was devoid of all interstate commerce features, because the gasoline distributed had ceased to be in interstate commerce, and that, therefore, it was not a matter under the control of the Federal Trade Commission.

The decisions of the lower courts in all the cases were adverse to the contentions of the Federal Trade Commission.

WANT TAX REVISION IN FOREST POLICY

Steps Must Also Be Taken to Reduce Fires, Senate Committee Is Told.

BILL FOR NEW CONGRESS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The elimination of forest fires and the reform of local laws on the taxation of forest lands were urged as the keys to the American wood and pulp problem, so far as privately owned lands are concerned, by witnesses today before the Senate committee which is investigating the lumber and pulp situation.

It is certain that reforestation will be one of the projects that will come up early in the first session of the Sixty-eighth Congress. The Senate committee, of which Senator McNary is the chairman, is going thoroughly into the question. Not only will a complete report dealing with the situation be ready when Congress assembles, but a bill, based on the results of the investigation and embracing the views of forestry experts, is expected to be ready for introduction before the next New Year.

The witnesses before the committee today were Wilson Compton, Secretary-Manager of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, and Axel H. Oxholm, chief of the Lumber Division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, of the Department of Commerce.

Mr. Compton called attention to the fact that 360,000,000 of the 500,000,000 acres of forest lands in the United States are privately owned and that any future policy must take into consideration the problems confronting the private owners, particularly local taxation. He urged the extension of Federal and State forest holdings. Mr. Compton estimated the value of the lumber industry of the United States, at this time, to be about $10,000,000,000, with an annual production in excess of $4,000,000,000.

"The present forest lands include, said Mr. Compton, "approximately 500,000,000 acres or about one-fourth the total area of the nation. About 50 per cent. of this forest land is covered by virgin or first-growth timber; 30 per cent. by second growth in fair reproducing condition; 20 per cent. by a second growth of relatively inferior reproducing condition, while approximately 15 per cent. is waste land, without suitable seed trees, most of it having been burned over several times and totally lacking the means of natural reforestation."

"One-third of the virgin growth, mostly in the national parks, is owned by the Federal and State Governments. Four-fifths of the cut-over timberlands are privately owned.

General Policy Is Wanted.

"The lumber manufacturers and timber owners," said Mr. Compton, "have stated their opinion that private enterprise cannot wisely be counted upon for the reforestation on a commercial scale of the cut-over lands which have been so fire-swept as to be now lacking in the means of natural reforestation without artificial planting or reseeding; and that for forestation of these lands, acquisition and reforestation by public agencies, either State or Federal, must be looked to.

"The opinion of the lumber manufacturers and timber owners has been publicly stated that certain fundamental investigations should be promptly undertaken by suitable agencies to the ascertainment of more exact information regarding the quantity of merchantable timber; the quantity and quality of the annual growth; the essential facts upon which to found a classification of lands into agricultural and non-agricultural lands may be based; experiments and observations in planting and reforesting timber; investigations in conservation and wood utilization, and along other lines of public interest outlined by the United States Forest Service.

"The lumber industry of the United States wants to help in this work. It looks upon this committee's undertaking as one of the most promising and constructive indications of an early and a sound solution of this national economic problem."

Swedish Standing Timber Untaxed.

Mr. Oxholm, who has made a special study of the European forest system, said that in Sweden the Government's policy was not to tax standing timber and in this way owners were encouraged to conserve their forest holdings. Timber lands in that country could be added were taxed only when the timber was cut. If a forest owner desires to clear his land, an official commission must first decide whether the land was better fitted for agriculture than for timber growing.

Since 1916, Mr. Oxholm said, he had visited every State in the Union, and he was of the opinion that the forests in most of the States, if the chance were given, would replace themselves. Planting, in his opinion, would not be a problem in this country.

The situation at this time was such, he added, that all the indications were that the United States would be importing in ten years or even a very considerable part of the ties needed by the railroads.

The hearing will be continued tomorrow.

OPPOSE BUILDING PURCHASE

Citizens Union to Fight $800,000 Item for Bronx Borough.

The Citizens Union announced last night its opposition to the proposed purchase by the city of the Berrien building in the Bronx for public offices. The matter will come before the Board of Estimate today. It is estimated that the building will cost the city $800,000 and to spend that amount of money for it the Union believes will be an inexcusable waste of public funds.

"The Union has received an opinion of the value of the property from qualified experts at $600,000, standing, who place the value at only $600,000, or $200,000 less than the price proposed," says the statement.

The valuation of this property for tax purposes since the completion of the latest addition to the building never exceeded $500,000 up to and including the 1922 assessment. Suddenly the assessment was raised to $700,000, the increased valuation being placed altogether on the building notwithstanding its depreciation.

"Not only is the property not worth the price now asked, but city ownership of the building will affect no economy over its occupancy under lease. The statement is made. It is suggested that a new addition to the Bronx Borough Hall be constructed if funds are available.

THWART FRESHMAN PLANS.

Columbia Sophomores Go to Class Dinner in Vans—Police Guard Them

Two hundred and fifty sophomores of Columbia College had themselves delivered last night in front of the Golden Glades, formerly Healy's, at Sixty-sixth Street and Columbus Avenue, in three huge moving vans, into which they had been loaded in widely separated sections of the city. The three vans arrived together, the doors swung open and an avalanche of sophomores swept across the pavement and into the restaurant, where covers were laid for their annual class dinner.

Freshmen raged behind rigid police lines, baffled in their hope of preventing (or eating) the dinner of their natural college enemies. A half-dozen freshmen who were swept in in the rush were imprisoned for a while, but finally let loose. The officers of the sophomore class, for whom the freshmen hunted diligently all day, had been safely inside the restaurant since daybreak.

RARE BOOK BRINGS $3,150.

Is Only Known Copy of First Volume Printed in San Francisco.

What is believed to be the only known copy of the first book printed in San Francisco brought $3,150 last night at the sale in the Anderson Galleries of the American library of the late William H. Winters, formerly librarian of the New York Law Institute. The afternoon session brought $5,584. The total for the evening sale was $6,388.75. The sale will be concluded this afternoon.

The book which brought the high price was "Laws for the Better Government of California," published by S. Brannan, San Francisco, 1848. It was bought by L. C. Harper. The copy bears an autograph inscription across the title page by Captain Joseph L. Folsom, Assistant Quartermaster under Colonel R. B. Mason, who was Governor and by whose authority the book was issued. It contains the code of laws for the transition period between the conquest of California and the adoption of the State Constitution.

The Howard University Law Library paid $815 for "Laws for the Government of the District of Louisiana, passed by the Governor and Judges of the Indiana Territory," Vincennes, 1804. This is said to be very rare.

"The Laws of Her Majesties Colony of New York, as They Were Enacted by the Governour, Council and General Assembly," New York, 1710, were bought by Mrs. F. W. Morris, agent, for $775. This is the second revision of the laws of New York. A note in a nearly contemporary hand in the margin, after "An Act for Prohibiting the Distilling of Rum," reads: "In consequence of yellow fever which had prevailed in the city and supposed to be caused by the lime kilns and rum distillers."

HER 16TH DAY AT 114°

Michigan Girl Apparently Undisturbed—Doctors Puzzled.

ESCANABA, Mich., March 8.—Miss Evelyn Lyons chatted cheerfully with her friends today, apparently undisturbed by her temperature of 114 degrees, which has persisted for sixteen days. She seemed to be resting better today, the physicians said, and her pulse was nearer normal. Dr. Harry Defnet reported that there was no decrease in the thermometer readings.

To reassure doubters in regard to Miss Lyons's temperature, Dr. Defnet and Dr. G. W. Moll, Secretary of the Delta County Medical Association, today issued signed statements to The Associated Press.

"No mistake has been made," Dr. Defnet said. "The reports are accurate and taken in every way known to medical science, and the temperature has been 114 or more for sixteen days. The girl is rational in every respect and has control of all her faculties."

"I found the temperature to be the maximum of a thermometer which I estimated at 114 or more," Dr. Moll said. "The patient is rational. The odd case is not exaggerated and is true to the letter."

Offers $5,000 for Sargent Painting.

An offer for the Sargent picture "Artist Sketching," which is one of the features of the new art gallery of the Painters and Sculptors Association at the Grand Central Station, was received by telegram, yesterday, from a Boston woman who wired that she would send a check for $6,000 immediately if her offer was accepted. Her request could not be accepted for the Sargent painting is one of the "gift" pictures, each artist who belongs contributing one painting a year for three years as his membership dues in the organization.

TRUCKDRIVER ENDED MONTENEGRIN WAR

DESCRIBES WORK ABROAD

Says $9,000,000,000 Food Was Distributed Without a Charge of Mishandling.

The way in which war was ended in Montenegro through the instrumentality of the United States Food Administration was described in detail for the first time last night by Secretary Herbert Hoover at a reunion at the Hotel Commodore of the workers of the Food Administration, of which he formerly was the head. Among other things he asserted that plans were under way to translate for the benefit of American children the problems of child nutrition solved by Food Administration workers during and after the war in Europe, and further that an investigation had showed there was not one charge of mishandling of funds growing out of the United States Food Administration's distribution of $9,000,000,000.

The part of international arbiter was thrust upon the United States Food Administration, said Secretary Hoover who explained that the organization's distribution of relief supplies in Montenegro was accomplished largely through an enterprising young truck driver with a couple of trucks.

"When we went into Montenegro with relief supplies," continued Secretary Hoover, "this truck driver asked many questions concerning the origin and cause of the war. When it was explained to him he straightway drove off in his truck to the grand headquarters of the commanding general of one of the armies.

"The young truck driver must have used a strong argument, for he managed to persuade the General that an armistice should be arranged, and before he had left the commanding officer he had obtained a commitment contingent upon certain conditions to be accepted by the General of the opposing army.

"Off he drove in his relief truck to the headquarters of the General of the other army. The truck driver had a long talk with the second General, and the upshot of it was that he won that officer's consent to sign a peace agreement.

"The truck driver met a great stumbling block when he started to find a third party as signatory to the proposed peace agreement. The relief driver wore an American uniform and probably the Generals supposed that peace negotiations were launched through the good offices of the United States.

"But the young truck driver was afraid to affix the signature of the United States to the peace document in view of international complications that might result, so as the third signatory he wrote the name of the United States Food Administration, and an indenture to that effect, given to me by the young truck driver, is one of the most prized possessions of the United States Food Administration."

As part of Boy Scouts' celebration the Boy Scouts, through their commander, Dan Beard, presented a trophy to Secretary Hoover and conferred upon him the tribal name of "Thunder-Bird."

BISMARCK THREATENED TO COMMIT SUICIDE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 8.—It seems hardly credible that Prince Bismarck ever seriously considered suicide, and, what is still more surprising, for sentimental reasons; but that is the tale told by Prince Philipp zu Eulenburg in his memoirs, which will be published within a few days. There was a woman at the bottom of it all, the handsome Princess Elisabeth von Carolath-Beuthen, daughter of Prince von Hatzfeldt zu Trachenberg, whose portrait by Richter, with a gigantic dog at her feet, was reproduced hundreds of times in Germany and still graces nearly every old-fashioned home in Berlin. The story, gathered from Count Herbert Bismarck's letters addressed to Eulenburg, is as follows:

The Chancellor's eldest son Herbert was madly in love with Princess Elisabeth, who at that time (1881) was still the wife of the Prince von Carolath-Beuthen. It was agreed that she should obtain a divorce and then marry Herbert. After the divorce was obtained Elisabeth went to Venice to await her fiancé in the seclusion of an old palace which she had rented.

Meanwhile the story got out, and all Germany was discussing the love affair. Herbert pressed his father for permission to go to Venice and marry Elisabeth. This caused an almost catastrophal shock to Bismarck, who till then seems not to have taken the affair seriously. On April 28, 1881, Herbert writes to Eulenberg, who was then his intimate friend:

"With tears running down his cheeks my father sobbed that he had decided not to live any longer if I married the daughter of Hatzfeldt, who had been his bitter enemy for twenty years. To the few persons with whom father discussed my love affair he expressed himself even more desperately."

On April 30 Herbbert writes again:

"It is a terrible thing to think that this marriage may cost my parents' life; for my mother is suffering from severe heart disease and would surely die from the shock if anything happened to father. But what pains my heart no less is that Elisabeth, too, has threatened suicide if that marriage cannot take place. Poor girl! She has only enemies here, and the few persons whom I have asked to tell father who Elisabeth really is have only repeated the worst kind of gossip to him. With teeth and nails, said father, in his exasperation, would he fight against that marriage. If I marry Elisabeth against father's will I shall have no means for her support, because, according to our house laws, any son married to a divorced woman loses his rights of primogeniture, and I could not bring myself to live on the alimony paid to the Princess by her first husband."

In another letter Herbert says his father had repeated his threat to commit suicide if the Princess ever named herself Bismarck; and again: "My father said if I must go to Venice he would accompany me, because the prevention of this marriage was of higher importance than the business of the Empire and his life."

Herbert, too, contemplates suicide, but finally decides to sacrifice his love to his father.

Eulenburg says Elisabeth despised him after that and never answered his farewell letter.

WANTS ORIENTALS BARRED.

Shortridge Says They Might Make More Trouble Than Slavery.

BOSTON, March 8.—Senator Samuel M. Shortridge of California, addressing the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts today, asserted that "unrestricted introduction of Orientals to the United States would breed more discontent and strife and cause more trouble than did slavery."

"We of the Pacific Coast are opposed to further immigration of Japanese, Chinese or other Orientals of any kind," the Senator said. "We do not want a mongrel race in America. They do not assimilate and add no strength to our nation."

He added, referring to radicals, that "the doors of the Atlantic should be closed to any man or woman who enters this country not to build up but to destroy."

RELEASE MRS. BUZZI UNDER $5,000 BAIL

SURETY CUT FROM $25,000

Woman Declares She Will Spend Her All to Help Run Down Contractor's Slayer.

Mrs. Anna Buzzi, held ten days as a material witness in the investigation of the slaying of Frederick Schneider, wealthy Bronx contractor, was released yesterday in bail of $5,000. District Attorney Glennon, after a conference with ex-Sheriff James F. Donnelly, agreed to a reduction of the bail from $25,000 and allowed Mrs. Buzzi her freedom in the custody of her counsel. Through Mr. Donnelly she said:

"I am absolutely innocent of this crime, and I am sorry that I cannot give the reporters an interview, but that is on account of my condition and the surprise of my release. I will spend every dollar I can get to aid the authorities in running down the slayer of Frederick Schneider, and I will also aid them personally."

With the liberation of Mrs. Buzzi the inquiry into the killing of Schneider by two bullets as he sat at the wheel of his automobile, took a shift. District Attorney Glennon said that he had no evidence to warrant him going before the Grand Jury, which is in session today, but he said he was "hopeful" that the mystery eventually would be cleared up.

Official activity on the case yesterday began with consideration of the report of Dr. A. O. Geottler, toxicologist at Bellevue Hospital, which showed that Schneider had eaten a full meal about an hour and a half before he was killed. Mrs. Buzzi's statement to the investigators was that a short time before his death Schneider had come to their apartment at 1,153 Grand Concourse, the Bronx, and had eaten coffee and eclairs with her. Mr. Glennon didn't attach much importance to the apparent contradiction and Mr. Donnelly pointed out that a man of Schneider's physique and activity would assimilate so slight a meal in a matter of minutes.

The District Attorney's office was occupied yesterday with a story woven around a "mysterious blond woman," described as the mother of several children. She was said to live in the Classon Point section, and that Schneider had been on friendly terms with her. Mr. Glennon said that as he was not passing anything by in his inquiry he had directed that the story be investigated, but he indicated that he was not sanguine of success.

Color to the narrative was lent by the visit of a tall, fur-coated woman with fair hair, who was closeted with Mr. Glennon for a short time early yesterday afternoon. She was taken to the Bronx County Courts Building in a limousine of the District Attorney's office and turned her fur collar up to hide her face as she hurried through a lane of clicking cameras. This woman, it developed, lived near the scene of the murder, but her only contribution to the history of the case was the statement that, riding on the trolley car to her home on the evening of the murder, she had noticed Schneider's car stalled in the snow close to the trolley tracks, and that she had pointed it out to the motorman.

While Mr. Donnelly was seeking a bondsman for his client, the District Attorney said to reporters:

"At no stage of the proceeding have I had any evidence that would connect Mrs. Buzzi with the murder. As a matter of fact, she never has been charged with any crime. She was held merely as a material witness and we haven't been able to find anything against her, and I believe that it is only fair that we should agree to a reduction in bail in view of the lack of developments connecting her with the crime."

Mrs. Buzzi, when she appeared with Mr. Donnelly, was dressed in a brown suit and coat topped by a small black turban. After her release by Judge Gibbs, Mrs. Buzzi went to her home. She announced that she would give an interview to newspapermen today at noon at her home, and would answer all questions.

MRS. SALUDES ISOLATED.

Kept in Straitjacket in Tombs to Prevent Suicide.

Mrs. Paulette A. Saludes, who three times tried to kill herself on Wednesday after she was convicted of murder in the second degree for the shooting of Oscar Martelliere, an insurance broker, was kept in a straitjacket in her cell in the Tombs yesterday to prevent her from attempting further harm to herself.

Warden John J. Hanley explained that Mrs. Saludes seemingly had regained her composure during the night, but added, "I shall take no chances with her." He said that she showed no ill effects from having swallowed what Dr. Perry M. Lichtenstein, the prison physician, described as brass polish, containing arsenic, as she was being led from Judge Koenig's part of General Sessions after her conviction.

She was placed in an isolated cell in the women's section of the prison after she had been attended by Dr. Lichtenstein, and the warden said that a constant guard of keepers and matrons would be kept over her until she is arraigned for sentence before Judge Koenig on March 14 and started for State prison. She faces a term of from twenty years to life.

Dr. Lichtenstein said yesterday that ever since Mrs. Saludes was committed to the Tombs the latter part of last October he knew that she wanted to kill herself. He added that several times during the trial she asked for sleeping powders. He suspected that she wanted to accumulate them with a view to killing herself if she were convicted, so he mixed the powders with drugs that would have a counteracting effect.

BURRELL CHARGES WAR ON DRY BOARD

HE DEFENDS $27,400 BILL

Admits, However, That He Does Not Know How Money Was Obtained or Where Spent.

CALLS INQUIRY 'RECKLESS'

Insists That Superintendent Does Not Have 'to Prove Innocence'—Forty Pastors Vote Confidence.

The Rev. Dr. David James Burrell, President of the Anti-Saloon League of this State and pastor of the Marble Collegiate Church, issued a statement yesterday in which he declared the charge that William H. Anderson, Superintendent of the league, had presented a fictitious bill for $24,700 to the league in 1918 really was aimed at himself and other Directors of the league. He admitted in the statement, however, that he did not know how Mr. Anderson got the $24,700 or how he spent it.

"I have wanted all along to certify as to facts known to me with reference to the charges made against Mr. Anderson," Dr. Burrell's statement began, "and as I am now obliged to leave here for an indefinite time I must speak out." Dr. Burrell then explained that Mr. Anderson had been authorized to conduct a publicity campaign which was to be financed at his own risk, the outlay to be ultimately repaid, providing it could be done so as not to interfere with the running expenses of the league.

"I know that the campaign did begin immediately after Mr. Anderson's selection, and was carried on effectively thereafter continuously by him. I knew that none of the league money was being spent for this purpose, and the only person who could possibly be behind the campaign was William H. Anderson; moreover, that the money was being secured and spent by him at his own personal risk.

"I know that (in pursuance of my personal urgency) Mr. Anderson presented his claim of $24,700 to the board, that his statement was placed in the hands of a special committee (of which I was personally a member) and that the committee reported five years ago that in its opinion Mr. Anderson's statement presented a 'true and valid contingent claim against the Anti-Saloon League of New York' and, further, that this claim should be paid under the terms of the original agreement as the finances of the league would permit, without the crippling of its work.

"I do not know where Mr. Anderson secured the $24,700, and I have never asked him. I do not know how he spent that money, nor have I ever asked him. In selecting him as our superintendent we so distinctly emphasized our personal confidence in him that neither I nor, so far as I am aware, any other members of the board have ever presumed to question his methods in a personal matter which he undertook by our authority and at his personal risk.

"I do not know why a man, either in court or out of court, should be required to prove his innocence. For weeks this man has been under fire, questioned and cross-questioned, with the avowed purpose of having him prove his own innocence of charges that have been recklessly made against him.

"I know, as the reading public must know by this time, that the charges against Mr. Anderson are not really aimed at him but at the board (which holds itself responsible for everything that he, as its agent, has done), and through that board at the churches of the State which stand behind it, and back of everything else, at the general cause of prohibition.

"Ask me a year from now what I think of this case against William H. Anderson and I will refer you with a smile to the financial report of the Anti-Saloon League of New York for the year 1923."

The pastors of the Brooklyn South District of the New York East Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church made public a resolution adopted on Feb. 27 last in the New York Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church declaring that their confidence in Mr. Anderson and the league could not "be disturbed, except by the clearest legal evidence of wrong-doing, of which thus far the published reports of investigations and charges do not seem to substantiate." Forty members of the conference signed the resolution.

Violation of the proposed law, which would amend the civic rights law, would be a misdemeanor, and punishable by a fine of $1,000.

A bill which would permit a Judge to turn over to homes for the aged, charitable institutions and public hospitals all confiscated liquor for medicinal purposes was introduced by Assemblyman Robert Livingston, a dry Democrat from Columbia County.

Poillon Sisters Too Busy On Income Tax to Go to Trial

When the Poillon sisters were called for trial in Judge Mulqueen's part of General Sessions yesterday, their lawyer had the case postponed until March 22 on the statement that they were "very much concerned with the making up of their income tax."

They were released from the Tombs several days ago on $2,500 bail each on an indictment charging them with the theft of $1,500 from Charles Dusenbury, 72 years old, of 81 West 101st Street, formerly an agent for religious publications. Dusenbury alleged that Catharine Poillon made love to him and induced him to give her some bonds and deeds to property to show to her brother.

NEW CONGRESSMEN SHUN STAND ON BEER

UP-STATE COHORTS ANXIOUS

ALBANY, March 8.—Governor Smith announced tonight that every mail was bringing him letters from members of the new Congress throughout the country, acknowledging receipt of the "mandate" from the New York Legislature in favor of light wines and beer which the Governor sent out on Monday.

"Almost invariably the letters have been non-committal," the Governor said. "The answers show that they are taking an interest in the frank statement of our position that the memorial to Congress embodied."

Preparing to make their last stand next week for the bills repealing the Mullan-Gage State Enforcement act, the "wets" in the Assembly today began making public letters received from cities up State which indicate that beer and wine advocates are beginning to feel that Governor Smith and the Democratic leaders in the Legislature are doing nothing to fulfill hopes they kindled during the campaign.

Assemblyman Cuvillier, who is leading the forlorn hope of the "wets," made public this evening a letter he had received from Leon V. Lyons, a Rochester city official, in which the latter said:

"Last year Monroe County and Rochester went Democratic for the first time within my memory because the thousands of broad-minded Republicans admired the stand of Governor Smith on the prohibition question.

"Word is being passed around this section that Governor Smith does not want the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law for fear it will hurt his prestige in the Southern States if he runs for President.

"While I do not remember of his having said he was for its repeal, I firmly believe that the thousands of voters who split their ticket in the last State election expected him to be for its repeal.

"I cannot comprehend how Assemblymen Lewis and Austin can support any dry measure after the vote here last Fall. Certainly their actions are being closely watched. It seems they should cater to the expression at the polls rather than the sinister lobbying of the church crowd."

Governor Smith was asked this afternoon when he received the newspaper correspondents if he had any comment to make on the attempt of Senator Edge of New Jersey "to steal your thunder by advocating 3.2 per cent. beer."

"He can have all of my thunder he wants," said the Governor with a laugh. "I will be glad to go down and help him put over his bill if that will get us somewhere where we can put a foot on the rail again and blow off the froth."

NEW YORK 'EVIDENCE' IN WASHINGTON RAID

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Evidence that liquor seized in other cities is finding its way back into the bootleg trade of Washington was said by the police to have been discovered in a raid early today at the Château Thierry apartment house in the fashionable Northwest section of the Capitol.

In two adjoining apartments occupied by William E. Swainson the raiders uncovered one of the biggest liquor stocks ever confiscated in Washington. Cases of champagne, gin and whisky were piled ceiling-high, and some estimates of their value ran up to $15,000. In the collection, the police said, were several cases which had been taken some months ago in a raid in New York and had disappeared later from a warehouse where they were being held as evidence.

In addition the police seized a list of customers which was said to contain the names of many of those in the select circles of capital society. Swainson was released on $2,000 bond.

Police officials said the liquor previously seized in New York was a consignment of rum, and that each bottle had this label pasted around the neck:

"Evidence in case of Timothy Shine, arrested April 19, 1922, at 428 Seventh Avenue for violating State Liquor law, by E. McGillicuddy, 4884 H. D."

He said that after the police had raided his living quarters over the restaurant and seized $20,000 worth of choice pre-Volstead liquors, he won the case in the courts and the liquors were ordered returned to him. Mr. Shine said that he sent an automobile truck to the warehouse in Sheriff Street, where the police stored the liquors, to bring back his private stock.

"I went on back to my restaurant in my automobile," he said, "and when the truck loaded with the liquor arrived half an hour later the driver told me he had been held up on the way by armed bandits who had loaded fifteen cases from the truck on to their own automobile and escaped. Since the loss was not great, and I considered myself fortunate to get back as much of the liquor as I did, I did not report the robbery to the police.

"I stored the rest of the liquor in my apartment, and was much surprised when I heard that the missing part of it had been found in Washington."

Two Named for Detroit Mayoralty.

DETROIT, March 8.—Frank E. Doremus, former Democratic Representative from the First Michigan District, and James W. Inches, former Police Commissioner, will be candidates for Mayor of Detroit at the April election, when a successor to James Couzens, now United States Senator, is chosen. They were the successful candidates in yesterday's non-partisan primary, Doremus leading Inches by nearly two to one and the latter maintaining a still greater lead over his nearest opponent, David L. Brown, a business man.

RUM ORDERS TRACED BY WRITING EXPERT

POINTS OUT TYPE DEFECTS

Expert testimony was introduced yesterday at the trial of ex-Judge Harold L. Hart, former Federal Prohibition Director for this State; William A. Orr, once Secretary to Governor Whitman, and fourteen others, charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government and violate the Volstead act, for the purpose of showing that a number of the liquor withdrawal permits and verifications of permits, now in evidence, were made out in the office of Owen B. Murphy, Bronx politician and one of the defendants.

The principal witness yesterday was Albert S. Osborn, writing expert, of 233 Broadway. Another witness was Edna Klett, stenographer in Murphy's office during August, 1921, when, it was alleged, 300 withdrawal permits of the 247,000 series disappeared from the local prohibition office during Judge Hart's incumbency as Director.

As the first witness of the day, Miss Klett testified that at one time during her employment in Murphy's office there were three typewriting machines there. One was on her desk, one on a large table in the room she used and a third in Murphy's private office. She was not further questioned yesterday, as she had previously told of writing certain letters already in evidence.

Mr. Osborn testified that he had previously examined the twenty-four liquor withdrawal permits, which were handed to him, all alleged to be of the missing series, and said that in his opinion they were all filled out on one of the typewriting machines which typed several of the letters which Miss Klett had testified had been written by her. Next Mr. Osborn was handed a batch of sixteen permits, the numbers ranging from 247,219 to 247,272, all being part of the missing 300, and testified that they were filled out on the machine that wrote the letters bearing dates of Aug. 22 and 23 and Sept. 7 and 29, 1921.

Points Out Typewriter Defects.

He then identified thirty-two letters of verification relating to that number of permits, the numbers of these ranging from 247,010 to 247,236. He said that these letters of verification had been typed on the same machine that was used for the first group of permits and the June and October letters. He added that these two groups of letters and permits, together with the group of verifications, comprised all of the documents he had been able to determine were written on certain typewriters. The others of the Government's exhibits were apparently typed on other machines, the expert said.

The witness explained his system of identifying typewriting, saying that certain typewriters had qualities and characteristics not found in other machines, and that documents were traced to a particular machine through comparison of these distinctive characteristics. The typewriter on which he claimed the second group of permits and letters of the "August-May" group were written, and described as the "No. 1 machine" for identification of the jury. He said this typewriter had one very marked defect, apparently a mechanical one, which caused the period after "Dollars" to exist a space after a capital letter. In the word "August," as it appeared on the letters and on the permits, there was a space between the "A" and the "u," and in the phrases "five dollars" spaces occurred after the "five" and before the letter "F" and between the "D" and the "o" in "Dollars."

Objections to the testimony were made at this point by Robert Rubin, counsel for William A. Orr, and Millard E. Midgley, counsel for C. J. Steinberg and the Reliance Distributing Company. These were overruled by Judge Winslow.

Uses Blackboard to Show Defects.

After identifying photographic enlargements of the specimens of typewriting contained in the letters and permits, placed in evidence by the Government, the witness demonstrated to the jury on a blackboard some of the distinguishing defects of the typewriters which had caused him to reach the conclusions he had given in his testimony. He drew sixteen illustrations of the defects he had found in various letters of the so-called "No 1 machine." He declared these defects were found both in the "August-September" letters and in the sixteen permits he had previously identified.

The letters of the "June-October" series, the witness said, were typed on what was described as "machine No. 2," and the permits, already identified by him, beginning at 247,106. He said that the "August-September" letters were, in his opinion, written on "machine No. 1."

Many objections were entered by counsel, and Judge Winslow explained to the jury that Mr. Osborn's testimony relating to certain letters and permits being written on certain machines was in Mr. Osborn's opinion as an expert.

At the afternoon session Mr. Osborn testified that he had found sixteen variations from perfect in the typing done by "machine No. 1" and fifteen in that done by "machine No. 2."

While the witness was still on the stand, Abel I. Smith, of counsel for the defense, requested adjournment in order that counsel for the defense might have ample opportunity to study the specimens of typewriting and be prepared to cross-examine Mr. Osborn today.

After adjournment Judge Winslow arranged to have the Government's exhibits turned over to the defense counsel for perusal. The blackboard used by Mr. Osborn was placed in the custody of a Deputy Marshal. Either the blackboard or a photograph of it will be placed in evidence, Assistant United States Attorney Mattuck said.

THREE OFFICERS SLAIN, DRY AGENT WOUNDED

Shootings Occur in Two Georgia Towns When Officers Seek to Make Arrests.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 8.—Three policemen were shot and killed and one prohibition officer wounded in Lulu and Blackshear, two South Georgia towns, late today, according to reports received here. Vilas Martin and Jack Ryan, marshals at Lulu, were shot and killed by Robert Hope, a mail carrier, and I. C. Brooks was slain in a battle with S. I. Sharpe at Blackshear, Prohibition Officer J. A. Monroe being wounded.

Reports from Lulu said Hope had been placed under arrest by Martin and Ryan and was being taken to jail when the shooting commenced. Martin and Ryan were said to have been killed instantly. Hope surrendered to the Sheriff.

Brooks was killed in a battle when he and the prohibition officer attempted to arrest Sharpe at his home near Blackshear, authorities said. The officers had a warrant charging Sharpe with violation of the prohibition law. Monroe was badly wounded. Sharpe, reports said, made his escape.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 8.—J. W. Griffin, Chief of the South Georgia prohibition forces, accompanied by a Deputy United States Marshal, left tonight for Blackshear. Griffin announced that he had ordered all of his agents to Blackshear and that two machine guns had been shipped from Macon.

Hylan Buses Going to Albany to Show Lawmakers What Mayor Thinks City Needs

The city administration will send two buses to Albany for the hearing on the Walker-Donohue bill to abolish the Transit Commission and create a city Department of Transportation there next Wednesday. The buses, appropriately placarded, will be started from City Hall by Mayor Hylan Monday morning and will take two days to make the trip. On Wednesday they will meet at Albany a special train carrying Mayor Hylan and other members of the Board of Estimate and delegates from civic and taxpayers' organizations and lead them in procession up Capitol Hill to the Assembly chamber.

"The reason for dispatching these buses is to show the legislators the kind of surface transportation that the people of New York City want," said Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, in charge of the municipally supervised bus lines. "The idea was suggested by the Yorkville Chamber of Commerce and we are using two buses operated on the Eighty-sixth Street crosstown (Yorkville) line."

THINK KLAN VICTIMS CRUSHED BY TRACTOR

TO OBLITERATE IDENTITY

Cleats on Wheels Are Set at Distances Corresponding to Mutilations on Victims' Bodies.

BASTROP, La., March 8 (Associated Press).—Persons who have examined carefully the report of the pathologists on the condition of the mutilated bodies of Watt Daniel and T. F. Richard, found in Lake Lafourche on Dec. 22 last, and who are familiar with mechanical devices, declare they believe they have have identified the so-called "torture machine" as one of many road or farm tractors in use throughout Morehouse Parish.

Daniel and Richard were kidnapped on Aug. 24 and nothing was heard of them until four months later, when two bodies were found in the lake and identified as those of the missing men. The head of each was crushed, the hands and feet of each had been crushed off, and at equal distances the lower legs, thighs, upper arms and forearms were broken. The chests had been crushed in, the ribs torn from the breastplates under the pressure, the body identified as that of Daniel bore indications of having undergone a serious surgical operation before death.

The pathologists testified at the open hearing here in January that an examination indicated the wounds had been inflicted before or just at death.

About three miles from Bastrop, on the Bastrop-Collinston-Monroe Highway, is a huge tractor used to pull a road scraper, a typical machine of its kind, propelled by a heavy duty gasoline motor. The iron wheels are seven or eight feet in diameter, while their tires have a width of approximately three feet. Riveted to the rims to prevent the wheels from slipping in soft earth are steal cleats the width of the wheels, and about fifteen inches apart.

The bodies apparently had been stretched full length with the arms brought above the head. Fractures of the forearms were on a level with the heads, and those who assert the bodies must have been broken with a tractor believe they were driven on to the ground and the machine run or pushed over them. Such a machine as the one near here, it is contended, would inflict such injuries, the heavy cleats on the wide wheels crushing the arm and bones, crushing the heads and chests and severing completely the hands and feet at the wrists and just above the ankle where little flesh protects the bones.

The authorities have received numerous anonymous letters from plantation owners and farmers in all sections of the State suggesting that a tractor must have been used, and the arguments in the case of Watt, Orr, and Millard E. Midgley, counsel for C. J. Steinberg and the Reliance Distributing Company. These were overruled by Judge Winslow.

TO READ BAD BOOKS AND TELL OF THEM

FORD SPONSORS CAMPAIGN

Civic and Welfare Societies Join in Organizing Clean Book League.

The Clean Books League was formed yesterday by representatives of many civic and welfare organizations called together by Justice Ford at his chambers. The objective of the league, as announced by Justice Ford, is to make the law morally "horse high, pig tight and bull strong."

One of the features of the league, announced after yesterday's meeting, was the establishment of a committee of prominent men to read dubious and suspected books and report their impressions to the public.

Justice Ford, who was made President of the league, was charged with the duty of selecting this jury, which will hold literary assizes on many publications now in the windows of book stores and on the shelves of circulating libraries.

"The reason for this Publication Committee," he said, "is that there seems to be no other way to make the average citizen understand the horrible character of these works which are now filling our bookshops. The ordinary man does not see them and it is difficult to make him appreciate them. The character of some of them is so atrocious that they cannot be read before mixed company; neither can they be read before a company of males.

"Jury of Hardened Sinners."

"The idea is, therefore, to form a coterie of men who are well known and whose opinions will have weight—not churchmen and not goody-goody men, but hardened sinners like myself, representative fathers of families. They will read these books and pass judgment on them and vouch it to the world if they are found objectionable or shocking."

This will apply to newly issued books as well as to a great many that are now being sold, according to Justice Ford, including "Women in Love," the volume which originally stirred up this movement. A bill would soon be introduced in the Legislature, Justice Ford said, to make the old law effective.

"When I was a boy on a farm," said Justice Ford, "I once heard an old farmer describe the fence around his garden plot as 'horse high, pig tight and bull strong.' That is the kind of moral fence the old statute provided. Now the pigs have rooted away the ground under the bottom rail, and, wiggling through have invaded not our gardens merely but our homes and firesides. We must drive them out, stop up the holes and make the law pig tight again. The sound, moral sentiment of the people, effectively expressed and brought to bear on literature, will procure for us the requisite statutory amendments to protect the children of the State from the contamination of indecent publications."

Ford Criticises Courts.

Justice Ford said that the strong stand taken by the number of organizations which had joined his crusade and the offers of support received from all sides convinced him that no great difficulty would be found in passing a satisfactory amendment of the bill. Discussing the present state of the law and blaming the higher courts for it, Justice Ford said:

"The good old statute has been substantially repealed by judicial decree for the Judges of the criminal courts have followed the example set by the Appellate Division and have assumed the right to override indictments and dismiss complaints according to their personal views as to the merits of the publications attacked. Indeed, in some cases they have not been content with merely dismissing the charge, but have gone out of their way to characterise some of the most revolting books in such commendatory language that it has been widely published as advertise the books which have been judicially approved."

Dr. Charles K. Gilbert, who represented Bishop Manning at the meeting, was elected Secretary, after Justice Ford had been elected to preside. John S. Sumner, Assistant District Attorney John C. Myers and A. P. Atterbury were appointed to make a final draft of the proposed amendment. Letters were received from Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and from Monsignor M. J. Lavelle, representing Archbishop Hayes, agreeing to act on the General Committee. Other organizations represented yesterday included Boy Scouts, the New York Federation of Churches, the Salvation Army, the Catholic Club, the Knights of Columbus, the Y. M. C. A., the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice, the Lord's Day Alliance, the Social Service Commission of the Episcopal Church.

ANITA STEWART PARTS FROM HER HUSBAND

Film Actress Says They Have 'Agreed to Disagree,' but Do Not Want a Divorce.

LOS ANGELES, March 8.—Anita Stewart, motion picture actress, and her husband, Rudolph Cameron, director, have "agreed to disagree for a little while and live apart," Miss Stewart said, according to a story The Los Angeles Times published today.

"I am not contemplating a divorce," she added, "and I am sure my husband isn't. There is no co-respondent—at least I know of none. If I ever do get a divorce I shall make all the details public, for motion picture patrons are entitled to know the truth about their entertainers."

HEARING IN ALIMONY SUIT.

William F. Schlemmer, head of the wholesale hardware firm of Hammacher, Schlemmer & Co., was a witness before Supreme Court Justice Wagner yesterday in the suit for separation brought by Mrs. Mary A. Schlemmer, to testify concerning his financial means.

Mr. Schlemmer said he married his wife in 1914 and left her in February, 1921. For the first three years they lived at 315 Central Park West at the rate of $10,000 a year, and from 1917 to 1921 when they occupied his $200,000 residence at Great Neck their expenses were $16,000 a year. He now owns 6,009 shares of preferred stock out of 10,800 in the hardware company, and 2,208 of the 2,900 shares of common, receiving $20,000 a year salary. He sold the Great Neck home last year for $425,000, he said, and gave his wife half. He stated that his wife removed $50,000 worth of furnishings and $4,000 worth of liquor from the house without his knowledge.

L. R. STEEL STORES IN RECEIVERS' HANDS

FOUNDER OF THE FIRM OUT

Steel Is Said to Have Quit Without a Dollar—Seven Subsidiaries Affected.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 7.—Twenty corporations comprising the Leonard R. Steel Company enterprises, into which the public has poured more than twenty million dollars in the last three years, were placed in the hands of receivers today by Federal Judge John R. Hazel. Ancillary receivers will be named for every store and branch of the Steel corporations in this and other States.

The receivership, it was said by officials of the company, is a friendly one and designed to avert a crash of the entire financial structure by the hostile attitude of certain stockholders and creditors, which, it was declared, had become apparent during the last twenty-four hours. The petitioner in the case is the National Tea and Tinsel Manufacturing Company of Manitowac, Wis.

The principal companies named in the receivership proceedings are the L. R. Steel Company, Inc., the parent organization; L. R. Steel Company, Ltd., operating chain stores in Canada; the Federal Stores Company of Youngstown, Ohio; the F. L. Nelson Stores Company of Massachusetts, in which the steel companies had a 75 per cent. interest; the Mary Lincoln Candy Company, Inc., stores and factory; the Steel Department Stores Holding Corporation of Delaware and the Steel's Department Stores, Inc., with branches in Colorado, Illinois, Utah, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Jersey, Washington, Maryland, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Ohio, Maine, Alabama, Idaho, Florida and Arkansas.

In addition to department stores, the corporation owned or controlled restaurants and cafeterias. A statement issued last October indicated ownership of about ninety stores, ten of which have since been sold or discontinued.

A report that the receivership would be followed immediately by an inquiry into the manner in which the stockholders' money was disbursed found no confirmation either at the District Attorney's office or from the receivers. District Attorney Guy B. Moore said he had not been asked to take a hand in the proceedings.

"It is the purpose of the receivers, first of all, to become familiar with the affairs of the Steel properties. The receivers have no other purpose than to conserve the interests of the creditors, the stockholders and all others who have equities or holdings in connection with these properties. Assurance is given that every effort will be made to assemble the assets and bring about the best possible result in the management and operation of the interests placed in the receivers' hands."

The receivers signing the statement are William W. Wille and former Representative Charles B. Smith of Buffalo and Dave M. Lewis of New York.

No statement of present assets and liabilities is available, auditors now at work on the finances of the various corporations not having completed their work. The petition submitted to the Federal Court placed the assets of the twenty corporations at about $13,000,000. The figure, it is understood, is based on a partial financial statement issued on Feb. 3 by W. M. Wilkins, Chairman of the Executive Board, who has been in charge since Leonard R. Steel's retirement in January.

The February statement was from the consolidated balance sheet of the L. R. Steel Company, Inc., and its merchandising subsidiaries, and showed total assets of $13,401,671 and a surplus of $6,706,711. Cash on hand and in banks was $394,000, and merchandise inventories, $2,122,000. Other assets listed were: Investment in subsidiary companies, $3,339,943; organizing, financing and advertising, $3,220,000; leaseholds, good-will, trade marks, &c., $1,070,000.

The methods of the corporation were criticised recently by bankers and financial experts, but these attacks apparently had no effect in checking the rise of the Steel financial star. Frequent conventions of the Steel stock salesmen were held at which Steel was lauded as "a wizard in chain store management," and the force was enthused to greater effort in the disposal of stock in Steel enterprises.

The first sign of distress, so far as the public was informed, came on Jan. 27, when it was announced that Leonard R. Steel had surrendered the Presidency of the L. R. Steel, Incorporated, the L. R. Steel Service Corporation and the L. R. Steel Realty Development Company and had placed his stockholdings in these and other subsidiaries in the hands of an Executive Board. This board, it was announced, would drop a number of promotions and endeavor to place all going merchandising branches on a sound financial basis.

Mr. Steel, it was intimated, left his enterprises without a dollar except what was represented in his Steel security holdings. His home in the city had been previously sold and a beautiful country residence where he now lives was in his wife's name. Mr. Steel's health was shattered by his three years' devotion to the business bearing his name, it was stated.

SPRINGFIELD BANK LOSS KNOWN TO BE $800,000

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, March 8.—A. H. Penfield, cashier of the Springfield National Bank, from which he confessed, according to officials, to having taken $800,000 in Liberty bonds, was arraigned tonight on a Federal charge of embezzlement and pleaded not guilty.

The arraignment took place at Penfield's home, where he is recovering after an attempt to commit suicide by slashing his wrists with a penknife. Bond set at $25,000 was not furnished, and he will have a hearing before United States Commissioner Floyd Johnson here on March 20. A policeman was stationed at the Penfield home tonight.

The bank, which closed its doors Tuesday, immediately after the discovery of the shortage, is "gone," according to a statement today by George S. Dial, director and one of the principal stockholders. He declared he saw no way of saving the institution and that a settlement with available assets would have to be made with depositors.

CINCINNATI, March 8.—Checks aggregating $30,000 were on their way back to taxpayers in and around Springfield, Ohio, today, having been refused by Charles M. Dean, Internal Revenue Collector. They were sent in as payment on taxable incomes and drawn on the Springfield National Bank, which closed its doors after the discovery of the alleged defalcation of its cashier.

Collector Dean explained that the persons paying their income taxes on checks drawn on the bank would have to find some other means of paying the Government before March 15, or be declared delinquents and subject to penalties.

BIG FIRE IN PROVIDENCE.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 8.—Damage estimated by insurance men at more than $1,000,000 was caused by fire and water to the Shepard Stores in the heart of the shopping district here tonight. Every available piece of fire apparatus was called to the scene by four alarms.

Starting at about 8:20 P. M., the flames by midnight had swept to and engulfed the greater portion of the sixth floor of one section of the building and were not under control. Insurance men said the fire was the largest in the city's history.

Industry Supplants Beauty, Taking Paris Carnival Crown

PARIS, March 8.—Industry, instead of beauty, was crowned Queen of Paris at today's celebration of the traditional Mi-Carême (mid-Lent) fete.

Working girls, selected on merit from various sections of the city, were dressed as "bees," and in carriages decorated with leaves and flowers, were paraded through the principal streets and boulevards. Later a "Queen Bee" was elected, and, escorted by the cortege, went to the Elysée Palace, where she was received by President Millerand.

Mid-Lent was observed informally as a half-holiday, with traffic diverted from the main thoroughfares, which, despite a light rain, were thronged with crowds of Parisians to watch the gambols of boys and girls dressed in carnival attire.

STUDENTS SOUGHT TO KIDNAP ASQUITH

AMBUSH AT THE STATION

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAMBRIDGE, England, March 8.—If a plot by undergraduates to "kidnap" ex-Premier Asquith had succeeded last night, his speech on Liberal unity would not have been delivered at the University Liberal Club. A skillful attempt to get him sidetracked went wrong at the last minute.

Mr. Asquith boarded the 5 P. M. train from London, not knowing that two of the kidnappers were at the station working the London end of the plot. One kidnapper got on the train and the other went to Nottingham Post Office and sent this wire to the Treasurer of the University Liberal Club:

"Mr. Asquith presents his compliments and regrets that he is unable to come to the dinner, owing to indisposition. He wishes the Cambridge University Liberal Club all success."

Astonishment and dismay struck at the hearts of the organizers of the meeting, but a second reading of the telegram roused their suspicions. Some one suggested that it might be a hoax and it was decided to meet the train according to plan. When they got to the station they observed a large number of undergraduates waiting about with cars and the suspicions were confirmed.

The Asquithians took up their position on the platform, to wait until Mr. Asquith came in. The moment he got out of the train a bodyguard was formed around him. His friends got him into one of two cars that were waiting and he was driven to Kings College.

The foiled kidnappers made a second blunder at this point. Instead of following the car in which Mr. Asquith rode away they chased the second car, which contained a number of officials of the University Liberal Club.

ROSENBLUTH WON $41,512 FOR STATE

As Forestry Worker He Unearthed Tree Cutting on State Land—Penalty Just Affirmed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 8.—The persistence of Robert Rosenbluth, a former State employe, who later entered the Army has been the object of charges in connection with the death of Major Alexander Cronkhite, has finally led to the recovery of $41,512.40 by the State. This amount has been paid to State Treasurer Shuler by the Chateaugay Ore and Iron Company as a penalty for cutting 49,382 trees on land, owned by the State near Clinton Prison in Essex County. The Court of Appeals recently affirms the judgment of the courts below which made the recovery possible.

Rosenbluth entered the State's service in 1911 after he was graduated from the Yale Forestry School. He was keenly interested in forest management on lands of the State institutions. When he went to Dannemora and looked over the 15,000 acres of land he found that the Chateaugay Company was trespassing on State lands and had cut trees.

Judge Vann heard the case and the Attorney General appeared for the State. When the award was made an appeal was taken, but the Court of Appeals has now affirmed it.

TO ELECT SESSIONS JUDGE.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 8.—If Mayor Hylan has his way the next Chief Justice of the Court of Special Sessions will be elected at the polls in November for a term of ten years, with the additional proviso that he can be removed by the Mayor after hearing upon charges.

Special session judges are appointed by the Mayor under the present system. The Mayor has the power of removal now. A bill providing for filling the position of Chief Justice through election was put in today by Senator Carroll of Brooklyn. It would amend the Inferior Criminal Courts Act.

MYSTERY IN MAN'S DEATH.

Officer Finds Him Dying in 8th Av. Poolroom—Had Been Shot.

The policeman found the poolroom deserted except for one man who lay on the floor with a bullet wound in his stomach. An ambulance came from Harlem Hospital. The man died there.

The dead man was identified as Jacob Lane, the identification being made by his sister, Miss Elsie Lane of 208 Woodlawn Avenue, New Rochelle, who said she did not know her brother's address in this city.

Meanwhile Patrolman Harris learned that Lane had entered the poolroom shortly after 4 o'clock and had started to play pool with another man; but beyond that no one could be found who had seen anything of the trouble.

CITY'S BORROWING POWER $175,000,000

GAIN FROM ASSESSMENTS

EXPERTS PREPARE REPORT

Accountants Have Been Working on Analysis of the City's Financial Condition.

Accountants of the Finance Department who are preparing an analysis of the city's financial condition to fix the city's total unreserved margin of borrowing power within the debt limit in the neighborhood of $175,000,000 it was learned yesterday.

The information became public as the result of the publication of a report of Controller Charles L. Craig in The City Record showing the total unreserved margin on Jan. 1, 1923, to have been $128,514,871. In view of the likelihood that Mayor Hylan and the Board of Estimate will receive authority to go ahead with his $600,000,000 transit plan by the passage of the Walker-Donohue bill abolishing the Transit Commission, and because of the frequent assertions that the city would be unable to find the money to finance the Mayor's program, the city's unreserved borrowing margin has become of more than usual interest.

The increase in the unreserved borrowing margin has come about almost wholly through the increase in assessed valuations of taxable property. It was explained at the office of the Controller yesterday. This increase, amounting to approximately $440,000,000, is now effective and automatically added 10 per cent., or $44,000,000, to the city's borrowing power since Jan. 1. Since Jan. 1 the Board of Estimate has authorized $18,000,000 for the construction of schools, but this has been practically balanced by the maturity of old obligations which have been canceled. It was said that no further authorizations for school purposes within the debt limit would be necessary this year.

The report of the city's financial condition on Jan. 1, 1923, showed a total incurring power, 10 per cent. of the assessed valuation of real estate, of $1,024,999,128, a total indebtedness within the debt limit of $851,815,333 and a constitutional debt incurring power at that time of $173,180,950. This debt incurring power was actually reduced by authorizations of $741,756 for rapid transit, $6,909,578 for dock improvements, $7,214,785 for schools, $29,296,961 for other purposes and $500,000 of assessment bonds authorized and unissued, a total of $44,666,079, which left the total unreserved margin within the debt limit available for additional specific appropriations $128,514,871.

This was less than the total unreserved margin on Jan. 1, 1923, which was $138,445,984. The unreserved margin on March 1, however, is expected to show a substantial increase, it was said. This unreserved margin was only $137,000,000 on April 1, 1922.

BABY AND DOG AT PLAY LEFT TO PERISH AT FIRE

Parents, Fleeing Different Ways, Each Thinks the Other Has Child Until Too Late.

When flames routed Stanislaus Zankowski and his wife from their flat at 616 East Sixteenth Street at 7:30 o'clock last night, Mrs. Zankowski took the fire escape, while Stanislaus led his four-year-old son Stanislaus and his six-year-old daughter Mary to the street by way of the stairs. Each parent thought the other had rescued their two-and-a-half-year-old son Frank, last seen playing with his pet collie in the front room.

When flames shot through the room Sergeant John Mulligan and Policeman Wals happened by in a police flivver and darted away to send in an alarm. Engines 14, 5 and 16 have in sight. Stanislaus got a glimpse of his wife descending the fire escape without the baby. Almost simultaneously Mrs. Zankowski

MUSIC

The Philharmonic Society.

It was perhaps desirable and even necessary that Mr. Mengelberg should put Mahler's seventh symphony upon the programme of the Philharmonic Society's concert last evening in Carnegie Hall. It was, we believe, the last remaining symphony of the composer that had not been played here, and it is at the same time the final reduction ad absurdum of Mahler's pretensions to be a composer.

It is most ambitious, as all his symphonies are; most elaborate. He needs five movements to say his say, and very near an hour and a half. Mr. Mengelberg gave a remarkably fine and finished performance of it, as a performance. The better it was, the more pitiless was the disclosure of the poverty of the work in ideas, its weakness in structure and workmanship, its unskilfulness in orchestration. This is a shocking term to use about Mahler the symphonist; but every movement enforced its truth. Unskilfulness in orchestration results in sound that is by turns hollow, thin, airy, overladen, nauseous. Fragmentary, colorless and strident. There were moments when Mahler's orchestration had none of these qualities; but they were not many.

As for the musical quality of the work, there is much of the pseudo-naïveté that was Mahler's chief stock in trade. There is a painful and laborious logic in the tedious development of the striking theme given by the brass in the first movement, in which it is presented in every possible aspect, at intolerable length. There is appalling emptiness in the movements that follow; strange scraps from different sources make their appearances even to a start made by Ethel Wells in "The Merry Widow." There is more of the spurious naïveté; there are cowbells for no reason stated—can it be for a purely musical reason? There are the guitar, the mandolin, evidently only to attentive listening; there are bells of "morning bells of the valley." There are march themes. And throughout there is the laborious manipulation of trivial ideas that have no issue in musical beauty or musical significance or expression.

Well, well we say, to know all this; to know it once for all; and it should lead to the hope that the times and labor and funds of the Philharmonic Society shall not further be expended upon the work of Mahler. Dead let that dead issue remain. Dead let it be, as time turns to ashes in the hands of him who would grasp it.

The record requires the statement that at the end there was much applause, and that Mr. Mengelberg caused the orchestra to rise to share it with him. So far as this was intended for the performance, it was well deserved.

The only other number on the program was Beethoven's triple concerto for piano, violin and violoncello, with orchestral accompaniment, Op. 56. It was played by the New York Trio, Messrs. Adler, Guidi and Van Vliet. It is one of the rarely played works of Beethoven; the Beethoven Association presented it last season, but before that it had not been heard here for some time. Like most of the works of Beethoven that are rarely played, there is a reason for it. It is not strong, and it is not characteristic of the master. It was well played by the three solo artists.

'LOHENGRIN' REVIVED AT THE METROPOLITAN

The season's first "Lohengrin" within earshot of Broadway brought a large attendance for Wagner's most popular and melodious work at the Metropolitan last evening. It was an imposing spectacle that Mr. Gatti-Casazza offered his subscribers, the scenery being the spacious settings made by Urban for the opera's post-war English revival, in which Harrold and Whitehill of last night's German cast had appeared here. Except for Mme. Claussen also, who returned in her first appearance of the year as Ortrud, the singers otherwise were all new to their roles in New York.

As on the stage, so in the orchestra pit, the performance was projected along lines of prodigality. Mme. Hodansky's orchestra, with the bulk of the year's more than three dozen productions now accomplished, turned to the old, familiar score in almost holiday mood, throwing its mass weight a hundred strong into the hurled thunders at the conductor's nod. The very pace of the pageant seemed quickened often to advantage of general effect, sometimes to obvious relief of Wagner's overburdened singers.

Michael Bohnen alone of the cast dominated scene and orchestra in sheer mightiness of appearance and of voice. The Russian bass-baritone's King Henry the Fowler, of Germany, was a regal figure, even when standing unhelmeted among his thronged subjects on the banks of the Scheldt. He sang fortissimo lyric without reserve or constraint, an "instrument" such as the Bayreuth master perhaps conceived when he wrote the King's prayer before combat into the rich texture of multitudinous waves of strands of supporting chorus and orchestral harmony.

Barbara Kemp, a young and slender Elsa, was less happy in like circumstances; an appealing figure, she sang less in lyric than in a light, dramatic manner, that floated perilously on the orchestral flood. Mr. Harrold may have suffered with her, for both artists were better heard in the later, quieter love scenes. Mme. Claussen, though here is not the typical darkly colored contralto for an Ortrud's plotting, managed her resources admirably in more turbulent episodes.

Behind the scenes, where realities of artists' lives rarely concern their audiences, an explanation was made on behalf of two who sang under difficulties, for which they asked no apology and needed none. Mr. Whitehill, informed during the evening of the death of a sister in Iowa, finished his rôle, while preparing to leave for the West immediately after. Mr. Schuetzendorf, heard for the first time as the King's Herald, had been in daily attendance on his wife, Delia Reinhardt, critically ill of mastoiditis, but reported convalescent at last.

BREAK FOX-TROT RECORD.

Scotch Couple Dance 15 Hours and 25 Minutes Without Halt.

LONDON, March 8.—Scotland, cradle of the Highland fling, has gone so wild over fox-trotting that couples are losing sleep and going without eating in numerous efforts to establish long-distance records. Cliff Houghton and Miss Edie Cole wore out several sets of musicians last night in a continuous trot of 15 hours 25 minutes at Ayr, extending the non-stop record by forty-nine minutes.

Statisticians estimated that if these dancers' steps were placed end to end they would reach almost from Glasgow to Edinburgh.

Puyrredon Named Ambassador Here

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Honorio Puyrredon, former Minister of Foreign Affairs of Argentina, has been appointed Ambassador of that country to the United States, it was made known officially at the State Department today. Senor Puyrredon will succeed Dr. Tomas A. Le Breton, who last year was elected a Senator from the Buenos Ayres district and later was named a member of the Cabinet of President Alvear.

Hale Denies Any Control of Ships.

With reference to a resolution passed by the Senate just before Congress adjourned which called for information regarding the ownership and control of ships by railroads, the Erie Railroad Company yesterday issued a statement that several years ago it gave up all ownership, control and operation of lake steamers, and now has no connection whatever with any such vessels or water lines. Neither has it any ownership, control or interest in the operation of any ocean, lake or river vessel.

$69,025 CIVIL SUIT LANDS BROKER IN JAIL

Abraham Stein, who has been running a brokerage business under the name of the Stein, Ellis Company, was arrested yesterday on a civil process issued by Supreme Court Justice Guy in a suit of Samuel Clark of 173 Clinton Avenue, Newark, for $69,025 damages on the ground of misrepresentation. Stein was found by Deputy Sheriff Murphy at 157th Street and Riverside Drive and taken to the Sheriff's office. He could not give $60,000 bail fixed by the court and went to Ludlow Street Jail.

Clark alleged that between November, 1918, and January, 1919, Stein represented that stock of the Kentucky Producers Refining Company would advance and that he could pick up certain blocks of it at 40 to 50 cents a share, and that if Clark would advance the money Stein would return all sums in excess of what he had to pay. Clark alleged that he gave Stein $62,006 in notes, part of which the latter had discounted, and all of which Clark says he expects he will have to pay. He alleges that Stein paid not more than 7½ cents a share for the stock.

Mrs. Jennie V. Gifford of 601 West 136th Street said Stein in February, 1919, bought from her 200,000 shares of the stock, giving her $2,000 and four of Clark's notes for $3,000 each, which Clark paid.

Frederick A. G. Ellis of 1,558 East Twenty-fourth Street, Brooklyn, whose name is used in the firm, said that he was not a partner of Stein but merely had been employed as salesman and had quit because he did not like the way Stein was doing business.

150 TRUCKS RUINED IN FIRE.

Four Alarms Call Nearly Entire Department of Manhattan.

Fire destroyed the Horatio Street Garage on the lower west side last night, ruining from 126 to 150 motor trucks which were stored there, many of them loaded with produce and other merchandise.

The garage runs from Horatio to Jane Street, between Washington and West Streets. On one side is a big warehouse and on the other a tall tenement. Fear that the blaze would spread to those buildings led to four alarms in quick succession, bringing most of the men and apparatus in Manhattan. By midnight, with the fire under control, both those buildings appeared to have been saved.

Unable to penetrate the building despite the deluge they poured upon the flames, the firemen were unable to estimate the damage, though they believed the contents would be a total loss.

The fire started from an explosion in some quarter of the one-story structure not yet located. Two big buried gasoline tanks failed to explode. For a time it was feared they would do so with serious consequences. The Jane Street wall collapsed and three firemen were slightly seared by the flames that belched as the wall gave way.

Among the firms which had trucks in the garage were the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, the Tower Trucking Company, the Fromont Steel Corporation, the Gansevoort Produce Company and the Frank J. Russell Company.

'DIE WALKUERE' SUNG AGAIN.

Mr. Lussmann the Siegmund and Miss von der Osten Sieglinde.

"Die Walkuere" was sung for the fourth time at the Manhattan last evening, Wagner's music drama unfolding with a smoothness won perhaps not in vain by repetition in the recent "Ring" cycles there, and with most of the Berlin company's leading singers then heard. In place of Urlus, Mr. Lussmann was the Siegmund last evening. Miss Von der Osten as Sieglinde was in beautiful voice, a fact magnified in turn by the Manhattan's intimate acoustics, while Mr. Lehmann as Hunding completed the human triangle.

Schorr as the god Wotan and Mme. Metzger as his spouse, both of noble voices, again were noteworthy. The Brünnhilde was Mme. Lorenz-Hoellischer, heard in other "Ring" dramas before, as Miss Alsen had been in this one. Mr. Blech conducted with authority, as always, and with increased response from the instrumentalists and general ensemble now for over a month under his almost daily command.

Wagner's works in these "festival performances," closing so far as the Manhattan is concerned with three more tonight and tomorrow, must be counted among the season's blessings that "heighten as they take their flight." Whether the leading singers return overseas whence they came, or continue in a new series announced at the Lexington, it was evident last evening that they have won individual and collective favor with a large public in New York.

SIGRID ONEGIN SINGS.

Metropolitan Contralto Appears With N. Y. Symphony Orchestra.

Sigrid Onegin sang with the New York Symphony Orchestra in Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon, the matinee comprising with tonight's repetition the last pair but one that Dr. Damrosch gives there this season. The Metropolitan's admired contralto sang a familiar air from Mozart's "Titus," and was accompanied by Damrosch at the piano in three songs of Beethoven, two simple love lyrics and "Die Himmel Ruehmen," this last with a voice of majesty and power.

Mr. Damrosch led the orchestra in a performance, marked by singular clarity and beauty, of Schubert's "heavenly length" symphony in C, and again with mirror-like translucence of tone in Liszt's first rhapsody at the close. Midway, by contrast, came Debussy's "Afternoon of a Faun," which oddly caught the fancy of an applauding house amid the classics of an earlier day.

Francesca Marni in Debut Here.

Francesca Marni sang in English, French, Italian, German and Russian at her first New York recital in Aeolian Hall last evening. She revealed a soprano voice of pleasing quality, limited power and flexibility in Orlandini's "Caro son tua cosa," and the sincerity of her manner of singing held the close attention of her hearers. The audience enthusiastically expressed its enjoyment. Frank Bibb provided accompaniments which were in close sympathy with the singing.

MOTION PICTURE NOTES.

New photoplays on Broadway beginning next Sunday will be "Brass," an adaptation of Charles G. Norris's novel of the same name, at the Strand, and "Salomania," with Mae Murray, at the Capitol.

"The Covered Wagon," based on Emerson Hough's story of the same name, and directed by James Cruze, with Lois Wilson, J. Warren Merrigan, Ernest Torrence, Tully Marshall and others in the cast, will begin an indefinite engagement at the Criterion Theatre on Friday of next week. It will be shown at the Hotel Plaza under the auspices of The Film Mutual Benefit Bureau on Sunday evening.

"Othello," the German production, with Emil Jannings and Werner Krauss in the leading roles, will move from the Criterion to the Rivoli at the beginning of the week, and Cecil B. De Mille's "Adam's Rib" will move at the same time from the Rivoli to the Rialto.

"Fury," with Richard Barthelmess in the principal part, will be shown at the George M. Cohan Theatre on Sunday.

The annual Paramount Ball, at which stars of the stage and screen will provide entertainment, will be held at the Hotel Commodore this evening.

Among the musical numbers on the new programs next week will be "A Balkan Episode," with the orchestra and ballet corps at the Capitol, and "Lilies of the Field," a return of Walt Kuhn's dance travesty, at the Strand.

CARUSO ART SALE YIELDS $151,147

It is an event in the art world when a collection of Limoges enamels is dispersed, and yesterday, the closing one of the Caruso sale, with the enamels, fine bronzes and watches going in the afternoon, the returns were greater than for all the previous sale taken together, $87,609, for numbers from 963 to 1,137, making a total of $146,168. The evening sale of caricatures and books yielded $4,979, making the full total for the sale of 1,350 numbers $151,147.90.

Caruso's famous 18-karat gold fitted traveling bag was No. 1,131 in the sale and went to Sigmond Wyler for $1,800.

Among the higher prices of the afternoon's sale No. 1,007, a famous late sixteenth century Florentine bronze by Giovanni Bologna, "Figure of Morgante," sold to H. Parke, agent, for $2,000. No. 1,009, Bronze Jakstand, Venetian, late sixteenth century, went to Thomas Wilson for $2,100, and to the same buyer went No. 1,011, a pair of bronze candlesticks, Venetian sixteenth century, from different famous collections, for $2,800, and No. 1,013, a bronze door knocker of the same city and period, by Sansovino, for $2,000. Henry Symons paid $2,000 for No. 1,015, a bronze statuette, equestrian, North Italian sixteenth century, from the Morgan collection.

"Adoration of the Magi," in a Limoges enamel 7¼ by 6¼ inches, from the atelier of Nardon Pénicaud, was bought by Thomas Wilson for $2,200. There was close competition for this, as for Nos. 1,060 and 1,061, scenes from the life of Alexander the Great, in the Limoges enamels, by Jean III. Pénicaud, which went to H. E. Harper for $8,000.

Buyers of the caricatures, which opened the evening sale, were largely Italians with unfamiliar names, presumably from among the singer's audiences of the past. The average price per caricature was about $17. Self-portraits brought the highest prices. No. 1,135, an original caricature of the tenor, full length, in evening dress, in India ink, went to Henry Esprichez for $50. No. 1,175, three original caricatures of Caruso, one in "La Traviata," in colored crayon; one in "Pagliacci," in pen and ink, and a signed portrait head in pencil, sold to A. W. Cohen for $40.

Dr. E. Cadgene, B. Wexat and Thomas Wilson were among the book buyers paying the best prices. No. 1,268, a fine copy of "Les Trois Mousquetaires," a limited number edition in blue levant, finely illustrated, went to Cadgene for $350. Weyet paid $310 for No. 1,268, Bequatint plates by Goya of "The Bull Fight," in a half red morocco binding.

Collection of Boxes to Be Sold.

A great number of small boxes, bonbonieres, patch boxes, snuff boxes, sweetmeat boxes and small boxes for innumerable purposes, some 500 of them, are to be sold at the Walpole Galleries, with a few snuff and other bottles, this afternoon and evening. It is the collection of Daniel Sidney Brown of St. Louis, Mo. The boxes are of silver, chased and engraved; gold and enamel; tortoiseshell, lacquer, carved bronze and wood, with miniatures on ivory and Battersea enamel, and there are boxes in more primative form from Alaska and the Philippines and others of prehistoric ivory. It is seldom that so many boxes are brought together in a single collection. The snuff bottles are of jade, crystal, amethyst, painted and carved glass, porcelaine agate, &c.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Love Habit," instead of "A Fast Worker," will be the title of the play that Brock Pemberton will produce at the Bijou next Monday night.

"Roger Bloomer" will be withdrawn from the Forty-eighth Street Theatre tomorrow night and "The Chastening" will become the regular bill at that playhouse next Monday night.

"Merton of the Movies" will be produced at the Shaftesbury Theatre in London this Spring, with Tom Douglas in the rôle first acted by Glenn Hunter. George C. Tyler will sail for London on the Majestic tomorrow.

"Where the Subway Ends" will be the first offering of the newly formed Theatrical Producing-Financing Corporation. Jarvis V. Auditore and Joseph Noel are the authors.

Reginald Pole's first matinee of "King Lear," with Genevieve Tobin as Cordelia, will be given at the Earl Carroll Theatre today.

Performances of "The Crooked Square" in Pittsburgh, which were interrupted on Tuesday, were resumed Wednesday night. The play will open in Chicago next week.

"Mister Malatesta," the play at the Princess, will be known hereafter as "Papa Joe."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The absurdity of the recent Wall Street talk of another immediate rise in the New York Reserve Bank's discount rate was shown by the bank's weekly statement yesterday. Its reserve ratio, 83¾ per cent., was the highest reported since November; its rediscounts the lowest since the middle of January. What might happen, in the conceivable event of an immense increase of speculative use of credit, is another matter. But such speculative expansion would itself have direct and powerful effect on the Reserve Bank's loan account and reserve ratio.

Opening with irregular advances, the stock market broke somewhat violently at midday, declines of 1 or 2 points being numerous, notably among the speculative industrial shares. The selling, like the buying of recent days, appeared to come mostly from professional operators; it was met in the later hours yesterday by equally violent bidding-up of scattered industrial shares, which left the market extremely irregular at the end, but with a large preponderance of net declines. The downward movement affected railway as well as industrial shares.

This happened notwithstanding an extremely favorable car-loading statement for the closing week of February. But the question of the stock market at the moment is not the character of the industrial and transportation situation. Of the extremely favorable position in that direction there is no doubt whatever; but opinion may differ as to how far existing business conditions had already been "discounted" by the February rise on the Stock Exchange. Like the stock market, yesterday's cotton market lost ground. The wheat market rose slightly. After the close of business the Government gave out its report of grain left on the farm March 1. The "wheat reserve" represented the minimum forecast of the trade; except for last year, it is the smallest since 1919.

Foreign exchange closed firm, with sterling practically at the week's high level and the mark advancing almost to the highest rate since the Reichsbank began to support the market. How entirely the recent movement of the mark has cut loose from the influence of the outpour of German paper money was illustrated by yesterday's Reichsbank statement, which showed increase of 389,000,000,000 marks in the last week of February, and for the whole of last month an increase of 1,528,000,000,000, or 77 per cent. Yet February was the month in which the mark, measured in ten thousandths of a cent, rose from 25 to 52, ending the month at 44. The well-known explanation is that the Reichsbank, in Stock Exchange phraseology, has been "rigging" the market for German exchange.

The Reichsbank statements throw some light on the operation. During December the bank's holdings of "bills of exchange and checks" increased 175,000,000 marks. In January the increase was about the same, but in February the huge amount of 1,132,000,000 was added; the total rising from 697 billion marks to 1,829 billion. This could only mean that the Reichsbank (perhaps through refusing to lend on foreign exchange) was forcing German exporters of goods or securities to sell their drafts on foreign markets to the bank itself. But the rate of increase has been growing slower. In the second week of February the Reichsbank added 444 billion marks worth of bills of exchange to its portfolio; in the third week 306 billion; in the fourth, only 177 billion.

Yesterday's report of the Bank of France showed 388,753,000 francs increase in the note circulation, making 767,444,000 increase in a fortnight. This was not, however, wholly or mainly a result of loans to the Government. Two weeks ago the French Treasury borrowed 500,000,000 from the bank; this past week it reduced its loans 200,000,000.

TWO BIG INDUSTRIAL MERGERS PENDING

Knitting Mills and Independent Matchmakers Both Planning Combinations.

ONE'S CAPITAL $25,000,000

Two new mergers are pending, one in the knitting mills industry and the other in the match industry, according to reports in financial and trade circles yesterday. The merger of knitting mills with a combined capital of $25,000,000 will, it is reported, include the P. H. Hanes Knitting Company of Winston-Salem, N. C., the Utica Knitting Mills, Utica, N. Y., the Oneita Knitting Mills, Utica, the Avalon Knitwear Company, Utica, and the Union Mills, Inc., of St. Johnsville, N. Y. All these concerns specialize in the manufacture of knit underwear.

If the plans for the consolidation of the companies is consummated, it is expected that the mills will be operated under one head and that a joint selling organization will be drawn together which will make its headquarters in this city. The plans, it is understood, are still in the discussion stage. Financial experts of this city are cooperating with the officers of the various organizations in formulating a plan which will be agreeable to all interests concerned. Reports of such a merger have been circulated in the dry goods trade for several years, but it is believed that the plan is nearer ratification now than it ever has been.

The merger of match manufacturing companies will, according to report, consist of half a dozen or more middle western manufacturers who will band together for the purpose of competing with the now dominating factor in the industry, the Diamond Match Company, the largest maker of matches in the country if not in the world. Details are not available at the present time but it is understood that the combination will include the Union Match Company, Duluth, the Minnesota Match Company, the Illinois Match Company, Joliet, Ill.; The Reliable Match Company, of Ashland, O.; the Indiana Match Company, Crawfordsville, Ind.; the Cleveland Match Company, of Cleveland; the Wheeling Match Company, of Wheeling, and the Fred Fear Match Company, of Bloomsburg, Pa. These companies are now competing independently of the Diamond Match Company.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Although the general behavior of the foreign exchange market yesterday was irregular all of the major exchanges closed either with fractional gains over the preceding day or at the same level, and at the high quotations for the day several exchanges were considerably in advance of the close of the day before. Chief interest was attached to the activity in marks and sterling, both of which showed a strong tone throughout the whole trading period.

Sterling yesterday sold up to $4.70½, at which price it closed, as compared with $4.69½ on the preceding day. The range of change in sterling was comparatively limited all day, for although London Exchange slumped down to $4.69% during the early trading period it steadied immediately and came back to the high mark before the end of the day.

Marks continued their upward climb yesterday, touching .0051½ cents, the first time that quotation has been reached since Feb. 17. The figure was not held, however, for within a short time marks were quoted at .0048 cents. They closed at .0048½, the same as the previous day.

Francs remained unchanged at 6.05 cents, exchange on Rome gained slightly at a closing price of 4.57½ cents and exchanges on Amsterdam, Madrid and Stockholm also showed fractional appreciation.

In the subjoined table the quotation on sterling represents dollars and decimals of a dollar; all others represent cents and decimals of a cent. Quotations preceded by the decimal mark indicate a price measured in fractions of a cent.

CLASS 1 RAILROADS EARN 5.54 PER CENT.

REVENUES INCREASE 27%

Expenses, Largely on Account of Storms, 21 Per Cent. More Than in January, 1922.

The Class 1 railroads of the United States came within $5,034,188 of earning during January the amount designated by the Interstate Commerce Commission as a fair and adequate return on their tentative property valuation, according to a compilation announced yesterday of reports filed with the commission. During January the Class 1 roads reported a total net railway operating income of $60,684,700, representing a return on an annual basis of 5.54 per cent. on tentative valuation. The amount established by the Interstate Commerce Commission as a fair return was $65,655,888, or 5.7 per cent.

The month of January marked the most favorable achievement in earnings since the railroads were returned to their owners and tended to confirm the statements of Interstate Commerce Commission experts and railroad executives that the railroads were steadily finding their way out of their troubles and that the best assistance that could be given them would be less legislation. During January the railroads of the North, Middle West and Intermountain West had to contend with severe storms, which increased operating expenses and retarded shipments. In the face of adverse weather, however, the railroads moved during January 3,280,296 revenue freight cars, setting a new high record for that month. This figure exceeded the loadings of 1922 by 500,000 cars.

January's net operating income of $60,684,700 compared with $29,496,000 for the same month last year or a return on the annual basis of 2.75 per cent. Total operating revenues during the month were $500,683,400, an increase of 27 per cent. compared with January, 1922. Operating expenses during the month totaled $407,615,000, an increase of 31 per cent. over January, 1922. These figures are based on the reports of 193 Class 1 carriers.

That the increase in the net operating income in January compared with the same month one year ago was in part due to greater efficiency in operation of the railroads is shown by the fact that in January this year 81.4 cents out of each dollar received in operating revenue went for expenses, while in January last year it was 85.3 cents.

Expenditures for maintenance and equipment amounted to $120,721,500, compared with $93,466,500 during the same month last year. That results have been obtained from this increased expenditure for maintenance and equipment is shown by the fact that during the month of January, this year, the number of freight cars in need of repair was reduced by 6,540, while the number of locomotives repaired and turned out of their shops was greater than during any similar period.

Forty-eight railroads in January had operating deficits, of which twenty-five were in the Eastern district, one in the Southern and twenty-two in the Western district. In December forty-two railroads had operating deficits.

LEHIGH INCOME DROPS.

Net for Last Quarter $139,725, Against $2,976,853 a Year Ago.

Income figures of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company for the final quarter of 1922 were announced yesterday following the report of that company to the Public Service Commission of New York State. The report showed gross revenues of $16,585,757, a decrease of $1,074,466, as compared with the corresponding period of 1921, and net after taxes amounted to $139,725, against $2,976,853, a decrease of $2,837,118.

After all charges there was a deficit for the 1922 quarter of $647,236, against a surplus for the corresponding period of 1921 of $6,537,955, a difference of $7,185,181. Concentration of shipping efforts on speeding up deliveries of coal—on which the rate today is lower than one year ago as a result of a rate revision which went into effect last July 1—and heavier transportation and maintenance expenses resulting from the shopmen's strike were given as reasons for the difference in earnings.

CURB MARKET BARS FAY TAXICABS STOCK

NEW FINANCING ARRANGED

President Fay Will Make a Public Offering of the Securities Next Week.

The New York Curb Market yesterday suspended all trading in the capital stock of the Fay Taxicabs, Inc., which has been traded in on a "when, as and if issued basis" since a public announcement of an offering of 50,000 shares of the capital stock was made recently by McClure, Jones & Reed, members of the New York Stock Exchange. The action of the Curb Market authorities followed an announcement on behalf of the brokerage firm that a further investigation did not warrant their going ahead with the sale of the stock to the public and consequently all allotments would be withdrawn and no stock turned over to the public which has subscribed for the issue.

Lawrence Fay, President of the Fay Taxicabs, Inc., yesterday said that the action taken by the Stock Exchange firm necessitated other arrangements. These have been completed. Mr. Fay said yesterday that he had "completed the financing of the stock, and I will make a public offering of the shares some time next week.

Attorneys for the firm of McClure, Jones & Reed yesterday on behalf of the brokerage firm said that the decision not to conclude the financing of the 50,000 shares of Taxicab stock at $32 a share was not a reflection upon the Fay Taxicabs, Inc., or upon Lawrence Fay, President, and that no misrepresentations were made by the officers of the company when arrangements were made for the underwriting of the new securities. The decision was based upon an investigation, and the circumstances which surrounded the investigation, it is said, did not warrant the sale of the stock on the original basis planned. Further than this the attorneys or members of the firm would not say anything regarding the transaction.

At the New York Stock Exchange it was said that the decision reached by the brokerage firm did not reflect upon the position of the house or warrant any action of the Exchange authorities. When the stock was offered for public sale the advertisement said that the offering was being made "subject to allotment and confirmation for delivery when, as and if issued and accepted by us and approved by counsel." The transaction was not approved by counsel and the offering has been withdrawn.

The stock has ranged on the New York Curb market between $33 and $29 a share approximately. All transactions were on a "when issued" basis, consequently all transactions of the Curb are cancelled as a result of the above action.

HARVESTER REPORT SHOWS GAIN IN 1922

Balance Equal to $1.35 a Share on Preferred After Paying 7 Per Cent. Dividend.

The annual report of the International Harvester Company for 1922, despite the fact that the company did not show any profits on sales of farm machinery in this country, shows up more favorably than did the report for the previous year. Net income from operating, before deductions of interest on loans, depreciation and reserves for losses on bills and accounts receivable, amounted to $13,417,495, against $11,284,367 in the previous year. After the above mentioned deductions the company reported net profits of $5,540,767, against $4,149,919 the year before. The profits for 1922, after allowing for the regular dividends on the preferred stock, left a balance equal to $1.35 a share on the $97,918,404 preferred stock outstanding at the close of 1922. In 1921, the company failed to earn the seven per cent. dividend on the preferrd stock, the net profits for that year being equal to only $4.80 a share on the $90,223,900 preferred stock outstanding.

The company's balance sheet shows an improvement in the liquid position of the company. The ratio of net current assets to current liabilities on Dec. 31, 1922, was approximately 8 to 1, against 6 to 1 on Dec. 31, 1921. Total net current assets amounted to $164,511,793 and net current liabilities to $20,789,822 on Dec. 31, 1922, against $179,554,283 and $27,507,540 respectively at the close of 1921.

UNITED RAILWAYS PLAN.

Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. to Act as Managers for Investment Co.

The Directors of the United Railways Investment Company yesterday entered into an agreement with Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. to act as managers in the readjustment of the financial structure of the United Railways Investment Company. The recapitalization plan provides that the holdings of the United Railways Investment Company shall be segregated into a new corporation, which will issue bonds, participating preferred and common stock. All the common stock will be retained by the United Railways Investment Company. Preliminary details of this recapitalization plan were published in THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday.

A statement made yesterday for the bankers in explanation of the plan said: "On completion of the plan it is anticipated that the First National Bank, the Chase National Bank, together with Messrs. Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., will be represented on the board of the new corporation. It is expected that within a few days copies of the plan will be mailed to all stockholders of the United Railways Investment Company.

"If the plan is carried through all present indebtedness of the United Railways Investment Company, including its bonds, will be paid off in cash or provided for, and the investment company will then own not only all of the common stock of the new company, but its present California holdings will be undisturbed."

$1,500,000 OIL SUIT.

International Petroleum Wants That Sum From Mexican Sinclair.

An action has been brought in the Brooklyn Supreme Court by the International Petroleum Company to recover $1,500,000 from the Mexican Sinclair Petroleum Company. On a motion by Martin W. Littleton, attorney for the defendant, Justice May yesterday ordered a paragraph of the complaint removed which asserted that the defendant company and the Compania Transatlantic Petroleum Company were practically controlled by the same people.

It is contended by the plaintiff that the Mexican Sinclair Company agreed to buy the entire product of an oil well at Vera Cruz, Mexico, paying 35 cents a barrel, which was to be disposed of by the buyer at the same price to the Compania Transatlantic Petroleum Company. The complaint alleges that an agreement existed between the Mexican Sinclair and Campania companies to the effect that a first sale was to be made at the stated price, but that the oil was to be resold by the Mexican Sinclair Company at 45 cents a barrel, and repurchased from it by the International Petroleum Company at the rate of 89 cents a barrel. The plaintiff claims a loss of $1,500,000 by this alleged deal on the sale of 3,500,000 barrels out of a total of 10,000,000.

ANNOUNCE EXTRA DIVIDENDS

St. Joseph Lead Co. and Bucyrus Co. Declare Payments.

Directors of the St. Joseph Lead Company yesterday declared an extra dividend of 25 cents a share on the capital stock in addition to the regular quarterly payment of the same amount. Both dividends are payable June 20 to stock of record June 9.

Directors of the Bucyrus Company yesterday declared an extra dividend of ½ of 1 per cent. on account of back dividends on the preferred shares. The dividend, which reduces the amount of back dividend to 17 per cent., is payable April 2 to stock of record March 20.

An initial dividend of 50 cents a share was declared on the capital stock of the Basalt Asphalte Corporation. The New York Curb Market yesterday admitted 200,000 shares of capital stock of this company of no par value to the trading list.

CUBA COMPANY FINANCING.

Stockholders Approve Plan for Recapitalization.

Stockholders of The Cuba Company at a meeting yesterday approved of the recapitalization plan of that company which calls for the exchange of 3,500 shares of new no par common stock for 1 share of the present common stock of $50,000 par value. Represented at the meeting, either in person or by proxy, were 99 per cent. of the company's stockholders.

The Cuba Company, which was incorporated in New Jersey, operates steam and electric railroads in Cuba through its subsidiary, the Cuba Railroad Company, and also owns 300,000 acres. The reason for converting the $50,000 par value stock into stock of no par value was in the interests of easier marketability, according to reports at the time of announcement of the plan.

COPPER COMPANY CHANGES.

Kennecott to Take More Than 50 Per Cent. of Utah's Stock.

The Utah Copper Company has sent a letter to its stockholders calling attention to the offer to be made by the Kennecott Copper Company to exchange 1¼ shares of the stock of the Kennecott Copper Company for each share of Utah Copper outstanding. The letter, which is signed by Charles M. MacNeill, President of the Utah; D. C. Jackling, Vice President and Managing Director, and Charles Hayden, Vice President in charge of finance, says that for many years the Kennecott corporation owned approximately 38 per cent. of the outstanding Utah stock.

The plan under which Utah stock will be acquired, it is said, is for the purpose of giving the Kennecott active control of the organization, and it is said that when the exhcanges already promised have been made Kennecott will own approximately 50 per cent. of Utah's stock. The offering is being made to all Utah stockholders, however, and as a result of this offering, which is expected to be made official in the near future, Kennecott hopes to acquire considerably more than 50 per cent.

Messrs. MacNeill, Jackling and Hayden are to be elected Directors of the Kennecott Copper Corporation. Mr. Hayden is to be Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Kennecott Corporation. Mr. Jackling is to be Chairman of the Committee on Operations.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Cash markets revealed a relatively irregular tone yesterday, a mixture of gains and declines interspersing the subjoined list, price improvement being found in sugar, lard and steel billets, the last two named getting up to new high points, while both dairy products were weak, butter and eggs declining on heavy receipts and light demand. Grains, other provisions and metals ruled firm and unchanged.

Following are the cash prices for the principal commodities in the wholesale market at the close of business Thursday, a week before, and a year ago:

COTTON LIQUIDATED IN HEAVY VOLUME

Prices 25 to 37 Points Lower in an Excited and Turbulent Market.

Though new records were reached early, during which May sold around 31½ cents, the cotton market ran into heaviest liquidation in some time and lost around yesterday. The fact that trading in May seemed to be highly concentrated had an unsettling influence on sentiment generally, leading commission houses to reduce obligations. Advances have been so rapid the last two weeks that it became difficult to maintain the rise. Considerable readjustment had been effected in relations between contracts and spots recently to the decrease of tension. Reports were received that the Louisiana Experimental Station had found that only one-sixth as many boll-weevil had survived this Winter as last. Selling increased in volume the last hour, bringing lowest levels of the day in closing trading. Prices lost 25 to 37 points.

From the opening, conditions surrounding trading revealed a degree of excitement not experienced in some time. Operations in the May position had disclosed such an extensive outstanding interest, with large quantities of contracts changing hands, that sentiment became disturbed. A sharp advance in Liverpool failed to influence opening quotations, both March and May starting below previous closing. The feature of initial dealings was the absence of mill calling which has assisted each early advance the past week. But immediately after the opening, an aggressive buying movement in May occurred which lifted prices to 31.48, highest of the year. While one group of operators was busily engaged in buying, another sold cotton steadily. Commission house liquidation took place, throwing so many contracts into the ring that not only was the advance halted but a break of $2 a bale resulted before midday. Several cross-currents developed under selling pressure in late months, despite the rise in near positions October and December lost ground, increasing the difference between the two crops. Blocks of both May and July were sold during the morning. One line of between 5,000 and 10,000 bales of July ran that month below 30¼ cents. This cotton was bought for foreign account around 29½ cents last week.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous day

The local market for spot cotton was quiet, 25 points decline, 30.95c for middling upland. Southern spot markets were: Galveston, 31c, 40 points decline; New Orleans, 31c, unchanged; Augusta, 30.44c, 44 points decline; Norfolk, 30.63c, 37 points decline; Memphis, 31c, unchanged; Houston, 31c, 30 points decline; Little Rock, 30.25c, unchanged.

BREAK IN DURANT MOTORS.

Decline of 14¾ Points Attributed to Professionals Selling Short.

The stock of Durant Motors, Inc., after opening at 69¼ yesterday, broke 14¾ points to 54½, at which price it closed. Selling was heavy on the decline, and in the absence of any explanation the belief prevailed in the financial district that the selling was due to operations for professionals who were operating on the short side of the market.

The action of the stock yesterday was similar to the decline during late January and early February, except that the decline early in the year was on a larger scale.

Inquiry at the office of Durant, Inc., yesterday divulged the fact that W. C. Durant, head of the organization, is on the Pacific Coast inspecting the company's plants in that section of the country. It was again intimated that there is no change in either the earnings or financial position of the company to warrant such wide fluctuations as were witnessed yesterday.

Objects to Reading Segregation.

The Central Union Trust Company of New York yesterday filed in the United States District Court at Philadelphia objections to the second modified plan for the segregation of properties held by the Reading Company. The objections of the trust company, which is trustee of the holders of Reading general mortgage bonds, were based on the contention that the plan fails to make adequate provision to compensate the bondholders for the losses they will sustain by the segregation.

Southern Railway Resumes $5 Basis

Through the declaration of a semi-annual dividend of 2½ per cent. on the preferred stock, the Southern Railway Company yesterday re-established that issue on a $5 annual basis, the same as before the United States Government took over control of the railroads. The dividend will be payable April 20 to stockholders of record March 29.

WHEAT AT CLOSE A TRIFLE HIGHER

CHICAGO, March 8.—Government report on farm reserves of grain was about as expected, showing within a few million bushels of the Snow estimate on corn and oats and was exactly the same as the private returns on wheat.

The latter aggregate 153,000,000 bushels, against 134,000,000 last year; corn 1,087,000,000 bushels, against 1,305,000,000 last year, while oats stocks are 422,000,000 bushels against 412,000,000 last year.

Based on the Government report plus average country mill and elevator stocks and Bradstreet's "available," there are around 305,000,000 bushels of wheat available for consumption, Spring wheat seeding, export and for carry-over the balance of the season, compared with 255,000,000 bushels at this time last year.

The disappearance of corn during the Winter has apparently been 1,965,000,000 bushels, against 2,025,000,000 last year, and of oats 875,000,000 bushels, against 797,000,000 last season. Total stocks on corn in all positions March 1 are around 1,114,000,000 bushels, against 1,346,000,000 last year, when there were 179,000,000 bushels carried over into the new crop.

Stocks of oats are around 450,000,000 bushels or 30,000,000 less than last year.

Grain values held within narrow limits throughout the day. Wheat opened strong in sympathy with Liverpool and there was no material pressure except above $1.19 for May, with the finish ⅝@¾ cent higher. Corn closed unchanged to ⅛ cent lower; oats, unchanged, and rye ⅝@¾ cent higher. Wheat had a range of only ½@⅝ cent for the day, and failed to show any decided trend.

More export business has been put through in wheat of late than has been reported. It is known that one man sold 200,000 bushels so far this week on which no report was made. At the same time, the business passing from day to day is light in all grains and there is some wheat held in the East that should have been taken by foreigners in December.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 648,000 bushels; week ago, 876,000; last year, 601,000. Shipments were 648,000 bushels; week ago, 594,000; last year, 653,000.

Corn receipts were 895,000 bushels; week ago, 1,318,000; last year, 1,581,000, and shipments 685,000 bushels; week ago, 704,000; last year, 1,160,000.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPERS.

Yesterday—5 per cent. for the best names. Wednesday—5 per cent. for the best names. These quotations are for six months' paper.

Higher Grade Handbag Demand.

French brocaded silks are being used for many of the higher grade handbags, black being the shade desired. It was said yesterday that the vogue of the marcasaite trimmed bag has declined somewhat recently owing to the rather extensive use of the imitation material resembling marcasaite. Self-covered frames in this merchandise are said to be growing in favor. There is more of a demand, however, for the handbags having fillgree frames in either green gold or oxidized finish.

***

To Show Fall Lines.

The Forstmann & Huffmann Company will be ready to show its Fall lines of fabrics for the women's wear trade on Monday next. The garment firms to which the company sells have been invited to view the lines, and, according to a representative of the concern, allotments will have to be made. While broker procedure would apply to other cloths as well, it will affect principally the quotas of the pile fabrics, which are in large demand. It is expected that several new fabrics, which are to be offered, will create keen interest. It was said yesterday that the price will be of a moderate nature.

Gray Goods Still Quiet.

Gray goods continued quiet in this market yesterday. Some scattered business was done for spot and nearby deliveries, but for the most part the sales were limited in size. Second hands sold 39½-inch 64-60 printcloths for spot delivery at 11¾ cents, but first hands would not take less than an eighth more for their goods. Spot and nearby deliveries of 39-inch 68-72s sold in a small way at 12¾ cents, but other printcloth sales worthy of note were reported lacking. In the sheetings there was some business done in lightweight goods on the basis of 9¼ cents for 5.50s and 8¾ cents for 6.15s. The latter sold for spot delivery. In the fine-yarn goods and specialties there was not a great deal done during the day. Heavy cotton prices were based on an asking price of 18½ cents for 37-inch 3.93s.

Percales Selling Very Well.

Although there is nothing of the sensational in the call for percales in this market at the present time, there is a steady buying of these goods by the jobbing trade in an active way. Doubting Thomases in the trade have not only come to accept the last advances made in the prices asked for the goods in question as warranted by the cost of cotton and the unfinished cloths, but they are inclined to accept the assertions of the selling houses that still further advances are in prospect unless some unforeseen development in the raw material markets comes about. The last advance on percales, which brought them to a basis of 15 cents for 64-60s, was made about a month ago. At that time the cost of this construction in the grey was 11 cents, against a first-hand asking price of 11½ cents for spot 64-60s yesterday.

House-to-House Selling Grows.

Not only do more firms appear to be adopting house-to-house canvass methods of disposing of their products, but the kinds of products that are sold in this way are also becoming more numerous. At present the bulk of this kind of selling seems to be practiced by makers of hosiery, and in a recent issue of a weekly magazine of national circulation one concern making these goods had a double-page advertisement of its wares that cost several thousand dollars. In the same issue was a smaller advertisement of another house-to-house hosiery concern. The current issue of a prominent monthly magazine is a full-page advertisement regarding house-to-house selling of raincoats. Dress goods and other portable merchandise are also being sold in this manner, the examples being those of a well-known brush concern and of companies making vacuum cleaners and other labor-saving household devices.

Blouse Buying Continues Good.

Stimulated by the many novelties which have been introduced in patterns, the demand for blouses continues strong. There is every indication, according to wholesalers here, that the Spring and Summer will be one of the best periods in recent years. Egyptian designs and colorings are the most popular effects at the moment in both jaquettes and overblouses. Schiffli embroidery is used in many instances in these, especially for the higher grade merchandise, and buyers are said to be much interested in the models having this form of decoration. Prints are in conspicuous demand in Persian as well as in Egyptian styles. In some models, solid color crêpe de chine or canton crêpe have steel or Indo-China beads as their sole adornment. The jaquette type is in leading request with some prominent makers, but the overblouse is looked to to have an increased sale later on when suits are more generally worn.

Many Leather Goods Bargains.

Buyers of leather goods have little to complain of these days on the ground that there are no bargains offered to them. A local concern, for instance, is offering at $10.75 a 24-inch suitcase that is made of selected hand-buffed cowhide leather and is fancy stitched all around. It has raised reinforced edges, solid brass "fixings" and a leather hinge that is sewed full length. Six-ounce leather stitched straps extend around the entire case, which comes in black, brown and mahogany. A similar bag, 26 inches long, is offered at $11.25. At $7.50 is offered a two-person luncheon kit made of extra heavy duck, enameled on a basswood ox frame with cowhide riveted corners. It is equipped with a sandwich box, white enamel cups and plates, a white opalescent jar, knives, forks, spoons and salt and pepper shakers, and also has two sections for holding vacuum bottles. Heavy russet cowhide straps on the cover keep the cutlery intact. A similar set may be had at $9.50 for four persons and at $11.50 for six persons.

Raw Silk Situation.

Quiet prevails in the local raw silk market, but prices remain firmly held. The sharp advance of primary prices at the close of last week, according to H. L. Gwalter & Co., Inc., has checked buying and the mills are operating very cautiously, confining their purchases to current needs. The Yokohama market is lifeless, but prices hold last week's advance. They represent a lay-down cost of $9.36 for double extra A and $9.30 for Kansai No. 1. Buyers have temporarily withdrawn and are watching developments. Stocks have been reduced to about 16,000 bales, part of which is under contract. At Canton conditions are strong and lay-down costs have been advanced by a sharp rise in silver exchange. No old-season silk is available and the new crop is quoted at $8.10 for 14-16 new style, for May-June shipment. Contracts in new-season steam filatures have been made at Shanghai on the basis of $9.20 for medium grades, 20-22 size, June-July shipment. Tussah silks have advanced to $5.12½ for April-May shipment. The Milan market is dull.

Furnishers Adopt Ethics Code.

At a luncheon held yesterday at the Aldine Club the members of the National Wholesale Men's Furnishings Association voted their acceptance of the code of ethics recently drawn up by a committee headed by President Charles S. Morton. The code will establish standards of business practice covering all relations of those engaged in the men's furnishings line from manufacturer to retailer. One of its outstanding features is the declaration of the inviolability of contracts, reflecting the stand of the trade against cancellations. Judge Moses H. Grossman of the legal firm of Moses, Grossman & Vorhaus addressed the gathering on arbitration of business disputes. He declared that more was required of business men than merely saying the arbitration idea was a good one. He pointed out that there were 27,000 cases on the calendar of the Supreme Court now, which would require three years to settle. He urged his hearers to adjust their grievances in the court established by the Arbitration Society of America, thus avoiding legal delay, financial loss and disrespect for law.

DISTINCT TYPES OF PARIS FASHIONS

TWO - IN - ONE COSTUMES

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 26.—Certain American buyers and style creators remain in Paris for at least two weeks after the majority of their fellow-countrymen have left for home with their purchases made at the February openings. Those who remain return later with exclusive styles, evolved by the French couturiers after the rush of the openings has past. The models thus created are a product of the combined suggestions of the American buyer, who knows his own clientele and their needs and taste and the Paris creator who undoubtedly leads the world in sartorial art.

Most of the Americans remaining in Paris appear to be concentrating their attention upon gowns and the new types of three-piece suits, the latter consisting primarily of a smart frock, merely supplemented by a jacket or a full-length coat. These long coats so closely resemble smart one-piece tailored frocks that the removal of the coat and the display of a smart frock beneath never fails to startle and surprise the beholder.

It is worthy of note that those couturiers having the greatest success this season were those producing especially attractive three-piece suits, as well as smart gowns. This may have been a mere coincidence, but it was nevertheless a fact.

Martial & Armand's collection is particularly prolific in original gown and three-piece suit ideas this Spring. Their gowns are notable for the smartness and masterly decision of the skirt draperies which introduce both character and line into the new creations. Without an approach toward the bizarre or an overexaggeration of the modes, the huge outstanding bow at one hip, the modified bustle drapery, the massed back drapery and the modernized pull-back skirt movement are arranged with that decision of expression which is ever the gift of genius, never of mediocrity.

The drapery of some of the smartest of the formal evening gowns in the Martial & Armand collection sometimes takes an oblique line. In formal evening gowns of gold lamé, bodice and skirt are fashioned of one piece of material. The metal cloth employed drapes beautifully and its sheen is particularly noticeable when the material is draped in oblique folds closely to the figure. The skirt overlaps at the right side where the drapery is centred. A handsome Egyptian motif of red and green semi-precious stones adds a touch of color. Most of the Martial & Armand evening frocks of a formal character, however, show the closely swathed hip-drapery, outlining the figure closely at the front and side hips, the fullness massed at the back of the skirt.

Quaintly "in the picture" in a season, when full skirted period gowns of modified mid-Victorian type prevail for the slender, youthful devotee of dancing, is a Martial & Armand creation, a sleeveless gown of rose taffeta. It is embroidered all over in silver scroll embroidery, except on the deep, tightly draped hip girdle of self-material.

The skirt of this frock is wide, but with all of the fullness bunched in a cluster of close folds on the left hip. Otherwise the skirt is straight of line. Thus does the cleverness of the Paris creator manage to retain the youthful charm of the narrow silhouette, though surreptitiously introducing that degree of skirt fullness demanded by the trend of the modes this season. The deeply overlapped skirt drapery so much in evidence this season serves the same purpose in a different way.

Cleverly conceived is a youthful dance frock created by the same maker. It is of orange crêpe marocain, embroidered in gold beads. This gown is sleeveless and is bloused to the hip line. The skirt retains the slender silhouette though a transformation of line is achieved by a draped hip girdle fashioned with several outstanding loops at each hip from which hang wide sash ends reaching the hem of the skirt. These sash ends widen toward the hem, thus introducing a semblance of skirt flare without any actual widening of the skirt proper. The "movement" of these floating sash ends and the charm of the youthful narrow skirt are apparent only when the gown's possessor is dancing.

Martial & Armand are featuring several "revived" materials this Spring, among them moire, alpaca, covert cloth, gaberdine, serge, twill, taffeta, foulard, poplin and duvetyn, the latter as a trimming combined with foulard in a novel manner. More elaborate frocks are of fulgurante, satin, silk lace, cashmere lace, crêpe romain and crêpe marocain. Especially smart are the sports suits of suede tissue combined with silk crêpe.

Owing to the incessantly rainy weather which prevailed last Summer, smart costumes fashioned entirely of bright colored rubberized materials, closely resembling gayly hued bathing caps in texture and shade, have been created for wear at Deauville this Summer. Every couturier shows a few of these gay little rainy-day costumes, as smartly cut and brightly hued as the Summer sports frocks and suits. Martial & Armand show several of these costumes.

The rarity and variety of the brilliant new Spring shades, used for both gowns and sports costumes generally, is in itself a study this season. In the Martial & Armand collection, perhaps the most prevalent are the beige and tortoise shades, ranging from the deep écru called blond, which is particularly smart in silk-lace frocks, to the shades hitherto known as havana, cocoa and cinnamon which combine so well with beige. Next in favor are the soft green shades known in America as Lanvin green. Jade is also still in evidence.

Numberless all black and all white frocks are shown and are among the smartest creations in a season of vividly hued fabrics and silks. To be sure, the printed foulards and crêpes in bright shades are the rule, but this serves only to add distinction to the all black or all white costumes.

The printed silk and the plain silk crêpe as well bring to the fore such colors as tango, capucine, tomato, apricot, cerise, marine blue, tangerine and maroon, all allied with the Egyptian modes of the moment.

On the other hand, the taffeta period frocks appear in shades suggesting quaintness such as old rose, nile green, rose pink, turquoise mauve and light blue.

In evolving their Spring suits, Martial & Armand adhere rather closely to two distinct types. One is represented by a frock of figured foulard completely hidden by a full length coat. The other type of suit has a short hip-length wrap-like jacket with a rather voluminous cut-in-one sleeve, though the wrap itself clings to the figure closely at the hips and preserves the straight-line silhouette at the back and at the sides.

These wrapy jackets are sometimes very abbreviated in front. In fact, some of them consist of almost nothing but the back portion and the sleeves, the front of the jacket being purposely almost eliminated to reveal as much as possible of the front of the bodice of the interesting gown beneath. The bodice of the gown is of figured or plain silk crepe, while the skirt is of the same material as the jacket, whether it be of poplin, alpaca, serge or twill.

To hold this wrap in place, it is actually buttoned to the frock at the side hips. This insures the modish straight line back so necessary this season. The fullness or drapery of the skirt is concentrated at the centre or side front for, like the jacket, the suit skirt must preserve the straight silhouette at the back.

A smart example of this type of three-piece suit is a Martial & Armand model of tomato red wool crepe marocain. The gown is trimmed with navy blue figured foulard, having an entire flaring sleeve of the silk. The abbreviated, wrap-like jacket of the type just described is likewise trimmed with the figured foulard.

More conservative is a three-piece suit of navy blue reps. This suit has the hip-length, wrap-like jacket. The bodice of the frock is of white crepe marocain, trimmed with narrow bands of marocain embroidery in primitive shades of red, yellow and green.

It remains a matter of conjecture as to whether the much discussed two-in-one costumes created by Martial & Armand this season came into being through the stress of a too demanding social régime, affording little time for changes of costume, or whether through necessity for practicing after-war economy. Opinion favors the latter reason for this practical innovation.

One of the most attractive of the two-in-one costumes has a sleeveless foundation gown of fancy gold lamé, so ornate in itself as to need no additional trimming. Over this foundation is added a long-sleeved, full-length tunic of lace and georgette. To change from a day-time to a dinner frock, one has only to remove the tunic and add an entirely separate lamé girdle, not worn with the tunic at all but especially designed to effect this transformation. As one might well imagine, the girdle must be extremely smart to effect such a transformation and, in this instance, it is indeed, chic. It is of the wide, draped type, clinging snugly to the hips below the low-bloused bodice and ending in a many-looped bow and two sash ends just back of the left hip.

Broadcast Hosiery Information.

Possibilities of the radio as a means of building up business were demonstrated recently by a hosiery mill which manufactures goods for direct sale to the retail trade. The broadcasting was done by the mill's style expert and fashion counsel, and, in part, his talk is reported by the current bulletin of the National Association of Hosiery and Underwear Manufacturers as follows:

"Gray and grayish-green will be used extensively this Spring, both for dress and sport apparel. Stockings several shades lighter than the shade of your skirt are much smarter than an exact match. Silver gray, neutral and medium gray are most in demand now, and will continue to be, although the more conservative will prefer the darker shades of graphite or gun metal. Yellow will be a leading Summer color for garden frocks and sports wear." The lecture also included useful information for the consumer concerning the sizes of hosiery to be worn in order to get the best wear, those to be worn with the various sizes of shoes being given in detail.

T. P. Tracy to Rest Six Months.

T. P. Tracy, ready-to-wear manager for Lord & Taylor, announced yesterday that he had temporarily severed his connection with the company because of his health and would spend the next six months on his farm in Connecticut. Mr. Tracy said he felt the need of a complete rest after twenty-four years' steady application to business. He came to Lord & Taylor on Jan. 1, 1921, after having been connected with firms in the South and the West.

Investors and operators figured prominently in apartment house trading yesterday, when several good properties changed ownership, the largest deal involving a building on Park Avenue, where Frederick Brown sold to an investor the tall apartment at 565, between Sixty-second and Sixty-third Streets.

Mr. Brown recently bought the property from the 565 Park Avenue Company. The house was held in the market at $800,000 and is understood that the price paid by the investor was close to the asking price. Arthur Du Cret, who sold the house to Mr. Brown two weeks ago, was the broker in the resale.

The apartment is 53½ stories high, 65 feet wide and 100 feet deep. The three doctors' offices on the street floor and the twenty-four apartments on the upper floors rent for $106,000 a year. There are two apartments on each floor, one of six rooms and one of eight rooms, each suite having three baths.

Investors and operators figured prominently in apartment house trading yesterday, when several good properties changed ownership, the largest deal involving a building on Park Avenue, where Frederick Brown sold to an investor the tall apartment at 565, between Sixty-second and Sixty-third Streets.

Mr. Brown recently bought the property from the 565 Park Avenue Company. The house was held in the market at $800,000 and is understood that the price paid by the investor was close to the asking price. Arthur Du Cret, who sold the house to Mr. Brown two weeks ago, was the broker in the resale.

The apartment is 13½ stories high, 63 feet wide and 100 feet deep. The three doctors' offices on the street floor and the twenty-four apartments on the upper floors rent for $106,000 a year. "Every year I save money at Jackson Heights"

"I have had many, many experiences with employees and associates; I mean trying to tell them to get out of the rut on the rent paying side of the ledger and get over on the other side, and when I was back in Michigan about eight or nine months ago I had a former employee of mine say to me, 'If I had only just listened to you fifteen years ago. I have recently bought a home and I have been figuring up what I had paid in rent up to the time I bought it. I could have had a home and here I am now just starting to buy one.'

"Personally, I feel that every time I make my payment on my Jackson Heights Garden Apartment I have something laid away which is vastly different than when you pay rent as the ordinary person does."

The New Elevator Garden Apartment Homes of 5 to 7 rooms, 2 and 3 bathrooms, are a sound investment because of the steady growth, desirability, social prestige and easy accessibility of Jackson Heights, where a Golf Course, Tennis Courts, Children's Playgrounds, an Athletic Field, a Club House, meet the requirements of those who desire to lead the normal and healthy out-of-doors life, and yet live in New York City.

WARNS DYE WORKERS OF GERMAN MENACE

One of the most important questions in connection with the French occupation of the Ruhr is what is to be done with the great Rhine chemical factories, Francis P. Garvan, President of the Chemical Foundation, said yesterday at the meeting of the Synthetic Organic Chemical Manufacturers' Association of the United States in the Hotel Pennsylvania. Mr. Garvan said that the French occupation brings up again the problem of the latent war power in these German plants which was discussed at the Versailles Conference. These factories represent the greatest power for evil in the world, Mr. Garvan said.

"There are left a certain percentage of colors which Germany under ordinary circumstances can sell here," Mr. Garvan said. "Her profits out of the sale of those products are kept here as a fighting fund, not against the fellow who may expect to make golden orange or some color, but as a fighting fund against you all as a growing industry. The fight against you in Washington, the fight against you throughout the country, has been financed entirely by the profits on the colors your progress has not made possible for the American consumer to get.

"Take, for instance, $750,000 worth of golden orange sold in America last year. Five hundred thousand dollars of it was cold profit and $500,000 of it was all left here as an available fund to keep up the general fight against you. So it is essential that you should assist each other."

SAYS INCOME TAX HAMPERS GROWTH

CUTS INTO BUSINESS NEEDS

Declares Inroads on Surplus Spells Lower Standard of Living in Country.

Declaring that the Federal income tax is "fast making inroads on the surplus considered vital for our economic progress" and that it "spells a lower standard of living for the American people," the National Industrial Conference Board, in a statement issued yesterday, says that taxation is "on the verge of becoming more or less unbearable."

"Forecasts based on latest available statistics compiled by the conference board indicate that approximately 14 cents out of every dollar 'earned' by the nation as a whole will be paid as taxes during the fiscal year," says the statement.

"In 1921-1922 the national income was $59,300,000,000. Of this amount 14.3 per cent., or $8,489,000,000 was applied to tax payments. This toll upon industries and individuals was distributed as follows:

Federal taxes, $4,903,000,000; State, $1,126,000,000; local, $2,460,000,000. In 1913-1914, when the national income was $34,800,000,000, taxation took only about 6½ cents out of the dollar. Tax demands, in other words, have more than doubled in the past ten years.

"Striking a rough average, it will be found that total taxes and savings amounted to somewhat less than 24 per cent. of the national income in the six years preceding the war and that the remainding 76 per cent. represented consumption requirements of individuals, depletion, depreciation, and obsolescence of property, &c. With our national wealth showing a very small change since 1916 when measured in terms of an unchanged dollar, and with the industrial depression enforcing economy, it is highly likely that this percentage was increased.

"On the presumption that it is not a desirable policy to have the tax program interfere with present standards of living, and applying roundly 25 per cent. to the national income of 1921, we had $12,500,000,000 available for taxes and fresh capital investments, of which $8,400,000,000 was absorbed by taxes, leaving approximately $4,000,000,000 for the latter purpose.

"It was recently estimated that fresh capital investments needed annually in this country at March, 1921, price levels, amount to approximately $6,000,000,000. This would seem to indicate that under present conditions our tax bill is fast making inroads on the surplus considered vital for our economic progress, and threatens to continue to hamper our growth materially.

"That the limits of taxable capacity have about been reached, or at least that taxation is on the verge of becoming more or less unbearable, appears to be generally recognized. The consequencees of this unwise policy are bound to have an unfavorable reaction on our entire national economy. Our present and prospective national income cannot much longer support any tax program, which tends to encroach on the surplus available for the development of industry to the extent that recent years have witnessed. The problem bids fair to become aggravated as Industry recovers from the lethargic state which characterized the past year and begins to require more capital for expansion. The continuance of so burdensome a system of taxation, aside from its stifling effects on individual initiative and effort, spells a lower standard of living for the American people."
